The President's Opportunity
Noble Clemenceau
Saviour of France
He Feared No Man

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE important cities of Seattle and Tacoma, because of drought, observe a falling off in hydro-electric power, that might menace the lighting of both cities.

The problem presented will interest the President, who believes in making public property useful to the people that own it.

THE Navy's airplane carrier, Lexington, now in Puget Sound, near Seattle and Tacoma, has an abundant power for both cities.

To connect the carrier's engines with the two lighting plants would be simple.

THE President will not allow red tape or technicalities to interfere with an important opportunity and obvious duty.

President Taft rendered public service when forest fires made it imperative to use the Army. He acted promptly and efficiently.

NAVY officials may give President Hoover 10 good reasons for not allowing the Lexington to be made useful. The President, doubtless, will give them one good reason for changing their minds, and they'll change them.

TO permit inconvenience to two great cities, refusing immediate and simple relief, would be preposterous, especially as the citizens of Seattle and Tacoma helped to build the Lexington and pay their share each day to maintain the ship and crew.

WITH the death of Clemenceau, a great, noble, useful man leaves the earth. Those that knew him, or know his career, without knowing the man, think of little else.

He makes our ordinary lives seem futile with his magnificent 88 years, more than 50 spent in public service.

IGNORANCE calls him "Atheist." He was no enemy of religion; his fight was against control of government by the church. He fought against that in France, and won. He agreed with those that established this nation and wrote its constitution that church and state should be separate. He and Gambetta separated them in France.

CLEMENCEAU was a man of frightful energy, mental and physical. It was said SES ENNEMIS CRAIGNENT, SA PLUME ET SON EPEE. "His enemies fear his pen and his sword." He fought for his ideas with his pen, fought many a duel with sword and pistol and was never worsted in a duel or a political fight.

HE CARRIED power and courage into old age. He was 73 when the war began, 77 in 1918. The French, barring the narrow minded that hate him, call him their PERE LA VICTOIRE "Father Victory." He was in actual truth the saviour of France. And he would value that title above any other. He would rather have saved France than all the rest of the world, plus a thousand other worlds, if France were not included.

HIS courage cannot be exaggerated, nor his severity, his grim, ruthless determination in time of danger to his country. A young man, he had seen the humiliation of France after the war of 1870 when an imitation Napoleon, controlled by a bigoted woman, plunged the French into disaster. He was determined that it should not happen again and thanks to HIM it did not happen.

HE MANAGED the big war for France, supplying the normal force that brought victory. Clemenceau stood behind the young and middle aged fighting at Verdun.

AND HE STOOD BESIDE THEM.

Where there was hesitation or pacifist defeatism, he had men shot. And where there was the greatest danger he stood with the common soldiers, to learn how they were treated, what unnecessary risks they ran, if any.

AN OFFICER told him: "You must retire. To stand where you are is to commit suicide."

The old man replied:

"I may be too old to commit suicide for love, in the usual way. But I am not too old to commit suicide for the love of France."

WELL may the French thank God, as millions of them do, that they had such a man.

He never feared bullet, shell, sword, nor the face of any man.

AND dead, he asks nothing. Glory he called "Wisps of smoke." He forbids any elaborate funeral and will be buried, by his command, beside his father in a forest of Vendee, land of his birth, within sound of the ocean.

And, like his father, he will be buried in a plain wooden box, standing erect in his grave, not flat on his back.

"I stood erect in life," he wrote in his last directions, "and I shall stand in death."

A SACRED spot for every Frenchman and all that love liberty and courage, that lonely

PRESIDENT, FARMERS CONFER

Executive Calls Leaders to Support Movement for Business Stimulation

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Having accelerated the industrial engine of the country with the oil of confidence, and mobilized state and city governments behind his program of rushing all plans for public improvements, President Hoover turned to the farmers today to complete his cycle of business conferences which for more than a week have held the center of the national stage.

MEET AT WHITE HOUSE

The leaders of national farm organizations went to the White House at the President's invitation to discuss the state of agriculture and the part it can play in maintaining the general business structure of the country on a steady keel during the winter months. Thanks to the activity of the new Federal Farm Board and rising grain prices, the farmers are considered fairly well off.

Prior to going to the White House the farm leaders held a session with Secretary of Agriculture Hyde. Present were C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers' Union; C. S. Barrett, C. C. Talbott, Lewis Chambers and C. N. Rogers, of the Union's Executive Committee; Fred Brenckman, president of the National Grange, and S. S. McCloskey, S. H. Thompson and Earl Smith, of the Farm Bureau Federation.

COMBATS RETRENCHMENT

With the farm conference completed, President Hoover will turn the problem of business maintenance over to business itself to work out.

He has mobilized public opinion to combat any policy of retrenchment that undoubtedly was growing up as a result of the uncertainty produced by radical

CLEMENCEAU FUNERAL SIMPLE

Little Ceremony Marks Rites For French War Premier as He Is Buried Near Home

(International News Service.)

COLOMBIER, (Vendee), France, Nov. 25.—The rugged slopes of La Vendee opened today to receive the body of their beloved son, Georges Clemenceau, the Tiger of France.

In the presence of only his closest relations and the faithful servants of his declining years, the body of France's "father of victory" was laid to rest forever in the lonely plot of ground he had chosen for himself years ago.

Deserving of a tomb in the heart of Paris beside the mightiest heroes of bygone days, Clemenceau found his last resting place, according to his desire, hundreds of miles from the turbulent capital, beneath the Southern sun, where he first saw the light of day 88 years ago.

NOT BURIED STANDING

Although the premier's closest friends had announced he would be buried standing upright, the grave was dug as usual. Solid rock crops out at the burial place to within a yard of the surface.

While in Paris deafening salutes of cannon were being fired to commemorate the Tiger's interment, deathly silence overhung the wooded slopes of La Vendee as France's greatest statesman was buried.

Clemenceau had chosen as his last resting place a spot known as Mouchamps, a tiny wood beside the village of Colombier. The Tiger's body, enclosed in a triple casket as solid as Clemenceau would have wished it to be, arrived from Paris at 5 minutes past noon.

FRIENDS CARRY COFFIN

Ten men, all of them rugged sons of the South who had known and loved Clemenceau in his lifetime, carried the casket to the grave, dug during the night under

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Because of the illness of a juror, Eugene A. Riker, the trial of George A. McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambling king, was adjourned today until tomorrow when a new juror will be chosen to take Riker's place. Riker is suffering "extreme nervousness."

Young Society Set Suppresses Reform

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—There seems to have been a successful revolution against reform. So many of the younger set have been dashing off to night clubs when society ended dances at 3 a. m., that some invitations now read "dancing at 11 p. m.," instead of 10 to 3.

Woman Tries to Kill Vatican City Prelate

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A Swedish woman named Marguerite Gudum attempted to shoot Mgr. Smit, titular archbishop of Paralo and former apostolic vicar of Norway, in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday. The woman, who seemed to be mentally deranged, was handed over to the Pontifical gendarmes. This was the first attempt at a serious crime in the newly-formed Vatican City.

U. S. BARS KIN OF WASHINGTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The country of which his great-granduncle was the first president has barred Leon Jules William Washington, a Belgian, from entry, it was learned today.

Leon Washington, 25, according to John F. Curry, former Republican candidate for Congress, who has interested himself in the case, came to the United States from Belgium in July, 1928, on a six-months visitor's permit.

At the expiration of the visit, extension of his visa was denied and he went to Canada, where he is now living.

His relationship to George Washington was not made known at that time, Mr. Curry said.

Mr. Curry said Congress may be asked to pass a special law permitting his entry.

Leon Washington traces his ancestry back to one of George Washington's brothers, who lived in Yorkshire, England. The family moved to Belgium after the Revolutionary War.

Fisher Names Kenna 8th Ward Alderman

BOYS LOOK ON AS HOME GOES

Joseph and Regis and Clyde didn't go to school today. They stayed at home with their younger brother Roy and their mother and watched two deputy sheriffs carry their furniture to the streets.

The youngsters didn't quite understand. They were puzzled, but they were glad that they still had Sheppie, the dog, and Kit the kitten.

Their mother knew — Mrs. Norma Miller. For 14 years she had lived in that modest frame house at Spring Garden road and Hazlitt street, Reserve Township.

MORE MONEY NEEDED FOR PAY BOOST

Increase of ½ to One Mill Involved; Mayor Blames Wage Increase for Jump

Mayor Charles H. Kline today submitted to Council the 1930 budget carrying appropriations totaling $27,533,350 that would require a tax increase of a mill on land and a half on buildings above the present 25-mill and 12½-mill levy.

Appropriations for 1929 totaled $25,594,600.

Last week the school board announced that a one-fourth mill increase would be necessary to meet teachers' salary increases and other expenses.

FIRE-POLICE PAY BOOST

Increased pay for policemen and firemen, approved by the voters at the last election, was estimated to cost an additional $921,000. Another $421,000 would provide an increase of 10 per cent to all employes on a per diem basis, excepting those paid at the current union scale, and an increase of $120 a year to all employes whose salaries are not fixed by act of Assembly.

DEPENDS ON PAY RAISES

The Mayor stated that if the proposed pay increases were eliminated the tax levy could be reduced to 24.2 mills on land and 12.1 mills on buildings, or a reduction of .8 of a mill on land and .4 of a mill on buildings from the current levy.

SLASHED

Mayor Kline declared he had made the following major cuts from requests from department heads.

An item of $814,000 for 350 additional policemen and 78

VICTIM OF FIGHT DIES; SEEK 2

Peter McGann, 30, of Reed street, who was shot in a pool room argument near his home, Thursday night last, died today in the Mercy Hospital from abdominal wounds.

Detectives said the argument that started the fatal shooting was caused over attentions being paid to a girl.

Police have placed charges against Pat McGinnis, former prohibition agent; Francis Connors, 19, of Reed street, and James Kelly, 32, of Soho street, in connection with the shooting.

McGinnis was arrested at McGann's bedside when detectives reported learning that the wounded man told them the name of the assailant. Connors and Kelly, detectives say, took part in the fight that preceded the shooting in Harry Schwartz' pool room at 1334 Fifth avenue.

Kelly, released on $2,000 bond at 10:30 a. m., just prior to the death, was rearrested at noon by Inspector James N. Hoey.

Lloyd George Draws Dramatic Picture of Clemenceau

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

(Copyright, 1929, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. Copyright in Great Britain by the London Chronicle. Exclusive world rights held by United Feature Syndicate. All rights reserved.)

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(By Cable.)—The first time I ever met M. Clemenceau was at Carlsbad in 1910. I was having tea with T. P. O'Connor in his rooms there. Clemenceau was known to be taking his annual cure and I was anxious to meet him. "Tay Pay" arranged the meeting.

Soon after I arrived, there bustled into the room a short, broad-shouldered and full-chested man, with an aggressive and rather truculent countenance illumined by a pair of brilliant and fierce eyes set deeply under overhanging eyebrows. The size and hardness of his great head struck me.

It seemed enormous but was no dome of benevolence, reverence or kindliness.

It was an abnormally large head with all the sympathetic qualities flattened out. I am not now analyzing the man but giving my first impressions of his appearance.

He looked the part of the tiger—a man-eating tiger—who had hunted down ministry after ministry and rent them with his terrible claws.

He came into the room with short, quick steps. He was then 70 years of age and his greatest days were to come six or seven years later. We were introduced and he greeted me none too genially.

I was then chancellor of the exchequer and was doing my utmost to urge an understanding with Germany on the question of naval construction.

Clemenceau referred to my efforts with scornful disapproval. His hatred of Germany had the concentrated ferocity which I had never before seen even among the most violent of our British Germanopholes. Their hostility to Germany always seemed to be calculated—his was of the blood. Later on I understood it better.

My first interview with Clemenceau was not asked. He made it celar he thoroughly disapproved of me. Had I never seen him again, I should have disapproved of him. Had I never seen him again I should have recalled him as a powerful but disagreeable and rather bad-tempered old fellow. It was years—eventful years—after this meeting that I discovered his real fascination. His wit—his playfulness—the hypnotic interest of his arresting, compelling personality.

And a day was to come—sooner than anyone of us expected—where events occurred that explained to me his apprehension as to the menace as well as to his detestation of the arrogance of German imperialism.

I remember driving with him from the historic meeting at the Trianon Palace Hotel at Versailles after he had handed to M. Brockdorff Rantzan and the German delegates the draft of the peace treaty.

As we passed the ruins of the palace of St. Cloud, which had been burnt by the Germans in 1871, he told me how he remembered seeing the blaze.

He was the mayor of Montmartre during the seige of Paris, and from the heights of his mayoral domain he witnessed the destruction of the famous chateau.

That event seemed to have burnt itself into his memory even more than the scenes of hunger and privation to which he so effectively ministered. On this occasion, he spoke with unwonted placidity about the events of 1870, rather like a man in whom internal fires of revenge had at last been quenched by the cooling draft of victory.

FARM LEADERS MEET HOOVER IN PROSPERITY PARLEY

AGRICULTURE RALLIED TO AID TRADE

President and Representatives of Groups Go Over Plans to Increase Business

stock market de[illegible] he has obtained the promise of the industrial and financial leaders of the country to push full steam ahead with new projects, he has secured promises [illegible] wage cuts and no strikes during this readjustment period, has put the federal government in the vanguard of the recovery movement, energized the state governments to follow suit and, having pointed the way, he now feels it is up to business itself to carry on.

GENERAL CONFERENCE

After his meeting with the agriculturists today, the President will make one more appearance in the role of the engineer to business. Next week he will open a general business conference here, which has been arranged by the United States Chamber of Commerce and which will be attended by several hundred leaders in their respective fields. Thereafter, it will be up to the national and local chambers of commerce and the various trade organizations to keep things moving.

The President was greatly gratified today by the responses to his plea on Saturday to the governors of the 48 states to get behind and push on all public improvement projects. The government itself has set the example in this respect by increasing its building program by more than $200,000,000 for the next year, and Mr. Hoover envisioned the greatest splurge of public building the country has ever seen if the state governments would follow suit. Seventeen governors had replied to the President's telegram up to 10 o'clock this morning.

RESPONSES CONTINUE

The responses, still coming into the White House today, indicated that the states are getting into line. Ohio and New York are two states that have had in contemplation considerable building, and Governor Myers Cooper and Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt were among the first to assure the President, in response to his telegram, that the work was to be speeded up. Governor Allen, of Massachusetts; Governor Sampson, of Kentucky; Governor Fisher, of Pennsylvania; Governor Christiansen, of Minnesota, and Governor Leslie, of Indiana, were among the others to hasten their assurances of support of the President's program.

Although today's conference with the agricultural leaders ends the series of conferences which President Hoover has been holding, and although he plans to turn the problem of business maintenance back to business itself, Mr. Hoover will keep his finger on the industrial pulse of the country and from time to time give some advice.

RADIO TALKS HELP

The vast radio network of the country is to be used to this end. It already has been used extensively, since catapulting stock prices sounded the first note of alarm, and its utility has only begun to be appreciated.

Last night, for example, Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, went on the air with a summary of conditions as they have developed since President Hoover took a hand in the situation.

"It is immensely heartening," said Klein, "to know that the railways and utilities are going forward with large construction programs; that ample funds are available for legitimate business; that manufacturers are to proceed for the most part full speed ahead; that basic industries like that of steel will find unrestricted scope for their activities; that the agricultural outlook is distinctly better; that foreign trade activities are to be strengthened; that public works [illegible] sorts are to be steadily [illegible]uted by national, state [illegible]ty governments, affording [illegible]ment to thousands, and stimulating the demand for commodities."

These governmental talks on business are to continue. The President considers them of no small value in keeping up the business confidence of the country.

$25,000,000 Improvements Ordered by du Ponts

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—An expenditure over the next 12 months of more than $25,000,000 is involved in building projects, either under way or authorized, by the du Pont Company and its subsidiaries, officials have announced.

The building program is planned to meet the needs of the companies' varied manufacturing activities, which officials believe will continue to expand.

Of the amount involved, $16,000,000 will go to complete projects already under way, including the completion of the Rayon plants in the South, the Cellophane plant at Old Hickory, Tenn., a plant for the Viscoloid Company at Leominster, Mass., and expansions at Belle, W. Va., for the du Pont Ammonia Corporation.

Bell Company Authorizes $44,000,000 Work in State

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Leonard H. Kinnard, president of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, has announced that the company plans to spend $44,000,000 on construction projects in this state next year.

[illegible] is is $10,000,000 more, the announcement said, than the company had planned to spend before President Hoover began his move for the stimulation of business.

"From 1930 to 1934, inclusive," Mr. Kinnard said, "we will spend in Pennsylvania a total of $215,000,000 in new construction."

Gov. Cooper Orders Survey Of Ohio Improvements

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Gov. Cooper and his cabinet today began a survey of public work to be accomplished in the near future as a means of aiding President Hoover's plan to improve business conditions throughout the country.

The state leaders, after a long session, had an outline of a number of projects already ready for construction work. The conference pertained only to work to be done by state departments.

The Governor previously had asked County Commissioners and surveyors to meet here December 5 to discuss plans of counties for highway construction. He also sent a letter to mayors of all municipalities asking co-operation and a survey of public work to be accomplished within the next few months.

12,000 Rum Bibbers At Yale Game, Mayor Charges

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Declaring that at least 12,000 of the 60,000 spectators at the Harvard-Yale football game were more intent on liquor drinking than the football battle, Mayor Ralph S. Bauer today ordered Lynn police at the annual Lynn English and Lynn Classical High School game on Thanksgiving Day to stop the contest on the first exhibition of a liquor bottle.

"We will show the world a football game where reverence to the law will be displayed," said the mayor.

BELL TO SPEND MILLIONS HERE

A prospective $3,000,000 addition to the company's headquarters building in Seventh avenue is included in a $7,600,000 appropriation by the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania for improvements here in 1930, F. J. Chesterman, vice president, has announced. The addition is scheduled for completion early in 1931.

The company also plans erection of a new building at 719-735 Warrington avenue, to house the Lafayette and Hemlock exchanges.

The remainder will be used in erection of underground and aerial cables connecting the city's telephone plants. More than 14,000 new telephones will be added here in 1930, Chesterman predicts. This will bring the total well above the 244,000 mark.

More than $41,000,000 will be spent on improvements to the company's property here within the next five years, according to Chesterman.

GIRLS PLAN NEW REFUEL FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Bobbie Trout, Los Angeles flier, and Elinor Smith, of New York, today were grooming their ship for a possible third attempt to establish a new endurance refueling flight record. Their second attempt failed yesterday.

They took off at 1:26 p. m. yesterday, but flight officials ordered them down at dusk shortly after the refueling plane had made a successful contact. No explanation was given for calling off the flight.

The first start was made Saturday, but the fliers were forced to land after four hours in the air because of injuries suffered by Miss Trout when gasoline burned her face during refueling operations.

Another item of $180,000 for 58 additional firemen and 25 other employes in the fire bureau.

A third item of $29,000 for 12 additional employes in the bureau of building inspection.

Other cuts made by the Mayor include $53,000 for motor fire equipment; $110,000 for repairs to engine houses; $51,000 for motor equipment in the police bureau.

INCREASES

Increased appropriations recommended by the Mayor were:

Mayview Home and Hospital, $181,000.

Deficit for the 1929 garbage and rubbish account, $125,000.

Increase for garbage and rubbish in 1930, $150,000.

Deficit for the 1929 account with the South Pittsburgh Water Company, $30,000.

Increase in the 1930 account for that company, $60,000.

Bureau of engineering, $36,000.

Bureau of bridges and buildings, $21,000.

Bureau of tests, $32,000.

Water meter tests and repairs, $86,000.

Traffic planning bureau, $59,000.

Street lighting, $21,000.

FAVORS BOND ISSUES

Mayor Kline explained he had cut a number of department requests from the tax levy appropriation in the belief that they more properly should be financed by short term bond issues. The items:

Bridge repairs cut from $207,000 to $60,000.

New fire engine houses, relocation of an existing house and the reconstruction of two others, $222,000, all eliminated.

Traffic signal lights, cut from $421,000 to $243,000.

Extension of fire alarm system to Overbrook, parts of Mifflin Township recently annexed to the city, and making changes necessitated by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's improvements in Penn avenue, $45,000.

Fire alarm box replacement, cut from $20,000 to $10,000.

SEEKS ECONOMY

Mayor Kline stated that all the recommendations have been made with the thought in mind of conducting the city's affairs on a most economical basis.

The budget as presented represents great study and effort on the part of the executive branch of the administration to keep the cost as low as possible and at the same time provide all necessary service in a modern city.

Mayor Kline advised Council:

"In the consideration of this budget you may be assured that my department heads will be at your service to co-operate with you to the fullest extent to produce the lowest tax rate possible."

Gov. Fisher Calls on Cities For Improvement Plans

HARRISBURG, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—In response to President Hoover's request, Gov. Fisher today dispatched telegrams to heads of all municipal governments in Pennsylvania asking information concerning contemplated public improvements.

Pennsylvania will co-operate with President Hoover in his plan to improve nation-wide business condition, by "judiciously" distributing the fund voted by the last legislature for highway and public building construction, Gov. Fisher stated in a telegram to the President.

The telegram, replying to President Hoover, follows:

"I ha[illegible] to assure you that I shall do all in my power to carry into effect your comprehensive plans for the support of the business situation of the country and the relief of unemployed labor.

"The appropriation at the recent session of the Legislature makes possible in Pennsylvania a construction program for highways and public buildings of about $155,000,000. This will be judiciously distributed throughout the state, keeping in view labor conditions.

"I shall take immediate steps to ascertain from local authorities the extent of their plans for public improvements and shall urge full co-operation with the Federal government under your leadership. Details will be forwarded as requested as rapidly as they become available.

"I shall be most happy to work in full harmony with Secretary Lamont in furthering your great purpose to insure nation-wide prosperity."

$270,000,000 FOR ROAD AID PROPOSED

Highway Backers Urge Plan As Part of Hoover Program To Speed Up Business

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A $270,000,000 federal aid highway program for two years will be proposed by congressional good roads enthusiasts as a part of President Hoover's program to speed business, it was announced today.

The program, it was said, already has the backing of a large contingent in both Senate and House, and its sponsors are confident that the plan will succeed in the regular session beginning December 2.

Representative Cassius Dowell (Rep.), of Iowa, chairman of the roads committee of the House, will father the necessary legislation. He announced his committee will consider the plan promptly.

WOULD BOOST SUM

The new program would boost the annual federal aid appropriation to match state aid and to build forest roads and trails from $82,500,000 to $135,000,000 a year. At present $75,000,000 is appropriated annually to meet state aid and $7,500,000 for forest roads.

"There never has been as much pressure for the expansion of the federal aid highway system as at present," Dowell said. "It is far greater than at any time since I have been chairman of the roads committee. I have found no section of the country that is not anxious for expansion.

"There was more than a billion and a half dollars spent on all sorts of highway building last year. The states now are consuming more than the annual federal aid appropriation, because they are using up the balance of federal aid appropriations which have existed since the war slowed up work.

SUPPORT HOOVER

"It seems to me that extension of highway building is in line with the President's program. Few people can comprehend the enormity of the transportation on federal aid highways at present. It has advanced beyond all dreams, and we know now that it is just starting."

In addition, Dowell said, Congress must consider proposals for a Pan-American highway leading to South America and a new plan for a highway through British Columbia to Alaska, opening up a great area.

Other highway plans are being prepared for the coming session. Representative Holaday (Rep.), of Illinois, announced he would push his bill "for the creation of a federal express highway system throughout the nation, costing $2,000,000,000. Support for the plan is growing, he said.

OTHERS BACK MOVE

Senator Phipps (Rep.), of Colorado, and others are backing a movement to provide a more limited system of trans-continental express highways on which tolls would be collected until the cost is met.

The demand for federal highway expansion is reported by members of Congress returning from all sections of the country. Despite pictures of agricultural distress, most of them declare the farmers of the country are solidly behind the program.

One Illinois member pointed to the action of farmers in his district in issuing highway bonds in three townships, to provide roads which would connect them with the state hard-surfaced road system.

MINERS MOURN 5 ICE VICTIMS

JEANNETTE, Pa., Nov. 25.—Five boys who lost their lives in the season's first skating tragedy at Edna No. 2 mine, near here, Saturday, will be buried in a single grave tomorrow. They were drowned when thin ice broke.

Today in five little homes on a hillside overlooking the reservoir, covered with a skim of ice, friends and relatives gather in mourning.

Playmates visit first one house and then another as though, it seems, they cannot comprehend the fearful tragedy which has befallen their little friends.

Tomorrow, individual services will be held simultaneously in these saddened homes, and five mourning processions will merge into one, wending its way to the Irwin Catholic cemetery where one grave awaits the five little white caskets.

When school sessions resumed today these five names were stricken off the rolls:

John Chlaria, 12; Walter Lagisky, 10; Chester Lancuski, 10; John Eresh, 8, and William Goblesky, 11.

School board officials said there would be no school tomorrow.

In every home the tragedy was the sole topic of conversation.

"It might have been my boy," was the thought on many a mother's lips.

TARIFF FAILURE LAID TO HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Blame for the failure of the special session of Congress to enact tariff revision was deposited on President Hoover's doorstep today by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee.

Shouse summed up the situation from a Democratic viewpoint by describing Mr. Hoover as "a leader who refuses to lead."

Further, the chairman declared the Smoot-Hawley bill was of "indefinite character," that it failed to do justice to the farmers, the industrialists and the consumers in its original form and actually, had it been passed, "would have levied on the pocketbooks of the people of the United States to the extent of something like $900,000,000.

"Congress has adjourned with the Republican majority which accompanied Herbert Hoover into office shattered into fragments, each one of which represents the President's views," Shouse observed. "But why should a shattered army be blamed for the discomfit of a leader who refused to lead? Why blame even the senatorial old guard for failing to carry out the President's policies when nobody can more than guess at what those policies are?"

NAVAL FLIER DIVES 10,000 FEET, DIES

Pilot Unable to Pull Plane Out Of Terrific Dive; Ground Observer Sees Part Break

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Lieut. George T. Cuddihy, one of the Navy's experienced pilots, was killed today when the British Bristol Bulldog airplane he was testing crashed 10,000 feet in a dive and buried itself so far in the earth that only the feet of its pilot were visible above the plowed ground.

The Navy Department said later that structural failure was believed to have been responsible.

PARACHUTE UNOPENED

Persons at the air station estimated Cuddihy lost control of the ship at about 6,000 feet after the fall began.

It took navy enlisted men an hour and a half to extricate the crushed and torn body of the pilot from beneath the engine and mass of twisted wreckage in the hole dug by the crash. A power pump had to be used to clear water from the hole as the bluejackets dug.

Cuddihy's parachute was found strapped to his back, the release string apparently untouched.

Flying officers were perplexed over this, being unable to advance any reason why he had not attempted to jump, except that he might not have realized the ship was out of control until too late. The dive was deliberate for test purposes and apparently there had been ample time for use of the parachute.

The ship had been delivered to the Navy only last week. It was constructed to make 180 miles an hour with full military load, and was of the class of latest fighting ships used by the British air forces.

TERRIFIC DIVE

Air station officers said Cuddihy, specifically was testing the plane's diving speed. He had reached an estimated elevation of two miles before entering the dive, and when he attempted to draw out of the dive at about 6,000 feet they said, the ship refused to right itself and tore downward nose first, at terrific speed.

He was born at Alto, Mich., in 1896. His mother, Mrs. A. K. Cuddihy, lives at Grand Rapids, Mich.

In 1924 Cuddihy established a world record for seaplane speed at 188 miles an hour and the following year piloted a Navy plane in the Schneider Cup race.

Officers at the naval aid station said that as the plane careened downward a part of it broke away and fluttered off to land by itself. They were unable to say just what part had snapped. An investigation was started.

grave of the father and son near the ocean, looking out to the West.

ENGLAND buried William Pitt in Westminster Abbey, in the grave with his father, the Earl of Chatham, and someone asked:

"Did ever any grave contain such a father, such a son?"

Great men the two Pitts, but Clemenceau is greater than both. They wanted glory, honor. He wanted nothing, and the work done by him in his old age was more important to the world than all the work of both their lives.

ONE of the last to see Clemenceau alive was Monsignor De La Valette Montbrun, Bishop of Partibus, who called as an old friend and prayed for Clemenceau as he lay unconscious, never again to open his eyes. This will comfort millions, deeply religious, that love Clemenceau, saviour of France, and Clemenceau would not have refused to receive an old friend in his last hour, although he would not have accepted religious rites.

Like Herbert Spencer, he could not believe in a future life.

"We must accept that," said he, "as we find it."

Death he believed to be a dreamless sleep to be welcomed as we welcome natural sleep, at the end of each day.

MANY for his sake and his father's sake will hope that he was mistaken, that he understimated the goodness and justice of the power that creates men and puts in their souls a longing for immortality.

HOW it can be done, where it can be done, no man knows but the Clemenceaus, father and son, both dead at 88, should see and know each other again and not, through eternity, until the world dissolves, stand upright, lonely, in their Vendee graves.

THAT a human father and mother could create such a man as Clemenceau, and that a man, nearing ninety could do the work that he did, far surpasses in wonder any miracle necessary to continue life after death. Life is plentiful and easy. Courage and power are rare.

'SHRINE' CURE GIRL ON WAY TO CITY

Pittsburgh Cripple Walks Without Crutches After Visit, Telegram Says

Cecelia Matzie, 9, of Ambridge, crippled by infantile paralysis in babyhood, is coming back home from the grave of the Rev. Patrick Power cured, a telegram to the Matzie family today announced.

Taken to the Malden Cemetery on the outskirts of Boston, Mass., last week by her father, the girl is said to have limped on crutches to the grave of the priest. After a few minutes of prayer, she threw away her crutches and walked firmly without aid, a news dispatch said.

This dispatch was confirmed in a telegram sent by her father, Andrew Matzie, of 161 Maplewood avenue, Ambridge, today. Andrew Matzie, cousin of the girl, was so well pleased with the good report contained in his uncle's telegram that he called the Sun-Telegraph.

FAMILY OVERJOYED

While the cemetery has been closed by Cardinal O'Connell pending an investigation of alleged cures, the Matzie family is jubilant over the reported recovery of Cecelia. Father and daughter are expected to return to Ambridge within a few days.

Police Sergt. James Teets, of Pittsburgh, took his daughter, Lois, to the shrine last week. The girl after the visit declared she felt greatly improved.

SHRINE IS CLOSED

MALDEN, Mass., Nov. 25.—Holy Cross Cemetery lay deserted today.

In strange contrast to the frenzied thousands who, during the past few weeks jammed its grounds in one of the world's mightiest religious pilgrimages, all was quiet save for the activities of a handful of officials and workmen.

Sharply at midnight, on order of Cardinal O'Connell, the iron gates of the cemetery were swung to and locked, to be re-opened to cure-seekers only when, and if, the church, after an exhaustive examination, declares the 60-year-old grave of the Rev. Patrick Power possessed of miraculous healing powers. This means that the gates will remain barred to the public for some time, for out of the chaotic and inadequate reports of cures, three major examples of healing must be established to the satisfaction of the church before the tomb will be given consideration as a permanent shrine.

100 CURES REPORTED

More than 100 cures have been reported, an examination of cemetery officials' records showed. Here are two typical cases:

Harry Hoye, 28, of Joliet, Ill., both legs and left arm crippled seven years by arthritis, his case regarded as hopeless by physicians, was able to walk to the chapel from the grave. He left his crutches on the tomb.

Little Mary Tashco, 9, came all the way from Sacramento, Cal., with her father, Tony Tashco. She had been paralyzed in both legs for years. When she rose from prayer she walked several steps with her father's assistance.

Many automobiles from Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states arrived today, only to be turned away by the officers on duty.

Roy Gagli, at the risk of losing his job, he said, came from Detroit with two babies, Antoinette, 20 months old, and Roy, Jr., five months. Both babies have been crippled since birth.

The Detroit father was greatly disappointed when he found he could not visit the shrine.

150,000 BRAVE COLD

Despite Cardinal O'Connell's request that pilgrims refrain from visiting Father Power's tomb yesterday, some 150,000 braved the near-zero weather and cutting winds, for a farewell view of the tomb. Beginning early in the morning and continuing until late at night, long lines of the devout trudged slowly past the tomb. Many knelt and scooped handfuls of frozen earth from around the grave.

POLICE TAKE CARREN IN ROOMS

Plan to Baffle Pursuers by Renting 3 Apartments Fails—Prisoner Boasts

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 25.—Too many relatives and friends and a bragging complex led to the capture Sunday of Milton L. Carren, 43, who Friday disappeared at the same time $15,000 vanished from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in Pittsburgh, where he was employed.

Carren came to Chicago, where he has numerous friends and relatives. Pittsburgh police notified the detective bureau here and Carren was arrested shortly after his arrival.

According to Carren, who told his story at the detective bureau with calmness and apparent pleasure in making himself the leading character in a sensational crime, police say he came to Chicago Friday and met his old friend Leo Long, who lives at 6212 South Francisco avenue.

CALLS ON ALL RELATIVES

Carren told Long that he had made a great deal of money in Pittsburgh and wanted to invest in Chicago real estate. Long took him to a bank in Englewood where Carren placed $5,000 in cash in a safety deposit box. Then the two proceeded to call on all their friends and relatives.

Carren rented three rooms, one at 5816 South Spaulding avenue, another at 5912 South Francisco avenue and a third at 5958 South Sawyer avenue. This he considered to be a clever maneuver with which to baffle police. It wasn't clever enough, for the police arrested Long, and when Carren came to the room in Sawyer avenue last night he was taken into custody.

CAN'T UNDERSTAND ARREST

He told police that he received a salary of $65 a week in Pittsburgh.

"The Westinghouse Company has $500,000,000 in cash," he said, "I didn't think they would get sore about a few thousand being taken."

Carren's wife followed him to Chicago, and police learned he called her on the telephone Saturday at the house of a relative and had asked her forgiveness, which she refused him. He then told her he never would call her again.

Extradition papers will be requested and he will be returned to Pittsburgh.

"It's my first job," he said with apparent admiration for himself.

"And I got away with it pretty good. I sure showed my folks what a guy I am with money."

STATE FUNERAL FOR WARREN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The nation, mourning the loss of its oldest solon, will render fitting tribute to the passing of Senator Francis Emroy Warren, of Wyoming, only Union Civil War veteran in Congress, at a state funeral in the Senate chamber Tuesday, it was announced today, under honors especially befitting a dean of the American Congress and a holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

President Hoover will attend, as will members of the cabinet and Supreme Court.

As in life, where he spent 36 years in the Senate, so in death will Senator Warren "serve" beneath the Capitol's dome, with the body lying in state in the Senate chamber. The services Tuesday will be conducted there with all the solemnity and honor given a President in death. A delegation of senators, representatives and government officials will accompany the funeral party to Wyoming for the interment.

The veteran legislator died at 10 o'clock Sunday morning from bronchial pneumonia. He was stricken several weeks ago and his physicians thought him well on the road to recovery, when he suffered a relapse Saturday afternoon. He sank into a coma at dusk from which he never awakened. With him at the end were his sons, Frederick E. Warren, of Wyoming, and his son-in-law, Gen. John J. Pershing. He was 86 years old.

The passing of Warren will bring a tremendous upheaval in the management of Republican affairs in the Senate. The naming of a successor to him as chairman of the powerful Senate appropriations committee, which he headed from the end of the war down to his death, will ring far-reaching changes in committee assignments.

TWO RESCUED IN HOME FIRE

A man and his wife were rescued from the porch of their home in Mt. Lebanon early today when fire damaged the two-story brick and stucco dwelling.

They were Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Hamilton, trapped on the second floor when flames enveloped their home at 437 Meadowcroft avenue.

Clad only in night clothing, they climbed through a second-floor window onto the porch roof and shouted for help.

Neighbors ran from their homes. Lincoln L. Rosser, 440 Meadowcroft avenue, and his brother, Lloyd, ran up a ladder to the roof and helped the couple to safety.

Mt. Lebanon and Dormont volunteer firemen battled the flames for more than an hour while ice formed on their rubber coats and covered the streets.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Schade and Mr. and Mrs. P. Flynn, Meadowcroft avenue, neighbors, served hot coffee to the firemen.

Cause of the blaze, which started in the basement, was undetermined.

Fire Chief Edward Woods, of the Mt. Lebanon Department, estimated the loss at $10,000.

Congress' Only 'Gray' to Bury Warren, 'Blue'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Maj. Charles M. Stedman (Dem.), of North Carolina, 88, only survivor of the Confederate Army in Congress, today was named a member of the House committee to attend the funeral of Senator Warren, of Wyoming.

Senator Warren was the only Union veteran in Congress.

AVENGER PLANS TO KILL TRIBE

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, Mex., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Lust for revenge in the heart of Francisco Fimbres since the night three years ago when a band of Apache Indians killed his wife and abducted his small son, flamed today into plans for massacre of an entire band of about 25 Apache braves, women and children.

Fimbres, a Mexican cattleman returned here yesterday after a scouting expedition into the Sierra Madre Mountains.

Fortified high up among the peaks, in a lonely canyon, he found the remnants of the band which took from him his wife and son, he said.

Today, with friends, he planned to rescue his son, who he believes has been reared as a member of the tribe, and then to wipe out the entire band.

He has the approval of the Mexican government for the punitive expedition, which he hopes to lead when spring opens the mountain trails.

Raymond Hitchcock, 64, Stage Favorite, Dies

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Raymond Hitchcock, 64, actor and musical comedy favorite, died here suddenly early today from a heart attack.

The veteran actor and his wife, Mrs. Mangasarian Hitchcock, were returning to their Beverly Hills home from a short automobile trip. As they reached the driveway to their home Hitchcock gave a gasp and fell against his wife's shoulder. Death was believed to have been almost instantaneous.

Mrs. Hitchcock, whose stage name is Flora Zabelle, said her husband had been ill for seven months. He spent some time in Chicago, then moved to Colorado Springs, and also made a nine-week stay in Kansas City, undergoing treatment. He returned to Beverly Hills about three weeks ago.

Police announced no inquest would be necessary, as Dr. Robert W. Meals, who has attended Hitchcock, signed a certificate that death resulted from natural causes.

For many years Hitchcock occupied a leading position among the stage luminaries of America, his greatest successes having been in the field of musical comedy.

Born in Auburn, N. Y., October 22, 1865, he made his first stage appearance in 1890. After appearing in minor roles in many New York comedies, he scored highly in "King Dodo," a fantastic musical play, in which he portrayed the title role for two years.

His first real starring vehicle was as Abijah Booze in "The Yankee Consul," in which he toured the country after a prolonged run in the Broadway Theater, New York.

One of his most outstanding successes was scored in "Hitchy Koo," which was produced at the Cohan & Harris Theater in New York in 1917. This show was taken on an extensive tour of America, and later returned to New York for re-engagement.

His more recent efforts were in "The Old Soak" and "The Sap," in which he appeared in 1924.

Films in which he was featured included "Red Heads Preferred" and "Money Talks." He also appeared in other pictures during 1926 and 1927.

CITIES COMPETE FOR AIR ROUTE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—With more than a score of cities represented the Postoffice Department today opened hearings on the proposal for the establishment of a second transcontinental air mail route designed to give more adequate facilities to the southwest territory.

At the outset of the hearings Postmaster General Walter F. Brown in a brief speech explained that four routes are under consideration.

1—From New York to St. Louis, by way of Pittsburgh, and on through to the southwest section, via Tulsa, Okla., Texas and Arizona cities.

2—From New York to Atlanta via Birmingham, Jackson, Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex.

3—From New York to Atlanta by way of New Orleans, Houston, San Antonio and El Paso.

4—From Kansas City west in a more direct line, this being a variation of the proposed New York-Pittsburgh-St. Louis route.

Hearings have already been held by the department on the link from New York to Pittsburgh and St. Louis and a report is expected to be forthcoming soon.

The proposal to extend the service on to Southern California through the southwest came as an afterthought of the initial hearings, Postmaster General Brown explained.

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce sent a delegation, headed by Albert J. Stone, to represent their city's interests.

It was evident from the start today that a spirited fight has developed between the various cities included in the conflicting routes.

For 10 years Miller conducted a saloon in half of this double building. The other half was their eight-room home. The property was in Mrs. Miller's name.

On June 25 her husband, explaining that he needed funds temporarily, asked her to sign over the property, which she did, Mrs. Miller declares.

On July 2 he borrowed $5,000 on the property from his mother, Mrs. Genovefa Miller, of 2 Bon Vue street. He disappeared, according to the wife, July 4.

Weeks later the house was sold at auction to satisfy the note held by Miller's mother.

'RED' CONVICTS' APPEAL FAILS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court today refused to reconsider its recent action declining to review the conviction of Peter Muselin, Tom Zima and Milan Resetar at Woodlawn, Beaver County, Pa., in 1926, on the charge of violating the state sedition law.

They were convicted on the charge of advocating the overthrow of the government by force. The three were members and organizers of the Workers or Communist Party of America, and were sentenced to imprisonment for five years and a fine of $500.

The state charged they were drilling recruits, had collected dynamite and had distributed Communist literature.

The men challenged the validity of the state sedition law under which they were prosecuted, contending that it abridged their constitutional rights of freedom of speech.

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 25 (AP).—Among the candidates whose names have come before the committee which will award the Nobel Peace Prize is that of Frank B. Kellogg, former American secretary of state and co-worker with Foreign Minister Briand in bringing about the famous Kellogg-Briand renunciation of war pact.

Others being considered are Miss Elsa Brandstroem, Swedish Red Cross nurse, who is noted for her work among the war prisoners in Russia; Archbishop Nathan Soederblom, the most prominent Lutheran clergyman in Northern Europe and Hansen Noerroemoelle, Danish legislator and prominent political leader from pre-war South Jutland, which now belongs to Denmark.

Erich Remarque, the German author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," was mentioned as a candidate, but his name was not placed before the peace prize committee.

LABOR LEADER SLAIN BY RIVAL

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP).—Edward Tracy, union labor leader, was killed in a spectacular shooting that terminated celebrations of football victories at the Club Arlington, a cabaret, yesterday.

As the orchestra played a stirring college march, witnesses said, Melville Purves, boyhood companion and later business rival of the slain man, rose from an adjacent table and fired four shots into Tracy's head.

While panic-stricken patrons milled confusedly, Purves and three companions rushed from the night club, pursued by Sergt. Thomas McCaffery of the police department. The officer overtook Purves and his brother, William, after a chase through North Side streets. The others escaped.

Melville Purves, according to police, had borne ill feeling toward Tracy since the latter supplanted him as business agent of the Bulletin Board Hangers' union.

At headquarters, where the Purves brothers are held, it was learned that William had been released from Joliet penitentiary three years ago.

Police ordered the Club Arlington closed.

Nation's Workers Lose 250,000,000 Days Yearly

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—The 36,000,000 wage earners in the United States lose at least 250,000,000 work days yearly and the 24,000,000 school children 70,000,000 days per school year because of illness and physical and mental defects, according to a survey by the committee on the cost of medical care, submitted to its semi-annual conference here today.

The survey indicated men are, on the average, sick at least once a year, women and children somewhat oftener. Among adults a great majority suffer from some physical or mental defect. While a number of these defects are relatively unimportant, serious and dangerous conditions are found among considerable percentages of the people.

Almost 1,500,000 persons are employed in the United States in connection with the care and prevention of illness, the committee reported.

De Luxe Turkeys are selected by those nine Fox Brothers, the Turkey Men of America, from the cream of the flocks of 60,000 farmers in the great Northwest.

Only the cream of the many birds shipped are fine enough to earn the De Luxe trademark. Make sure that the turkey you buy is a De Luxe—it will cost but little more than an ordinary bird selected at random.

Each De Luxe Turkey is a young, fresh, hand-picked bird—raised, fed, dressed, packed and shipped according to the scientific, sanitary methods the nine Fox Brothers have been teaching their farmer-shippers for years.

Your Thanksgiving dinner is the one occasion on which you cannot afford to take a chance. Your best insurance against disappointment is a De Luxe Turkey—the best turkey sold in America.

Every De Luxe Turkey comes from the colder climates, where the finest birds are raised. Cold weather drives the turkeys indoors early and the scientific feeding methods in restricted quarters give De Luxe Turkeys a plumpness and tenderness that is rare indeed. Their flavor cannot be equalled!

To be absolutely sure of getting a De Luxe Turkey, place your order as soon as you can. Come and see these wonderful birds at your nearest DONAHOE Store—look for the De Luxe emblem—the trademark button that is your assurance of getting the most toothsome turkey that has ever graced your table.

Modern Art Needs Great Patrons, Says Painter

By PENELOPE REDD.

"MODERN art needs great patrons to nurture great artists. All we now have in the United States is art patrons for art dealers," said Leo Katz, the painter, who will give an illustrated lecture on "Modern Art and Modern Life" at 8:15 p. m. tonight in the Lecture Hall of Carnegie Institute.

Penelope Redd.

"A few intuitively great patrons have salvaged art from oblivion in the past," stated Katz. "To me, perhaps the most vital patron of art was Hendrickje Stoffels, the Dutch peasant girl who cared for the impoverished Rembrandt during his final years, providing sustenance while he produced his finest work.

"Consider Pericles, with all the treasures of Egypt at his disposal. He would not import dead monuments. He elected to confer the opportunity of creating what we regard as the essence of Greek beauty on Phidias and his Athenian colleagues. Or there appears again a native artist sponsored by an imaginative, powerful compatriot in Lorenzo di Medici advancing the young Michael Angelo.

"RECENTLY a great patron was revealed in that unknown Mexican politician who seized upon Diego Riviera and set him loose to do mural paintings which have made articulate the Mexican peon, silent through centuries. The nearest approach that I have discovered to a true art patron in America is Alfred Stieglitz, who nurtured John Marin.

"At a great personal sacrifice, he insured a living for Marin that the painter might produce, unhampered. All of these artists, protected by sympathetic patrons, have painted pictures of their own time, free from extraneous influence."

Leo Katz has painted portraits, diverse in style, of many famous American men, women, and their children. He has lately completed a group of paintings done in Glacier National Park including both portraits of Indians and landscapes, impressive in their grandeur.

"The desire for knowledge as an aid to develop discernment in modern art," said Leo Katz, "has increased like the fervor of a crusade. The lectures on contemporary art and the modern exhibitions in New York are thronged."

Leo Katz, the only painter to speak at the Carnegie Institute on the current International Exhibition, has the power to impart stimulating ideas in expressive language. His will be the final lecture of the international series.

Ship Mutiny SOS Sent by Crazed Operator

VALETTA, Malta, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The wireless operator on the British steamer Baron Elcho who started four destroyers rushing to his aid, when he sent out S O S calls last Thursday saying an attempt was being made to murder him, has been removed in custody to the destroyer Witch.

The master of the Baron Elcho said the operator still maintained everybody was trying to poison him. He was found last night hiding in a ventilator.

The Witch with the three other destroyers that answered the S O S calls headed back to Malta.

Clemenceau By Lloyd George

There ... of which ... tion, ... and ... where ... from ... to report ... ture ... the ... triumph ... the ... deleg ... the ...

Tears of Defeat

Tears ... Clemenceau's eyes—... in my ... he describ ... in atten ... harshness ... broke down ... and wept.

I tho ... something of Clemenceau's ... of the Germans. ... only invaded France ... armies, occupied ... humbled her pride, ... of victory had ... an insolence which for 50 years had rankled in the heart of this brave old patriot.

When I met him at Carlsbad the ... it was stunning him into ... He was essentially an angry old man. ... those who read his relentless words on the death of Herr ... Berlin will know that not even victory had completely stamped out the embers of vengeance in the bosom of this terrible volcano of rumbling and surging ... personal, national political and religious.

Courageous

That he should have succeeded as war minister is not a matter of surprise. He possessed a relentless energy, indomitable courage and the gift of infecting others with his own combativeness and confidence. I know nothing of his qualities as an administrator or organizer. The greatest tasks of organization were over before he took office at the end of 1917. A combination of energy, courage and common sense were needed at that hour and he possessed these three attributes in an exceptional degree.

As for his courage, there is no better illustration of it than the story which is told of him when it was proposed that the Chamber of Deputies should move to Bordeaux at the beginning of the war.

The Germans were within a few miles of Paris, and the president and senators thought it better to get out of the range of the German guns ere it was too late. Clemenceau refused to go, and when asked whether he did not think they ought to leave Paris, his answer was:

"Yes, we are too far from the front."

France's Wise Man

His courage was never questioned by even his bitterest foes but they were not as ready to acknowledge his wisdom. When he was not in a passion or when his personal prejudices were not engaged—and he had his lucid intervals of composure—he took as sane, sensible and penetrating a view of the situation as any man I ever met.

During the peace negotiations he was the coolest and wisest man in the whole of France. He rejected—at great risks—most of the looting and vindictive counsels that always follow victory. He defied Marshal Foch—the great victorious general of the war—over the traditional French policy of a Rhine frontier for France. He always disliked and distrusted Marshal Foch.

He rendered no assistance to the move that placed Foch in supreme command of the Allied troops. Marshal Petain was his man. This dislike was thoroughly reciprocated by Foch.

The Cynic

Only those who were present at the deliberation and the maneuver that preceded the drafting of the treaty will know how resolutely he opposed all the proposals to insert in the treaty demands for impossible figures of reparation.

He agreed to the postponement of the figure until 1921 in the hope that by then it would be easier to fix a reasonable sum.

At the conference itself he kept his temper well under control. One only saw how furiously he could rage when one saw him take some trembling official or colleague into a corner of a room to pour upon him hot cinders of hissing wrath.

By conviction and temperament he was an inexorable cynic. He had no belief in the ultimate victory of right. His belief was that history demonstrated clearly that in the end might invariably triumphed over abstract justice. In fact as he once put it bluntly in the course of a conversation: "Might was right."

His faith was in organized and well directed force.

Amused at League

It was in the interest of humanity that strength should prevail over weakness, one of the most piquant passages of arms between himself and President Wilson was one in which he reminded the American idealist that the United States of America would have never come into existence without force, and that only for force it would have fallen to pieces 60 years ago.

He regarded the League of Nations with tolerant amusement. He came to the conclusion that President Wilson's pre-occupation with it helped to keep him out of mischief. It could do no harm and was very useful for bargaining purposes. So he ... Peace Conference that ... had ... on some time that as he ... He ... meet ... Rhineland, the German ... disarmament and other questions ... with ... at Paris.

... I said that the ... was political ... self-deprecation. It was a ... Clemenceau, that had never been ... to appear except on the ... He ... Wilson was ... so much for him at Paris ... The real duel ... was ... to kill but to disarm. President Wilson went home with no visible wound but with his sword snapped at the hilt. This is not the place to consider who won the more permanent triumph, but there is no doubt as to the combatant who scored the immediate success.

Persuaded Wilson

Col. House tells the story of how Clemenceau at a private interview with the President persuaded him to agree to the terms which he had hitherto resisted with an appearance of stubborn resolution. These secret conferences occurred at the time when I had been forced to return to England to deal with a parliamentary revolt against the concession of moderate peace terms to Germany.

When I got back to Paris I found to my astonishment that President Wilson had entered into a compact with Clemenceau which was almost a complete surrender on the part of the former. So complete was the change in the attitude of President Wilson that in the end I found him fighting with the whole British delegation to retain in the draft of the treaty conditions which he had regarded with horror when he first came to Paris with his ideals untarnished.

After this there was a marked change in the feelings of Clemenceau toward President Wilson. Before that he viewed the President with a great dislike and with much apprehension. After that President Wilson was to him a source of constant diversion. He listened to his idealistic outbursts with a quizzical smile but only after the arrangements had sterilized them.

Felt Defeat Deeply

The last time I saw him as Prime Minister was after the defeat of his candidature for the presidency of the republic. It was for him a defeat accompanied ... All for France

Apropos of his defeat by M. Deschanel in the contest for the presidency, there is a very good story told of a duel he fought before the war with his successful rival. It is related that the fight took place in a garden somewhere in the suburbs of Paris. They fought with swords. Clemenceau was a very formidable swordsman and as he pressed his opponent, the latter retreated further and further from the threatening weapon. At last Clemenceau got tired of this continuous retreat and putting his sword under his arm, wiping his hand, and with a bow toward M. Deschanel, he said, "Monsieur is leaving us."

He was the greatest French statesman—if not the greatest Frenchman—of his day. He was in every fiber of his being a Frenchman. He had no real interest in humanity as a whole. His whole concern was for France. As long as France was humbled, he cared not what other peoples were exalted. As long as France was victorious, he did not worry in the least about the tribulations of any other country. To him France was all in all. When he began in public life, he found his beloved country humiliated to the dust. When he ended his career, he left France the most powerful state on the continent of Europe—largely through his exertions.

Clemenceau Burial Rites Simple, Impressive

the supervision of his faithful chauffeur, Francois Brabant, who had been entrusted with the task of carrying out his master's orders for the simplest funeral ever accorded a national figure in the history of France.

Among the 10 was his valet, Albert. Another was Isnard, the gardener of the Tiger's cottage at St. Vincent-Sur-Jard, where Clemenceau had spent most of his declining years.

Twenty members of his family watched the burial. There were no speeches, no eulogies. No black-robed representative of the church was there to utter blessings. Clemenceau had stipulated he should die and be buried "without benefit of clergy."

The entire burial ceremony lasted but 12 minutes. Slowly the family of the dead leader filed by the grave, and then his retainers. His grandson Michel dropped a small bouquet, the only floral offering with the exception of a single rose placed tenderly on the mound by Isnard. It was a bloom plucked from one of the bushes Clemenceau had tended with loving care during his last stay at St. Vincent.

TRIBUTE OF TEARS

"Adieu, mon maitre," the gardener said, with tears in his old eyes. And these were virtually the only words spoken during the fifth of an hour it took to place the body beyond view of earthly eyes.

There was only one touch of colorful ceremony in the whole proceeding. This was the presence of a military guard of honor stretching along the little-traveled road from Colombier to Moucharnps. Composed of infantry and cavalry, the soldiers stood at rigid attention while the casket was borne by on the shoulders of the modest pallbearers. They had strict orders to prevent anyone from approaching the grave, and they obeyed.

But after Clemenceau had been laid to rest, the ban was lifted, and a little group of 50 or 60 peasants from neighboring towns, many of them beneficiaries of the Tiger's anonymous philanthropies, flocked to the little grave to gaze upon the mound of earth beneath which he lay.

PHOTOGRAPHERS ON HAND

Clemenceau's grave is situated on a little wooded slope, the property of the community, to which the Tiger had regularly paid 200 francs (about $8) yearly for the care of his father's resting place. The double plot is surrounded by a small wire fence.

With one exception, the funeral might have been that of a fatherless peasant instead of the man who led France to victory in the World War. This was the presence of news photographers whom the authorities tried in vain to prevent from taking pictures of Clemenceau's burial.

Thus, although he wanted to slip away silently, unobserved, forgotten, one of the scientific wonders of this modern day hunned for all posterity a simple scene that will live forever in the minds of those who witnessed it.

CORTEGE MOVES BY NIGHT

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Georges Clemenceau found eternal rest today, as he wished, in the loneliness of a little wood of his beloved Vendee. His body was removed from his Paris home in the dead of night. His grandson and valet rode in the driver's seat of the hearse, which was followed by other cars bearing a few relatives.

Clemenceau's instructions for the funeral were clear and laconic, written on a single sheet of paper given to his executor.

"Lay me beside my father," he wrote. "On my tombs place the stone from ancient Hellas that I brought back from Greece with me. There is to be no inscription. Also place in the coffin the little box which is on the top shelf of my closet and my cane and a few flowers from the trenches that I picked and kept."

All of his wishes in regard to his funeral were carried out.

ALL FRANCE PAYS HOMAGE

As the simple ceremony was taking place far to the south, the "cannon of the armistice" boomed out in a salute of 101 shots, just as it did on that memorable eleventh hour of the eleventh day of November, 1918, when the World War hostilities ended.

And in answer to that salute, every artillery battery on French territory, every warship of France boomed out, just as they did when armistice was declared.

The guns gave notice to Paris that Clemenceau's body had been lowered to its last resting place, and good Frenchmen raised their hats in salute.

Under the leadership of Premier Andre Tardieu and President Ferdinand Bouisson, the Chamber of Deputies paid tribute in a solemn session to the dead tiger. Not a single Communist was present, but nearly all the other seats were occupied.

Speaking from the tribune that was the scene of many of Clemenceau's own triumphs, Premier Tardieu paid his former leader an impassioned tribute.

M. Tardieu said that he could best render homage to Clemenceau by seeking in his career an inspiration for the future of France, and he appealed to the French people to labor incessantly for the development and progress of their country.

Next Sunday those veterans of the war whom Clemenceau called "my children" will pay him homage. They will silently file past the grave of the unknown soldier, symbol of the country's dead.

DEATH MASK MOLDED

While hundreds of notables filed past the bier at the "Tiger's" Paris home, Francois Sicard, French sculptor, molded a death mask at the family's request.

Rene Godard, the painter who made a picture of Marshal Foch after the latter died last spring, also sketched the features of the departed leader as they reposed in death.

One great wartime figure, former Premier Poincare, who was President when Clemenceau was Premier, was unable to make a personal call because of his own dangerous illness recently.

NEW TAX RATES HIT EARNED INCOMES

Effect of 'Make-Shift' Slash To Be Slight in Salaries of $10,000 a Year or Under

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A study of the government's $160,000,000 income tax reduction plan has disclosed that it will grant no substantial relief to salaried professional and business people in the moderately high income groups.

And as the plan is intended to be for only one year, unlimited, it is to be put through Congress promptly next month in the form of a resolution already approved by leaders of both parties.

The reduction, which is a make-shift both as to its end and prospects, sharply altered by the recent collapse of the stock market.

It will greatly reduce the tax paid by all wage-earners and salaried and professional people with incomes of less than $10,000 a year.

In the highest brackets the effect will be slight. The 5 per cent maximum normal tax will be cut from 5 per cent to 4 per cent. The surtax, which becomes increasingly heavier as incomes rise above the $10,000 level, will be unchanged.

LOSS IN STOCK SLUMP

Originally the administration planned a much larger reduction of taxes. It is known that a special reduction of taxes on earned incomes was to be included in this. President Hoover, Secretary Mellon and others already had indorsed the principle of lightening the burden upon those whose incomes are earned by their own efforts, rather than obtained from property and capital. In fact they had publicly gone on record in favor of the plan.

When the stock market crashed in October it became clear to the Treasury that enormous losses would be incurred by speculators who sold their stocks, or were sold out by their brokers. These losses will be deducted from their incomes, and hence will reduce the amount of the tax they pay in 1931.

For weeks it appeared doubtful whether any reduction would be sanctioned by the Treasury. Finally it was decided that if the reduction were limited to 1929 incomes, on which taxes will be paid in 1930, it would be entirely feasible. The Treasury was to be left free to recommend, a year hence, either a continuance of the lower rates or a return to the rates now existing.

SURTAXES STAND

On this basis President Hoover, Mr. Mellon, Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills and the financial committee leaders on both parties in both houses of Congress agreed upon a reduction.

The form they ultimately agreed upon was a level reduction of one per cent in the corporation tax rate and each of the normal tax rates paid by individuals.

This made unnecessary any revision of the revenue laws, and was considered virtually to eliminate the possibility of conflicts and delays, which would be harmful to the stabilization of business.

Under the plan as projected and agreed upon, a married man with an income ranging up to $7,500 would pay about a third of the tax he now pays. The taxpayer with an income between $7,500 and $10,000 would pay less than two-thirds of the tax he now pays. For incomes above that figure normal taxes would be reduced, in general, about one-fifth, but there is no change in surtaxes, which in fact cut heavily into the incomes of professional people who have only a few years of high incomes, as a rule, after which their opportunities diminish. Another point is that corporations can make reductions for depreciation, while the individual cannot.

The present 25 per cent credit on earned incomes, a part of the revenue laws, would continue to operate under the new plan.

The corporation tax rate would be reduced from 12 per cent to 11 per cent.

Hundreds Sign Petitions For Income Tax Cut

Favorable response has been given by the people of Western Pennsylvania to the petition to government authorities at Washington urging a reduction of 50 per cent in the tax rate on earned incomes below the rate on unearned incomes.

Petition forms printed in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph have been filled out and returned today in every mail delivery. These will be forwarded to Washington. The petitions contain a resolution addressed to President Hoover, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and to Congress.

The first petition received came from W. A. Evans, a locomotive engineer, of Scottdale, Pa., and contained the signatures of several railroad men. Other signers in early petitions were Frank Brown, mechanic, of Greensburg; William Steffan, fireman, of Youngwood; Harry Younkin, coal dealer, of Owensdale, and others.

The resolution:

To His Excellency, the President of the United States of America.

To the Honorable the Congress of the United States of America.

Whereas, the earned income of an individual is derived from his labor and creative faculties, which are subject to rigid limitations, fluctuations and serious depreciation, while the income from property is a permanent and stable income, it seems inequitable to tax earned incomes on the same basis as incomes from property and invested capital without taking depreciation into consideration; and

Whereas, an earned income is comes the measure of value of services rendered by the worker to the community and an unearned income is the measure of value of the protection and other benefits received by an individual of the community; and

Whereas, to tax earned incomes heavily is to penalize thrift and industry and is a direct tax on labor and tends to retard enterprise and achievement, therefore

Be it resolved, that we, the undersigned, call these facts to the attention of the President, the Secretary of the Treasury and Congress, in order to secure a reduction of 50 per cent in the tax rate on earned incomes below the tax rate on unearned incomes.

Two Sharon Stores Damaged by Flames

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Fire of undetermined origin swept through the J. M. Wilson and Sons furniture store and the Shontz & Myers men's clothing store here, causing damage which the store owners estimated at $75,000. Most of the damage was done to stock in both stores, the buildings being only slightly damaged.

Sharon Man Held, Shortage Charged

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A. H. Liston, 28, of Sharon, Pa., was ordered held in $2,600 for grand jury action on an embezzlement charge. Liston, branch manager for a sewing machine company, was arrested by Wetzel county authorities last week when his company complained that his accounts were short $200.

WOMAN HURT IN TAXI PLUNGE

Mrs. Dorothy Lane, 27, of 1407 Wright way, suffered a fractured skull when a taxicab in which she was riding plunged down a 20-foot embankment at Arlington avenue near Clover street, early today.

Three men, including the driver, were arrested by South Side police on charges of being suspicious persons. They were W. D. Wright, 24, of 125 South Seventeenth street, the driver, and William Derrick, 30, and Paul Hoerr, both of 113 South Sixteenth street, passengers with Mrs. Lane.

At the hospital the injured woman told police that they were returning from a place at 1003 Greb street, known as the "Wine Garden," they said. Later Capt. D. A. Hennessey and Lieut. Thomas Gross with a squad of men raided the place and arrested Cecelia Musiln, 50, and three visitors. The woman was charged with keeping a disorderly house.

She was fined $100 with the alternative of serving 60 days in the workhouse by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court. Wright, Derrick and Hoerr were discharged. James Hugh, 37 Amanada avenue, a visitor, was fined $5. Two others were discharged.

'Burglar' Found Sleeping in Kitchen

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 25.—John Hamadu, 40, of Wheatland, was enjoying himself in the kitchen of the Ward Longwell home, when Mr. and Mrs. Longwell returned home and captured him. He is being held by police, who claim he was intoxicated.

Three Longwell children were asleep and did not hear the man enter through a cellar window.

New Gas Strike In Greene County

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 25.—Another good gas strike has been reported in Greene County, near the Holbrook section, 10 miles west of Waynesburg, where the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company have secured a well which is said to have a production of 300,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

The strike was made in the Gordon sand. The well is located on the W. H. Moore farm.

Christmas Savings Funds Showing Loss

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 25.—Christmas savings funds in this city will show a decrease for the first time since this method of accumulating holiday funds was established. The amount to be distributed is $239,883, a decrease of $56,930.24. Individual accounts this year totaled 4,769, a decrease of 995.

STUDENT ENDS LIFE OVER GIRL

OMAHA, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—With a revolver clutched in his right hand, Robert Detweiler, 22, son of a prominent Omaha family and junior law student at Creighton University, was found dead early in his automobile on a road near the western limits of Omaha. He had been shot in the head.

After an investigation, county officers said they believed the youth committed suicide because the girl he loved had refused to marry him until he completed his law course.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure overlies the southeastern states, with its crest over Eastern Tennessee, while a low pressure area of considerable intensity is centered over Manitoba and extends southward over the plains. Pressure is also high over the Pacific Coast states. This distribution of pressure is causing rapidly rising temperatures throughout the central valleys with southerly winds. There was rain in Southern Texas during yesterday and last night and light amounts along the Atlantic coast and over the Canadian Border states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 3.3 feet; Lock No. 7, 12.0; Pittsburgh, 12.6; Dam No. 2, 9.3; Dam No. 6, 10.0; Dam No. 9, 10.9; Dam No. 12, 8.9; Dams Nos. 4 and 5 are up. The other dams will be raised today.

Shannon Carmen Hold Dance Tonight

78 PIANOS LOANED FREE

Seventy-eight Pianos (Grands, Players and Uprights, both new and used instruments), will be placed in homes of Pittsburgh and vicinity and they may be used until we need them—which will be an indefinite time. We have discontinued eight of our large branch stores, and are placing these instruments in our "Frederick's Annex," located at 915 Liberty Avenue. Instead of storing and holding these pianos for the regular price, we are going to slaughter the prices and take our loss now. If you have ever thought of buying a piano, now is the time. We do not wish to place our instruments in storage and all Pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families who are interested in owning a piano in the immediate future, and for the valuable advertising we will receive by having good families use them. We reserve the right to select the homes in which these pianos are to be placed.

Positively No Charge For Anything

No cartage, no rent or any expense whatever. You must call at the store to make your selection. There are no strings to this offer, which comes but once in a lifetime

20 Flee, 3 Saved From Hotel Flames

RUMFORD, Me., Nov. 25.— (AP.)—Twenty guests were forced into the street and three women were rescued from windows as fire broke out late last night in Hotel Rumford, a five-story building.

The fire, started in one of the lower hotel rooms, spread rapidly up through all five stories to the roof.

MUSSIN, NOTED VIOLINIST, DIES

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.— (AP.)—Ovide Mussin, concert violinist and composer, died of a heart attack yesterday at his home in Brooklyn. He was 75 years old.

Born in Nandein, a suburb of Liege, Belgium, Mussin was admitted to the Royal Conservatory at Liege at the age of 8 years. He was graduated with the highest distinction and went to Paris with his instructor, Henri Leonard. In 1891 he married Annie Louise Hodges-Tanner, a coloratura soprano of New York City, and together they made two world tours in 1892 and 1897.

Mussin made his American debut with the New York Symphony Orchestra in 1883. He appeared with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and later appeared with his own concert company in the leading cities of the United States, Canada and Mexico.

He toured widely as a soloist in Europe and was made an officer of the Order of Leopold, officer of Public Instruction of France and Holland, and in 1899 was made special virtuoso professor of violin, Royal Conservatory at Liege, by appointment of King Leopold. He resigned that position in 1908 and came to New York to found the Belgian Conservatory of Music in Brooklyn, which he had since conducted. His wife died several years ago.

Robber Killed 'Shooting Out' Holdup

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.— (AP.)—A robber was killed last night when he stopped after his two companions deserted him, to shoot it out with one of the players in a card game the three had attempted to rob in an upper East Side hall.

A bullet from the robber's revolver struck Antonio Lanza, one of the card players, in the left side of the head. At a hospital his condition was pronounced critical.

The slain holdup man was known in the neighborhood as the Jap. He later was identified as Anthony Moffia, chauffeur and barber.

PLAN TRIBUTE TO SUFFRAGIST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.— (AP.)—A memorial meeting in honor of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, British feminist, will be held in the United States capital during the annual convention of the National Woman's Party to be held here December 6-9.

An "international dinner" will be given December 7. Business sessions dealing with the plans for national and international work for "equal rights" will be held on the opening day.

WILSON, HORST STAGE DEBATE ON DRY LAW

Claims of Churchman for Prohibition Refuted by Opponent in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. — Before a large audience in the grand ball room at the Hotel Astor, and a still larger audience tuned in on WOR, the Rev. Clarence True Wilson and E. Clemens Horst debated the question of prohibition.

No formal attempt to select a winner was made. The sympathies of a majority of the audience were openly with Horst, ardent foe of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Dr. Wilson, coming from his stronghold in Washington, declared at the outset that he was in enemy territory and said that "prohibition has never been given a fair chance in New York."

HALTED BY LAUGHTER

The fiery secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church was interrupted by laughter at the opening of his argument when he said:

"Prohibition has done more than anything in the history of this republic to clean up politics, giving us a chance to vote for decent men."

Pausing until there was quiet, he added.

"That may be a joke in New York, but the thing is coming this way."

Horst characterized Dr. Wilson's assertion that prohibition had increased American prosperity as "pure bunk" and encountered another interruption of laughter when he said:

"If Dr. Wilson will verify the figures I gave him he will find from 1920 to 1927 the national budget of the United States decreased by $135,000,000,000, official figures—and there has been another little shrinkage in the last few months.

100 SPEAKEASIES NEAR

As a further challenge to Dr. Wilson, after the conclusion of the debate, Horst offered to pilot him to 100 speakeasies within a block of the platform from which they were speaking. He made the reservation, however, that the divine would not take advantage of the opportunity to turn over a list to the authorities. Dr. Wilson did not accept the challenge.

In his rebuttal Dr. Wilson quoted half a dozen familiar passages from the Scriptures admonishing against the evils of strong drink. In reply Horst brought this information from his own California precinct:

"The wine-grape acreage has more than doubled in California—more than three times as much wine being made now as ever before prohibition, and with the full help of the federal government. In fact there are 1,200,000 tons more of grapes now being grown in California than the year before prohibition. The phrase in the Bible that does not become appropriate is this: 'The people of the streets are crying for wine; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone.'"

MUSIC

Yost String Quartet

PROGRAM

Quartet, Op. 51, No. 2 ..... Brahms
Etching ..... Gaylor Yost
Scherzo ..... Fritz Kreisler
Piano Quintet, Op. 44 ..... Schumann

The Pittsburgh Chamber Music Society presented the Yost String Quartet in its opening concert yesterday afternoon. The Schenley ballroom was crowded with music lovers who speculated on what Harold Bauer might accomplish with the quartet when he added his authority during the last number. Everyone came away with a smile of satisfaction.

J. Fred Lissfelt.

The program was most conservative but not without contrasts. The Brahms work is a beautiful but ponderous example of the best and the difficult from this composer. It is ruggedly imposing; the quartet studied this music with too light a tone, and played for a pleasant fluence rather a dashing virility.

Gaylord Yost's original "Etching" is a miniature in pastel, scored interestingly for each of the instruments and not without a fine melodic line. Kreisler's "Scherzo" is well-known and must have had its inspiration from the same Viennese source as Strauss' "Rosenkavalier."

The Schumann [illegible]nte is generously laden with unusual musical ideas, all spoken in the language of a composer who found his best medium of expression in this kind of writing. While Harold Bauer's art as a pianist was never for one moment disguised under the tone of the quartet of strings, he impressed us again in this performance as an ensemble player of superior excellence. By means of his variety of color he simulated each mood of the quintet with utmost vigor, and obscured his own personality to the advantage of Schumann.

The strings must have learned that they had undreamed of tone and rhythmic precision while playing with Bauer, for never in the history of the Yosts have they responded to such an inspired performance.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

WCAE Gives Out Contract For New Transmitter

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

CONTRACTS will be let today for the construction of WCAE's new 1,000 watt transmitter which officials hope to have on the air before December 15.

Announcement of WCAE's raise in power and new transmitter, first printed in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph seven weeks ago, was confirmed by J. L. Kaufman, new manager of the station, following the Federal Radio Commission's "O. K." Saturday.

The new transmitter will improve both the quality and range of WCAE. It will be located in the Gimbel warehouse on the South Side, replacing the 500-watt transmitter now being used. Some changes are contemplated in the antenna layout and approximately five miles of conduit wire will have to be laid before the new WCAE takes the air.

The latest type of microphone, 60B, will be part of studio equipment.

We Now Present

Santa Claus will have to do more than chuckle when he sees the batch of requests awaiting him at local radio stations. A battleship, several airplanes, an elephant, ponies, clothes pins, wash tubs, slickers, red shoes—are a few things his "brownies" must get to work on.

Radio Ralph has taken on a new personality—that of "Uncle Oswald" in the Gimbee family.

ONE ALONE:
It is still "Walter G. Myers speaking" at KDKA—and in this respect Walter is absolutely original, the only announcer in America who does not say "So and So announcing."

Football fans want the Pitt-Penn State game broadcast—and they don't mean maybe—if we are to judge by our mail and calls received at local stations.

Hartman Rouse, 210 Gregg street, Monongahela, and Russell Heinz, 1347 Montezuma street, get Stanley passes for the best letters sent Radio Ralph last week.

Arthur Allen, heard as "Gus" in the Schradertown Band, spends every week-end with his mother in Buffalo. His mother is 81.

Will Osborne, the new CBS artist who is having a little argument with Mr. Vallee, once played the drums in a high school orchestra.

TODAY'S TID BIT:
A battery radio set, five years old and owned by Capt. Earnest J. Pearce, of Fall River, Mass., has survived two shipwrecks and has played music in almost every port on the globe.

LYRIC WRITER FOR FLICKS CALLED FROM $400 JOB TO ONE AT $100

By DOROTHY HERZOG

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 25.

HIS name is Al Dubin. He's 35. He's rated one of the best lyric writers in the flicks. He wrote the lyrics for the songs in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," "Sally," et cetera.

About a year ago Al was rocketing around New Yorks Tin Pan Alley. Some time before that a young chap came to New York named Gene Austin. He didn't have much kale, but what with this and that rose in the song racket until he was rated a big recording artist and a song publisher for both. Austin is a millionaire today. Not

Al Dubin knew Austin during the struggle and the happier days. He even wrote lyrics for his kampus, and twelve months or so ago signed a three-year contract with him for $100 a week.

A few days later Warner Brothers offered Dubin $400 a week if he would come to Hollywood and write lyrics for their vocalions. Al went into a huddle with Austin, and Austin agreed to postpone his contract with him for a year.

Little Home In the West

So Dubin together with his wife and youngsters traipsed West. And made good with a bang. So good that he has received an offer of $800 a week to sign with another flick kumpny.

In the meantime, word is received from Austin to report for work in February. Dubin will receive the salary stipulated in that contract—$100 a week, as against the $800 offered him here.

The touch part of this—quite apart from the do-re-me angle—is that Al has bought a lil' home in Glendale. To protect his family, he recently took out a large insurance policy.

According to the story given this bureau, Austin propositioned to release Dubin from his contract, provided Warner Brothers gave him a cut-in on the songs written.

"R. U. R." ALSO COMEDIES IN BILLS

"R. U. R." will be seen in the Nixon tonight as the third production of the New York Theater Guild season in that playhouse. Earl Larrimore and Sylvia Field will appear in leading roles. The company will give a special Thanksgiving matinee performance of "Marco Millions."

"Pleasure Bound," with Jack Pearl, Phil Baker, Aileen Stanley and Shaw and Lee heading the large roster of artists, comes to the Shubert Alvin for a one-week engagement, opening tonight. Matinees will be given Thursday (Thanksgiving), and Saturday.

In the Shubert Pitt tonight the George Sharp Players will offer a comedy of stage life, "The Shannons of Broadway," with Harland

MR. BUZZELL IN ENRIGHT WINS RACE

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Eddie Buzzell, whose small stature is balanced by a talent for entertaining, is one of the latest stage personalities to reach the screen. He came riding into the Enright Saturday for a week's engagement in the talk film version of George M. Cohan's stage success, "Little Johnny Jones." And "riding" is the word, for Mr. Buzzell, in the title role, is seen as a jockey.

At first, a small-town fellow, his ability at speeding horses over the ground wins him an opportunity to go to New York. Which he does. And in six months—as time is figured in the movies—he is the toast of Broadway and the boy friend of a starring actress. So the home-town girl, for there is one, is forgotten. But, as things turn out, all isn't fair sailing, or rather, riding, for Johnny. The actress makes a "John" out of him and is the means of having him accused of "throwing" a race.

SILVER COMES UP

However, the lining turns up silver. Johnny boards a boat and off he goes to England, where, near the fadeout, you find him riding to victory—in traditional movie style—and into the arms of the home-town girl.

There is nothing very original or startling about the story. But with the presence of that little Mr. Buzzell it does create a fair amount of interest. He sings a number of songs and manages numerous moments of both comedy and heartache. Perhaps his best bit comes when—watching a big liner sail from Southampton—he sings "Give My Regards to Broadway." And here he is the absolute personification of homesickness.

Edna Murphy, as the actress, isn't nearly as alluring as she is supposed to be. And Alice Day, as the heroine, though attractive enough to look at, exhibits a meager idea of histrionics.

A SONG FOR DOLORES

"Thanksgiving Jubilee" is the stage attraction. And in spite of the fact that—and as Jay Mills, the M. C., admits—the show is long and his breath is short, he manages a versatile performance. He sings and dances during the production number, "Singing in the Rain." Also, in company with Milton Slosser, the Enright organloguer, he introduces a new song, "One More Hour of Loneliness," which he and Mr. Slosser composed. Incidentally, this song, so Mr. Mills says, has been accepted by Warner Brothers for use in the next Dolores Costello picture.

Featured entertainers include two little ladies in yellow who do a burlesque on the classical dance stuff. They fall down and go boom and bump into each other—and also into Mr. Mills. At least, they did during a Saturday performance. Sylvia Froos, personality girl, who used to sing and "make" eyes to Dick Powell in the Stanley, now is doing the same for Mr. Mills. The stage band offers a novelty number and the Enright Rockets "rocket" through some dance routines.

JESSEL FILM ON HARRIS SCREEN

George Jessel's starring picture, "Love, Live and Learn," is a current feature in the Harris. It presents a story of a young Italian immigrant, who loses his American sweetheart when he is enmeshed in the World War. And the story is one that holds attention from beginning to end.

Jessel, as the Italian immigrant, sings two songs during the action. One is "A Song of Margharita" and the other is "Two Little Baby Arms."

HAS COMEDY TOUCHES

While much of the drama of the film is of a poignant nature, there are some light comedy touches. And, toward the close, all ends well for the Italian immigrant, who loses his sight while at the war and who has it restored at the hands of the physician who has married his old sweetheart.

ENTERTAINING ACTS

Johnny E. Mitchell, formerly organist of the Sheridan Square, is presiding at the organ. He gets a good hand for the manner in which he conducts community singing. Victor Graff, continuing as master of ceremonies, wins the applause.

Various stage acts presented are most entertaining, with the Vim Boys, in a singing and instrumental number, carrying off first honors. Wilfred DuBois presents a juggling act. Barr and La Marr offer comedy and singing. The dancing indulged in by Perry Covan and Company, a quartet of Negroes, is very satisfying to the audience.

Hours They Begin

Airplane Crash In New Hearst Newsreel

Another achievement of Hearst Metrotone News was the photographing of the crash of the aeroplane in the heart of New York City. This subject is contained in the current issue. In addition to the disaster, it contains the dramatic story of his fall by R. J. Bailey, passenger, who escaped injury in a parachute. Another subject in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News is a trip to the desert refuge of the Mongolian lamas in the Gobi Desert. For the first time in history, these priests who spend their lives in the service of Buddha have been photographed.

Other subjects include a hockey game at Madison Square Garden, New York; ceremonies at the Arc de Triomphe in Paris in honor of the World War dead; Gov. Young, of the Federal Reserve Board, telling of encouraging reports received from all financial districts; an expose by a psychic expert of the so-called "materialization" of a "spirit" from "beyond the grave;" and other views.

In Fox Movietone News, current issue, are views of the Cenotaph in London with the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York participating in the ceremonies honoring the World War heroes; a warning to purchasers of alcoholic drinks by Senator Sheppard, of Texas; the making of Americans in Samoa; a new fool-proof aeroplane; scenes in Venice, and others.

TITLED

Bebe Daniels plays the title role in "Rio Rita," film version of the Ziegfeld musical comedy, in the Sheridan Square.

"RITA" FILLS SCREEN IN SHERIDAN

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Rio Rita" may be R-K-O's gift to the talk screen. But it is more than that. It is Bebe Daniels' glorious retort to those who said, upon the advent of the talkies, that she was "through." As the senorita-heroine in "Rio Rita" she is a pleasant surprise. She sings and talks as if she had long years of experience on the musical comedy stage. In fact, we can't recall any other actress so much a part of the silent drama as Miss Daniels was, who is able to display a better singing voice than she. We aren't saying that she is the best singer in the world; nor the best actress, either. Far from it. But we do say

HE SUFFERED FOR TEN YEARS

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief in 2 Months — Doctor Recommended It

Constipation is dreaded not only for its own insidious self, but because of the many serious conditions and diseases it causes. Mr. Lind was a sufferer—but read how he found relief.

"For the past 10 years I have suffered from piles. At times I have been unable to work. I have tried suppositories, ointments, etc., but to no avail.

"Two months ago my grocer called my attention to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I began taking it regularly. Immediately the pain and annoyance from the piles was relieved. I found that it requires very little ALL-BRAN to give nature a fair chance to effect a cure."—WALTER J. LIND, R. 2, Box 137, Appleton, Wis.

Don't neglect constipation. At any time its poisons may take terrible toll from your health and well-being. Protect yourself. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. ALL-BRAN brings sure, natural relief. It is what doctors call a bulk food. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action.

Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Also try the recipes on the package. Results guaranteed. Doctors recommend it because it is 100% bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants, and dining cars. Sold by all grocers.

EX-UNIVERSITY HEAD GUILTY

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 25.—(AP)—A jury in Federal District Court found Dr. C. V. Whitmore, former chancellor of the University of Arizona, guilty of conspiracy to violate the federal narcotics laws. The jury found Thomas Finn, druggist, co-defendant with Dr. Whitmore, also was guilty.

The state charged that Dr. Whitmore wrote excessive prescriptions for opium, which were filled by Finn.

Versailles Group Injured in Crash

KENT, O., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Four residents of Versailles, Pa., were injured when their automobile went into a ditch in attempting to pass another machine near here. Gust Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Swanson, and their baby, Dorothy, were taken to an Akron hospital. All received serious hurt. They had attended the Ohio State-Illinois game at Columbus Saturday, stayed with friends at Akron over night and were returning home when the accident occurred.

'Lucky' Horseshoe Hits Man on Forehead

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 25.—A horseshoe proved unlucky for Morgan Hamrick, 26, of Waynesburg, who was cut and stunned when one hailed over the door of a Waynesburg residence was jarred loose and struck him in the forehead.

Brush Fire Burns Fatal for Woman

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Mary Lavina Cook, 72, died in the Washington Hospital of burns suffered when her clothing caught fire several days ago as she was burning rubbish in the rear of her home. Her husband, T. L. Cook, was painfully burned before he could tear the flaming clothing from her body.

Kick in Head Fatal To Football Player

COLLINGSWOOD, N. J., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Accidentally kicked in the head during an independent football game, Alexander Robb, Jr., 19, of Collingswood, died last night in the Underwood Hospital, Woodbury. Robb was graduated from the Collingswood High School last year.

MAN RESISTING ARREST SLAIN

WAYNE, W. Va., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Wayne Falloway, 37, was killed and two constables were wounded when officers attempted to arrest Falloway and his companion, George Pack, on charges of drunkenness. Joe Simpkins, one of the constables, was seriously wounded, while his fellow officer, Bill Moore, was shot through the arm. A coroner's jury found that Falloway was killed while resisting arrest. Pack was charged with drunkenness, possession of liquor and resisting arrest.

Aged Pair Perish As Gas Goes Out

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 25.—Mrs. Emma O'Keefe, 73, and Miss Mary J. Carney, 70, sisters, were found dead in the kitchen of their home by a niece, Mrs. Edwin Stalnaker, when she returned to the home from her work. The gas had gone out beneath a pan of potatoes, asphyxiating the aged pair.

that Mrs. Daniels' little girl is clever.

This "Rio Rita," which is now on an engagement in the Sheridan Square in picture form, has all the lavishness that marked the Flo Ziegfeld stage presentation. Its scenic effects are elaborate—maybe too elaborate in the sequences done in color. Anyway the eyes certainly are called upon to do some extra work.

MUSIC VERSUS PLOT

The story, which travels along to the tune and to the interruptions of musical trimmings and dancing, concerns the romance between a charming Mexican senorita and a Texas Ranger. Into all this is mixed the Ranger's pursuit of one Kinkajou (we hope that's spelt right), which, as a word in Mexican lingo, means "wildcat," and who, as a man in the picture, is a notorious bandit. He's so notorious, in fact, that there's a song about him, done by singing and dancing girls in the dress of highwaymen.

Well, in an effort to put a long picture into a brief review, after all kinds of romance, costumes, singing, dancing, melodramatics, scenic displays and all the other things one expects to fall out of Mr. Ziegfeld's magical hat, the heroine is rescued from the bandit, who, somehow, has her in his power. And, of course, the rescue is made just in the nick of time—thanks to the heroics of the Ranger.

VIGILANT CENSORS

But, gracious, we mustn't omit mention of the comedy. There's an abundance of it, with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, both from the stage, being chiefly responsible. Incidentally, there is a spot or two where this comedy mustn't have been so spotless. Lips move, but no words come—proving that Pa Pitt's censors are a vigilant lot.

John Boles, who first offered his tenor voice on the screen in a big way amongst the sand of "The Desert Song," again is prominent. As the heroic Ranger he rides, shoots, makes love and sings with vigor. The cast also includes Dorothy Lee, a comedienne; Don Alvardo, well known as a movie emoter, and numerous choruses and ensembles. There is a male chorus that does some vocal harmonizing as Texas rangers. As for the dancing and singing girls, there are so many stepping about that we'd hate the job of counting them.

In closing, just this thought: "Rio Rita," the film, is a glamorous production. It gives the eyes and ears a big time.

A&P freshly dressed TURKEY

Selected and Graded by U. S. Gov't.

INDIAN BRIDAL PLANS SECRET

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Aga Khan, wealthy Indian sportsman whose approaching marriage to Marcelle Carron, a comparatively poor young French girl, has attracted wide attention, will not have to have the banns published. He has been given dispensation by the French states attorney, for he is ranked as a sovereign because of being religious chief and head of the Ismailis, the dominant branch of Mohammedanism in India.

His wedding date is therefore his secret. It has been announced as December 4, but is likely to take place a few days earlier. The ceremony will be held in the banquet hall of the City Hall at Aix-Les-Bains, once the chateau of the Marquis of Aix.

Antoine Borrel, deputy from that district and former under secretary of state, will be the witness for the bride, but the groom has not announced his as yet.

Women in Turkey Get Vote, Right To Hold Office

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Turkish women have made another advance toward complete emancipation by winning the right to vote in municipal offices.

The parliamentary committee has modified the existing law reserving the vote on municipal affairs to men. The modified law gallantly puts women first, saying "every Turkish woman or man has the right to elect or be elected in municipal elections."

Thorough Canvass Wins Each Member

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 25.—A goal of $14,000 was topped in the every-member canvass of the Trinity Lutheran Church, conducted Sunday afternoon by 100 men of the congregation. Only two hours were required for the teams to visit the homes of all the members.

YOUTH ADMITS KILLING PARENT

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Joseph Malick, 19, confessed, according to Wayne County officers, that he shot and killed his father, Frank Malick, in his greenhouse in Nankin Township, near here.

Deputy sheriffs went to the Malick home and found the pistol and shotgun with which the florist was slain, hidden where Joseph said he had put them.

Joseph confessed, according to the officers, that he killed his father because a stranger, whose first name was Adam, threatened his life as well as that of his father if he did not commit the crime.

The youth admitted he had quarreled with his parent and waited for him in the greenhouse, the officers said. After the slaying, Joseph said he buried the pistol in the dirt floor of the basement and hid the shotgun in the attic after taking it apart.

LARGER INDIAN FUNDS URGED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP.) A five months' study of the Indian problem has led Commissioner Rhoads of the Indian service to the belief that enlarged appropriations for the service at present will result in great savings to the taxpayers in the future.

In his annual report to the Secretary of the Interior, the former Philadelphia banker reveals that appropriations for the Indian service for food, clothing, and vocational training have never been adjusted to post-war costs. This has resulted, he said, in improperly fed, improperly clothed, and improperly trained Indians, who continue to be a drain on the public treasury instead of taking a self-respecting and self-supporting place in the life of the country.

Prior administrations, Rhoads reported, have stressed this situation, but data now in hand indicates that as a mere economic problem it will save the taxpayers money to grant at once larger appropriations for a better trained personnel and better schools, so that Indians may be trained for citizenship instead of wardship.

Rhoads reported that a closer co-operation among federal, state, county and municipal health organizations had resulted in improved sanitary conditions and better health among the Indians. New hospitals have been established at Tacoma, Wash.; Chin Lee, Havaspuai Canon, and Kayenta, Ariz.; Keshena, Wis.; at Taos and Tohatchi, N. M., and other places.

REMARKABLE IS THIS CASE WON BY NEW KONJOLA

Amazed Over What This New Medicine Did After All Else Tried Had Failed.

A medicine may well be known by the friends it makes; not by mere promises and claims. Konjola is the best known medicine in America for just one reason and that is this—Konjola Makes Good.

MR. GEORGE PFOERTNER

Yet this amazing success of Konjola is not so astonishing when one remembers that Konjola is actually 32 medicines blended into one. All these ingredients—32 of them the juices of roots and herbs—go together to the source of the ills Konjola is designed to relieve, and there give battle to the causes. All around you are men and women who are enjoying today health they never expected to have again, and they will tell you that to Konjola belongs all the credit. Get all the facts from the Konjola Man. There is one in Pittsburgh, located at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street. Call on the Konjola Man and hear of numerous actual cases wherein Konjola was the first and only medicine to bring relief as in the case of Mr. George Pfoertner, 5119 Ladora Street, Pittsburgh, who just recently made the following statement:

"I certainly owe a lot to Konjola, and I welcome this opportunity to tell what it did for me, and I hope that others, who suffer as I did, will profit by my experience. For years I had been a victim of stomach trouble, which caused me to become very weak, rundown and nervous. I had no appetite and what little I did force myself to eat did not digest as it should. After every meal came misery and pain. My bowels were sluggish, and I always had aches or pains in one part of my body or another. I became very nervous and thought I was going to be forced to give up my work. To add to my distress I began to fear that I never would find the right medicine.

"But I did find the right medicine. What a medicine this new Konjola is! Within two weeks I noticed a wonderful change in my condition. In fact, two bottles of Konjola did more for me than all the other medicines and treatments I tried put together. As I continued taking Konjola, day after day I noticed improvement and at the end of six weeks I was a well man. For the first time in several years I have a good appetite and can eat anything I like. My nerves have calmed and I sleep well at night. It is easy for me to understand why Konjola is known as the medicine with more than a million friends. If the world knew about Konjola what I do it would number its friends by the billion."

That's the kind of medicine Konjola is . . . one that keeps the faith; that brings results; that makes good.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, and explaining the merits of this new compound. Konjola is sold also by all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

PALESTINE AID GROUP FORMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—A decision to form an American business organization for investments to further the economic development of Palestine was reached at a meeting here of American Jewish leaders.

The meeting, called by Felix M. Warburg, New York banker, listened to reports of the agricultural, industrial, oil and mineral possibilities of Palestine and to an address by Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the Supreme Court.

Warburg said, referring briefly to the recent massacres in Palestine, that "with the establishment of security of life and property we may hope to pursue the peaceful channels of business and industry."

Describing Palestine as similar in many respects to California, Justice Brandeis said that a visit had convinced him that what was needed to make the land bloom were "men, means and intelligent effort."

Touching upon the recent massacres, Justice Brandeis said:

"Our people can take care of themselves and our obligation or privilege is to enable not only those who are there to develop but hundreds of thousands of others who are ready to go there, who are ready to share in the enterprise, who are eager to work and who, if they go there, will in my opinion make Palestine perhaps—all things considered—the safest place in the world."

Mrs. Elizabeth Finicle, 85, a widow, died early yesterday in the South Side Hospital from pneumonia which developed from a fractured leg suffered October 31 when she fell in her home, 541 Bellaire avenue, Brookline, according to a morgue report.

RAID STILL ON NORTH SIDE

A 150-gallon still, with a quantity of liquor and mash, and gambling paraphernalia was reported seized in police raids early today.

The still, 15 five-gallon cans of moonshine and 40 barrels of mash, was reported found in the rear of the second floor of 1016 Pennsylvania avenue, where the raiders arrested Frank Longo, 29. The raid was made under the direction of Lieut. R. J. McIntosh, of the Woods Run Station.

Isadore Greenberg, of 1619 Locust street, and 10 other men were arrested when police raided a room at 4 Marion street. They confiscated 25 decks of cards and money used in a card game, they reported.

PRIEST MISSING TWO WEEKS

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—An intensive search was under way today for the Rev. Francis Forster, of Toronto, superior general of the Roman Catholic Order of St. Basil, who disappeared November 11 while walking from the Windsor Station to the steamship dock.

He came to Montreal from Toronto to meet the Rev. Father Player, another priest of his order, who was returning from Europe. He failed to appear at the pier.

Father Player proceeded to Toronto alone. When Father Forster failed to return after two days, his secretary came to Montreal and engaged the aid of private detectives. Finding no trace of him after eight days, he reported the disappearance to the police.

Father Forster, an authority on ecclesiastical law, was believed to have had about $200 with him when he disappeared.

Officers Elected By Metro Club

Alex Cooper was elected president at the regular meeting of the Metro Club, Squirrel Hill. Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, Max Span, Morris Jaffe and Sol Bennett; treasurer, M. H. Harris; secretary, Jerome Solomon.

Court Upholds Auto Guest Injury Law

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today held constitutional a Connecticut law providing that a guest passenger in an automobile cannot hold the owner and driver liable for damages in an accident, unless the accident were intentional.

The decision was given in the appeal of Mae Silver, who sued her husband, after she was injured when he was driving his car in New Haven County. Silver, it is understood, carried liability insurance.

WELFARE FUND STILL NEEDS $350,000

Workers Spurred for Fast Finish for Welfare Fund; New Business Teams Form

Encouraged by returns over the week-end, 7,777 workers in the Welfare Fund campaign resolved today to complete their task before Thanksgiving. To do this they must raise more than $350,000 before Wednesday night.

Thirty-one additional business and industrial concerns reported that they had organized for the canvass, it was stated by F. J. Chesterman, chairman of the employe division. The 70 teams in the central division today began an intensive solicitation, according to Mrs. William Frew, associate general chairman, and Mrs. John M. Phillips said that additional workers had enlisted in the house-to-house canvass.

RADIO PLEA TONIGHT

Tonight the Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Coakley will sound a rallying cry for the Welfare Fund in a radio address over Station WCAE at 7:30 o'clock. A. B. McSwigan, chairman of the radio committee, has arranged a musical program in connection with the radio speech.

Augustus K. Oliver, president of the Welfare Fund, in a statement today said that the campaign was making good progress, but that the workers had reached the limit of human ability and endurance

TURKEY PRICES TUMBLE WITH ARRIVALS

Trains Bring 8 Carloads And Boats Add 10,000; Cost Same as Chicken

Turkeys will be plentiful at almost chicken prices is the Thanksgiving message of produce men here.

Approximately 10,000 live turkeys were being handled on the Water street wharf today. Shipments arrived on the Ohio River Transportation Company steamboats during the night.

8 CARLOADS ARRIVE

In the produce yards, one shipment of eight carloads arrived Sunday. Workers were unloading the 25,000 gobblers with produce dealers speedily moving them to markets.

The wharf shipments included 25,438 chickens, 1,920 geese and 2,400 ducks. To the humdrum of poultry cries were added squeals of 34 young pigs. These shipments came from West Virginia and Ohio districts, while the produce yard arrivals journeyed from Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and other western states.

H. F. Morris, wharf terminal manager, declared the supply is the most plentiful in years. That prices will compare with those asked for chickens was his prediction.

With the arrival of dressed poultry government grading of turkeys began earnestly. This is the first year in which inspectors of the Department of Agriculture have examined local birds. Each dressed bird is inspected and given a grade, which is noted on a paper bracelet attached to the turkey's shank.

The first inspector to arrive was Gordon W. Sprague, requested by the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company to grade 22,000 turkeys at the Homewood warehouse.

HOLDUP MEN HOLD CITY IN GRIP

Trio Robs Store, Then Fires at Owner Next Door; Many Robbed on Street

A crime carnival over the week-end netted bandits and house robbers several thousand dollars in loot.

Three armed bandits held up Mrs. Mary Greenberg, of 38 Parkview avenue, near her home last night and robbed her of a purse containing $35. Mrs. Greenberg was walking to her home when the men confronted her.

Mrs. W. M. Burke, of 5334 Forbes street, reported that two men held her up on Forbes street near Aylesboro avenue late last night and robbed her of $8.

TWO LOSE CASH

Howard T. McKee, of 5904 Rippey street, reported that two Negroes got $14 from him at Harvard and North St. Clair streets.

T. W. Doyle, of 1246 Irwin avenue, reported that while on his way to work early today he was held up and robbed of $82 by a white man at Sampson street and Irwin avenue.

Thieves last night entered the Grant Restaurant, 612 Grant street, and broke a cigarette machine, stealing more than $6 from it, and took a box of cigars from a case, according to August Thumm, proprietor. Entrance was gained by forcing the rear door.

Police today failed to find trace of a Negro who held up A. J. Merhaut, assistant teller in the Garfield Bank, at 5100 Penn avenue, Saturday morning, and escaped with $3,837.

Search for three bandits who late Saturday night held up a chain store at 1573 McFarland road, Mt. Lebanon, and escaped with $30, was being continued by city and county detectives.

BIND, GAG MAN

Four safe crackers who bound and gagged Leo Laubham, of 6 Park street, Millvale, an employe at the North Side Packing Company, 2200 Spring Garden avenue, became frightened and fled.

Two armed men entered the store of Frank Poirlota, at 220 Swope street, held him at bay with revolvers and looted the cash register of $44 Saturday night.

Dennis O'Keefe, of 2505 Rodney street, was robbed of $12 by three men on the Shadeland Avenue bridge early yesterday.

CLOTHING STOLEN

Cash and clothing comprised the loot of burglars who visited four homes in Overbrook Saturday night. Homes entered were those of John Provost, of 2519 Homes avenue; J. L. Downall of 2543 Home avenue; William M. Twigger, of 2549 Home avenue, and W. S. Moorehead, of 2553 Home avenue.

Vandals invaded the malted milk shop of Ralph Conn, at 640 Penn avenue, and after destroying fixtures valued at several hundred dollars carried off $25 worth of cigarets.

Self-Inflicted Gun Wound Fatal to Man

Sam Schroch, 40, of Wildwood road, near Gibsonia, died in Allegheny General Hospital early today from a bullet wound in his head. A report to the coroner's office said he shot himself at his home yesterday morning.

Church Will Hold Annual Card Party

St. Norberts R. C. Church will hold its annual card party and luncheon Thanksgiving Day in the church rooms. Mrs. Emil Loesel is general chairman for the affair.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: A Western stock broker has said he does not want women's stock accounts. He contends women are poor losers. Are they?

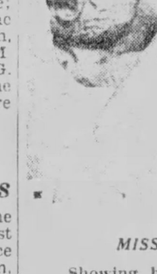
L. Heimbriecher

LAURA HEIMBRIECHER, Atwood street, cashier: "I don't think women are poorer losers than men. They take their losses without a whimper (there are exceptions, of course), and if they decide to play the market again make better selection and use better judgment in purchasing securities. The stock broker who made the statement that he didn't want women's accounts, didn't know what he was talking about."

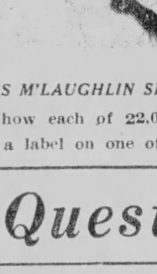
Ray Burney

RAY BURNEY, Fourth avenue, manager: "Women are just as good losers as men, whether it is the stock market or any other speculative scheme. When they lay their money down on a stock they know they are speculating and take their chance accordingly with the best of them. Possibly there are exceptions to the rule, but they are not in the majority. I think most brokers will bear me out when I say their accounts are welcomed in a brokerage house."



Evelyn Metz

EVELYN METZ, Tennessee avenue, Dormont, cashier: "Emphatically, they are not. Women are just as good sports as men, and in this day and age can take their financial blows on the stock market or any place else with a grin and a shrug of their shoulders, saying, 'well, maybe I'll be luckier the next time.' When a woman plays the stock market she realizes she is playing a speculative game and stands a chance of losing her money. Very few complain when they lose."

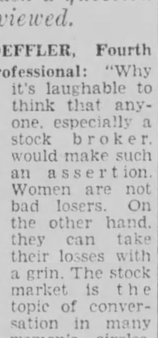


Lillian Dawson

LILLIAN DAWSON, Voelkel avenue, Dormont: "I've never heard of a woman who wasn't as good a loser as a man. Women today are out in the world enough to know that they stand just the same chance to lose a fortune or less, the same as a man, if they engage in speculation. When they lose they're willing to admit it and start all over again if the stock market urge is still present. Everyone knows that brokers welcome women's business. Their money is as good as a man's and that's why they can't be ignored in this respect."

Archie Loeffler

ARCHIE LOEFFLER, Fourth avenue, golf professional: "Why it's laughable to think that anyone, especially a stock broker, would make such an assertion. Women are not bad losers. On the other hand, they can take their losses with a grin. The stock market is the topic of conversation in many women's circles. They talk over their losses with just as good sportsmanship as the average man. All the brokers I ever knew welcomed financial business of the opposite sex. I know most local brokers do. Some offices have special board rooms for women patrons. Do they make any pretense of frowning on speculation by women?"



D. Las Vegas

DONNA LAS VEGAS, Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks: "Women have always proven themselves good losers, no matter what line of finance they have been engaged in. They are proving it more so every day by seeing money they have invested in stocks disappearing from the bankroll quickly as stocks have tumbled down in the past few weeks."

7 VET POSTS TO OPEN DRIVE

A membership drive will be held beginning December 1 and continuing until June 15 by Veterans of Foreign War posts of the Thirty-second Congressional District.

F. L. McGowan, of Avalon, district director, and officers of seven posts determined on the campaign at a conference held in old North Side City Hall. They hope to increase the enrollment of the different posts by several hundred.

Older Boys Set Parley for Dec. 6

The annual Older Boys' conference of the south-west district of Western Pennsylvania will be held under the auspices of the Y M C. A. at Washington, Pa., December 6, 7 and 8. The Pittsburgh branch is expecting to send 125 to the conference. James Lee Ellenwood, secretary on the New York staff of the Y M C A and Philo C. Dix, state secretary for Pennsylvania, will be the principal speakers.

Lambskin Club Arranges Carnival

The Lambskin Club of Bellevue wil hold a carnival and fair in Masonic Hall, Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, tomorrow night. Dr. Max Winegerd is the general chairman.

Daylight Milk Deliveries To Be Started Here

Almost all Pittsburgh milk dealers will begin an innovation next Sunday, it was announced today, when deliveries will be put on a daylight basis, with wagons starting out at 7 a. m. instead of midnight as has been done heretofore.

As a result, nocturnal whoopee makers will be forced to seek another method of riding home in the small hours of the morning after they have missed the last street car or cruising taxicab.

The change was decided upon because it worked a hardship on employes and horses who often had to trudge through unbroken snow and bitter winds long before daylight. Milk remained on doorsteps an hour before it was taken in the dairy reported. Some of it froze in winter and heated in summer.

The new arrangement will permit better contact between customers and drivers. Mistakes will be eliminated, complaints adjusted and milk thefts averted.

The Allegheny County Medical Society, the Congress of Women's Clubs and the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society have indorsed the change.

"Anyone who appreciates the comforts of night rest," W. F. H. Wentzel, secretary of the Humane Society, said, "cannot help but wonder why an army of workers should be forced to start their labors at the midnight hour.

"Nearly 1,000 horses also have been required to plod till noon the next day before returning to stables.

"Under the new arrangement these faithful servants will now have their regular night's rest. The Humane Society will find it more convenient to supervise its horse service."

Bill Rapley

CALEXICO, Cal., Nov. 25.

Just seen the biggest cotton farm in the world and it's in Mexico. A poor Negro and a poor mule and a debt was about all I had ever seen on cotton land before, yet here is one hundred and ten thousand acres in one piece.

That's enough acres. If it was in our cotton states, at home, to impoverish and keep poor over twenty thousand families.

Glad to visit Mexico again but most of my old cronies guesesd wrong during the last revolution and I am having a little trouble locating them.

Yours,
WILL.

HIT, RUN DRIVER ESCAPES PURSUIT AFTER KILLING MAN

TWO DEAD, FIVE INJURED, TOLL OF AUTOS

Motorist Gives Chase to Stolen Car in North Side Fatality; Unknown Dies

Two men are killed and five persons are injured in automobile accidents yesterday, while another man died from injuries suffered November 9.

The driver of a stolen automobile which struck and killed a man believed to be Stanley Zonsa [illegible] of 420 East General Robinson street, near Ivanhoe, early yesterday was [illegible] by police.

A taxicab [illegible] took the victim to the Allegheny General Hospital where he was pronounced dead of a fractured skull.

DISTANCES PURSUER

Theodore [illegible], 21 Herron avenue, another motorist, gave chase but was unable to catch up with the fleeing car. The machine had been stolen from Atwood street and Center place a few hours before, police said.

Efforts were being made at the morgue today to establish the identity of a man about 50 who was fatally injured when struck by an automobile in the Coraopolis-Sewickley Bridge last night. He died in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, a few hours later.

Struck by an automobile near his home November 9, Edward Donsell, 75, of 325 Washington street, Leetsdale, suffered a fractured [illegible] which caused his death last night in Valley Hospital, according to a morgue report.

FIREMAN HURT

William Lynch, a fireman suffered an injury to his left knee when the squad wagon of No. 3 Engine Company was struck by an automobile driven, police said by Norman Werling, 31, of 224 Meridan street, at Boyd and Forbes streets, last night.

When an automobile and a street car collided at Penn avenue and Thirty-first street last night, John W. Kondras, of Oakmont, the driver, and Harry Wells, 40, of Harmarville, his passenger, suffered lacerations and bruises. They were treated at St. Francis Hospital.

Joseph Connors, of 2518 Penn avenue, suffered a probable skull fracture when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into another at Penn avenue and Sixteenth street, last night, according to police. He was taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

As a result of being struck by an automobile near her home yesterday, Mrs. Julia Michalone, 42, of 932 Pennsylvania avenue, Glassport, was in McKeesport Hospital suffering from a fractured skull.

PLANS TO MAKE EMPLOYES NEW POWER IN BANK

Association Developed By Personnel at The Colonial Trust.

TO MAKE SUGGESTIONS

An organization which is said to be the first of its kind in banks in this country has been formed by the employes at The Colonial Trust Company.

It was suggested by James C. Chaplin, President of The Colonial, as a final step in a series of moves which have been made by the bank to develop its employes into positions of constantly greater responsibility and greater possibilities for themselves.

This organization will handle welfare work among the employes, and in addition will act as a clearing house for suggestions as to changes in the services or organization of the bank. It will not include any executive officers of the bank, but will be formed entirely among the employes.

The organization will help to develop individual initiative among the employes and to bring it to the attention of executive officers.

The work of the new organization is to be handled through a board of governors. The board consists of nine men and women elected by the entire personnel and two others selected by the board of governors. The nine selected by ballot were R. D. Wetherell, James Hingst, E. T. Manby, C. E. Coates, J. S. Wilson, Miss Gertrude Bardonner, Mrs. Anna Barrett, Miss Ann Bourke and Miss Charlotte Eckert. The governors have elected Mr. Wetherell, president; Mr. Hingst, vice president and in addition have selected Frank Montgomery as treasurer and Mrs. Ann Hetrick as secretary.

JAMES C. CHAPLIN,

The governors meet weekly and consider suggestions made by any employe. They also pass upon matters of employe welfare.

Recognizing that some of the greatest fruits in this civilization go to those who do or can sell some product or service, The Colonial recently carried on a campaign to develop the latent selling abilities of its employes. A permanent organization is now maintained to further develop this ability.

The executive officers believe that the new organization will bring cases of outstanding ability to the attention of executives of the bank, and that it will provide a better method by which employes can apply their ideas to the business.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS PAGE

Banking is a very human business. It enters so deeply into the lives and businesses of so many people that it cannot help being close to them.

THE COLONIAL TRUST CO.

HUNDREDS PAY INSURANCE BY EASIER PLAN

The Colonial Provides Method of Monthly Installments.

Hundreds of Pittsburghers are now paying their life insurance premiums on a monthly basis under the terms of The Colonial Trust Life Insurance Premium Plan.

Under this plan, as explained by John W. Chalfant, Vice President in Charge of Trusts at The Colonial, a person figures up the amount of money he or she pays for insurance premiums in a year, and then deposits approximately one-twelfth of that amount each month in a special account at The Colonial. The Colonial automatically pays out of this account all the premiums on the insurance policies as they come due.

Same As Rent.

In this way a whole year's premiums are accumulated on an easy, month-by-month plan, and it is much simpler than annual, semi-annual or quarterly payments. It is exactly the same principle as underlies the payment of rents each month instead of in a lump sum once a year.

Many millions of dollars of insurance are now being carried in this manner by customers of The Colonial.

Kenneth Buffington, trust officer, pointed out that fundamentally, the plan is simply the budgetting of insurance payments. As is usual with any type of budgetting, all normal payments are known in advance and are provided for in advance. A person who is laying aside a definite amount each month often finds it possible to lay aside a greater total than if they allow payments such as insurance premiums to come due all at once, or in large amounts.

Economies Possible.

A number of those who have used the plan have been able, through it, to make substantial increases in the amount of protection they are able to carry for their families. Some have done this simply because they found themselves capable of saving more; others have done it by setting aside from time to time, a little larger payments each month than were needed to meet their current premiums. In one year more than a million dollars of insurance was added to existent life insurance trusts because of the ease of the Premium Plan. One client of The Colonial has increased his insurance from $15,000 to $75,000 since he adopted the Premium Plan. Another has increased from $25,000 to $100,000.

Substantial savings are possible through the Premium Plan. Interest is paid upon the amounts deposited. In addition many customers who customarily pay their premiums on a quarterly basis are able to reduce their rates by paying annually, as they can do under the Premium Plan.

GIANT CHECK 22-IN. LONG

Was Issued As A "Stunt" in Sales Contest.

When you say "big check" to a bank employe, he usually thinks of a check for a million or two. They do come through frequently. But a "big check" of another kind came to The Colonial the other day.

It was almost 22 inches long and 10 inches high—almost four times the size of an ordinary bank check. It was so big that the writing on it had probably been done with a lettering brush, or some such instrument, instead of a pen.

It had been issued to a salesman in the northern part of this state by his home company in St. Louis, as his reward in a sales contest by the company. The contest had been called a "growth campaign" and the check had been given to the salesman for "growing to a higher level of salesmanship." On one end of the check a giant figure had been printed and a photograph of the salesman's head had been worked into this figure. Under it was the line "See how I have grown with the Blank Company."

Entering into the spirit of the thing, the salesman had indorsed the check by writing his name in huge letters all over the back.

$25.00 MONTHLY GROWS TO $2,000

Takes Only $1,800 of Deposits With Interest.

One customer at The Colonial has been making a practice of depositing here a total of $25.00 each month. In six years those deposits have grown to $2,035.22.

Of this total only $1,800 has been deposited by the customer. The balance of $235.22 has been added to the fund by The Colonial as interest.

TRUNKS STORED IN SILVER VAULT

Silver, Jewel Boxes, Trunks, Etc. Placed in Bank Vault.

Many people, going South for the winter, find the Silver Vault at The Colonial Trust Company a convenient and safe place to store anything of value which they do not wish to keep in their homes.

This vault, which is surrounded with the same type of safeguards as the Safe Deposit Vault, provides a place for bulk storage. Packages, boxes, trunks, packing cases, suit cases and other bulky bundles can be accommodated. Jewel cases are frequently placed in this vault.

The vault is also used as a place of storage for records. Committees (such as liquidation committees) which have in their charge large quantities of account books and similar records frequently place them in these vaults until such time as they can be distributed or destroyed.

CHRISTMAS MONEY SOON

Thousands of Checks Being Made Up at The Colonial Trust Company.

Thousands of checks representing the Christmas Savings Club accumulations at The Colonial Trust are now being made up and will shortly be mailed.

Many of these checks are as high as $1,000 each. They will supply large quantities of money at the time when people usually need it most.

The money has been accumulated with a minimum of effort. Hundreds of those who have their Christmas Savings accounts here have not even had to come to the bank to make their deposits. In many instances a group of people in one office or one shop have joined the Christmas Clubs here simultaneously, and all the deposits for the group are brought in to the bank by one person.

Reservations are now being made for next year's Christmas Clubs. We would be glad to arrange to open accounts for a group of people in your office.

A. B. A. CHECKS ARE TO MATCH SMALL MONEY

Bankers Association Announces Cut To Smaller Size.

ALSO TO BE MADE SAFER

The American Bankers Association, at its annual convention in San Francisco recently, authorized a new form of A. B. A. checks, which will make them the same size as the new small money and make it possible for travelers to carry them in their bill folds, together with paper money.

A. D. Robb, vice president of The Colonial, was present at this convention.

Larger Denomination.

These new-size checks are not yet available for distribution, but the Bankers' Association is announcing the change in ample time so that all business people everywhere may become familiar with the new size before the checks go into use.

In addition, the A. B. A. checks are also to be issued in a $200 denomination. Heretofore, they were in $10, $20, $50 and $100 sizes only.

Modern inventions in engraving and in protective devices for the checks have also been adopted in the new checks. They are to be engraved upon the highest grade bank note paper which will be surrounded by all the safeguards against tampering that are used in paper money.

Color Changed.

In order to avoid the chance that the new checks will be challenged by business people, the Bankers' Association has also announced in advance that all the new checks will have a green background instead of a different color for each denomination as heretofore.

Checks of the old type are meanwhile being issued and they will be redeemed, even after the new size have been issued.

A. B. A. checks are available at The Colonial Trust Company.

Even Checks Now Signed Without the Human Hand

Machine Relieves Company Officials of Long Tedious Task of Signing Thousands of Checks.

The life of treasurers, assistant treasurers, paymasters and other company officials who sign great numbers of checks has been made lighter by a machine which signs checks without the use of the human hand.

Hours and hours of the time of important officials used to be taken up by the task of signing checks, especially payroll checks and dividend checks. In many cases, of course, there are thousands of these to be signed at one time. This task was somewhat lightened by the development of a device which linked up five or six pens together so that a man, signing once with a master pen, placed his signature on five or six separate checks. Even with this, the business of signing checks was a long tedious job.

The new machine makes it possible to sign as many as 7,500 checks an hour. The checks are fed into the machine and come out, signed. The machine works on much the same principle as lithographic printing. A bronze plate is made of the official's signature. This plate makes an impression on a soft flexible roller and the roller then places it on the check. The signatures do not look like printed signatures.

The machine has safeguards to prevent the signing of unauthorized checks. It is locked with two keys, each one of which is in the possession of a different person. Like a safe deposit box, the machine cannot be opened unless both keys are used on it. The machine counts the number of checks which are signed, so that extra checks cannot go through without showing up. The machine also cuts the checks apart and sorts them.

COUNCIL REPORT ON TRAFFIC OPPOSES P. R. R. PLAN

NEW PROPOSAL BOOSTS COST OF PROJECT

Report Calls for Two Roadways With Trolley Removal; Await Parley

L. W. Monteverde, chairman of a special committee appointed by President of Council James F. Malone to recommend street changes demanded by proposed terminal extensions of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, has submitted to Council a letter explaining his preference for the committee's plan for treating the intersections of Penn and Liberty avenues with Grant street.

Monteverde's preference is known as plane "Z" and provides a roadway slightly elevated from the present street level and another roadway slightly depressed from the present street level for local and through traffic respectively.

P. R. R. OBJECTS

E. T. Whiter, vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, has advised Council of the company's preference, known as plan "T," for the separation of traffic on the present street level.

Plan "Z" was estimated to cost $1,621,000, as compared with an estimate of $66,00 for plan "T."

Both plans anticipate the removal of trolley cars from the street surface to a subway from Penn avenue at about Eighteenth street to Liberty avenue at Sixth avenue. The subway would be financed with funds from a $6,000,000 bond issue approved by the voters in 1919.

Malone recently advised Whiter that a majority of Councilmen favored plan "Z" and had requested the railroad company to pay the cost of that plan in excess of the company's plan.

Whiter later replied that the company would not withdraw plan "T" and would pay only $157,000 toward relocating city water and sewer lines.

PARLEY AWAITED

The city's final decision awaits a conference of Mayor Charles H. Kline and Council with city engineers and attorneys.

Monteverde held that the city was confronted with three alternatives:

"Shall it make an expenditure, for physical work and private property to construct the thoroughly adequate plan "Z" of $1,621,000?

"Shall it make an expenditure, for physical work and to produce the greatly inferior and inadequate plan "T" of $666,000?

"Rather than accept plan 'T,' to reconsider thoroughly, the retention of the agreement now existing between the city and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which provides for a widened Spring way and the retention of Penn avenue as at present."

SOUNDS WARNING

Warning against permitting the question of first cost to be the controlling factor in deciding upon the improvement, Monteverde stated: "Such a policy becomes more and more hazardous, more and more questionable from an economic standpoint as the city's property value rises and as modern and costly private developments increase in number.

"I do not believe that the first cost argument should be the deciding factor in this instance. The difference in the first cost of plan 'Z' over plan 'T' is, after all, only a small percentage of the total cost of improvements to be made in the district and the distribution of this difference between the city and the railroad is one that, it seems, should be susceptible of amicable adjustment."

Monteverde's reference to an agreement between the city and the railroad company affecting Spring way and Penn avenue relates to an old plan for maintaining two arteries.

However a pending agreement which embraces plan "T", would award the area of Spring way to the railroad company which in turn would give the city enough land on the south side of Penn avenue to widen that thoroughfare to 120 feet from Eleventh street to about Eighteenth street.

SEES BETTER PLAN

In favoring the original agreement, Monteverde declared: "In my opinion the two streets, as provided in the orginal agreement, would have resulted in a much better traffic situation than will result from the adoption of the "T" plan.

Monteverde averred that the important elements of the problem are:

"There is general agreement that the provision of adequate facilities for present and future traffic is a primary element of the problem. No one disputes that the "Z" plan is the best plan from a traffic standpoint.

"This intersection is sure to become one of the most important gateways to the central business district. It will become an integral part of the stupendous development of the adjacent district and will be called upon to handle and distribute an enormous volume of traffic. These conditions justify thoroughly adequate traffic facilities.

LOOKS TO FUTURE

"Within a short time costly buildings will undoubtedly be erected, making it impossible to change the type of the intersection. If the "T" plan were adopted, its inadequacy would have to be permanently accepted.

"The only element about which there is a major difference of opinion is that of first cost. The 'Z' plan is unique in that it has the indorsement of all the planning and traffic bodies of the city to which it has been referred. I feel certain that if the 'T' plan were adopted, the decision would be regretted by all interested parties, including the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Fully respecting the competency of the railroad officials within their own field, I only mention an obvious fact when I say that normally their function does not include the design of street traffic facilities. It is therefore natural, as I see it, that those officials are not so concerned as the rest of us in the matter of future congestion."

SEAL CAMPAIGN OPENS WED.

Church and school chimes will ring out in massed chorus at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning when the annual Christmas seal campaign, under auspices of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, gets under way. Heads of Protestant and Catholic denominations have indorsed the novel plan in starting the annual appeal.

Mayor Charles H. Kline and Dr. W. W. Davidson, superintendent of schools, have asked that all school bells be rung. The design of the 1929 seal suggested the idea of having bells of the city ring to announce the sale, according to Grant Curry, chairman of the seal committee.

On Wednesday postmen will begin delivery of more than 25,000,000 seals sent out in 128,768 letters by the league. The campaign ends Christmas.

Parents Find Girl Who Deserted Fiance

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25 — (AP.) Millicent W. Dodge, 20, missing since last Tuesday when she failed to meet her fiance to keep an appointment, is believed by her parents to be in Philadelphia. They would not reveal the source of the information.

The girl was at first thought to have gone to the home of relatives in Massachusetts, but when she failed to appear there, police were enlisted in the general search for her.

Miss Dodge failed to meet her fiance, Francis J. Gerdes, a former Marine, after leaving him to purchase part of her trousseau preparatory to their marriage, which had been planned for Thanksgiving Day.

DEATH OF YOUNG WIFE PUZZLES AUTHORITIES

Coroner and Police Hunting Suicide Motive; Note To Husband Offers Clues

Search of a motive behind the alleged suicide of Mrs. Mary Pickles, 18, of Wilmerding, today puzzled deputy coroners and Wilmerding police.

The young wife, a hastily scrawled farewell note nearby, was found dead last night in her home, 417 Card avenue, Wilmerding. She had been shot through the heart.

Joseph Pickles, the husband, told police he was in another part of the house when he heard a shot, apparently in his wife's bedroom.

Rushing there, he said, he found her dying, a revolver by her side.

On a dresser he said was a religious postal card, on the back of which was scribbled:

"Joe, I have been honest. I'm out of your way now. With love from Mary."

MT. LEBANON'S BUILDING IN DISPUTE

Commissioners Meet Tonight To Again Vote on $50,000 Addition to New Hall

Mt. Lebanon Township commissioners will meet at 7 p. m. tonight to reconsider the letting of contracts for a $50,000 addition to the municipal building now under construction, over which there has been considerable controversy.

An hour later, at 8 p. m., a public hearing will be held to consider redistricting the township in anticipation of voting machines.

The matter of building an addition to the municipal building was brought up at the semi-monthly meeting last Monday night. The ordinance was turned down. One commissioner refused to vote. C. W. Speck, president of the board, and C. W. Clatty voted for the addition. Commissioners Samuel Meneilly and L. C. Clark voted against it. Commissioner Ferd H. Vitte refused to vote.

At the general election, the question was included in a bond issue of six items. The issue was passed by the voters, the $50,000 addition item having a small margin.

Commissioner Vitte said last night:

"The reason I did not vote for the awarding of the contract of the $50,000 addition to the municipal building last week was that I did not think an addition necessary. The municipal building, now half finished, is much larger than I expected it to be. It will be ample to take care of the township's business for the next seven or eight years. Why spend the taxpayers' money foolishly?"

Commissioners Clark and Meneilly are the minority members of the board.

GAS STATION THIEF FINED

Harold Currah, 36, of Detroit, admitted in South Side Police Court today that he entered the office of the Superior Oil and Gas Company station, 73 East Carson street, yesterday, ostensibly to get warm, and took $37.15 from a drawer. He was captured after a chase by Charles Daugherty, the attendant. Currah was fined $50, with the alternative of serving 90 days in the workhouse by Magistrate John J. Sweeney.

National Body Honors Postmaster

Postmaster J. M. Pollock, of Wilmerding, has been notified of his appointment by the president of the National Association of Postmasters as a member of the executive committee of that body. Mr. Pollock is the only member named from Pennsylvania. The 1930 convention will be held in Detroit.

WHITE HOUSE WOOD HERE

A section of yellow pine, more than 112 years old, taken from the roof of the White House during alterations in 1927, is the proud possession of R. H. Edgar, principal of the Horace Mann public school.

The block was sent him for personal use and display to school children by a national lumber association for its value in teaching the ideals of patriotism. Heads of several other schools throughout the United States have been mailed like pieces of the material.

Handsomely mounted, the block shows the type of wood used when the White House was rebuilt in 1815 for President Madison, after the British burned Washington a short time before.

The wood was taken from a roof support when the Executive Mansion was remodeled during the Coolidge administration. A card accompanying the block bears the information the material "was part of the roof support that guarded 26 Presidents from the ravages of wind, storm and sleet."

Two Autos, Garage Damaged by Fire

Two automobiles and a frame garage in the rear of 2318 Arlington avenue were damaged by fire yesterday. Damage to the cars, owned by John L. Staub, was $500 and to the garage, owned by Peter Killing, $300. Capt. Elmer Mills of Engine Company No. 22, said.

SET DEDICATION FOR SCHOOL

Baldwin Township has set January 10 as the date for the dedication of the new McGibbney School on Church avenue extension, built to take place of the old structure, condemned as unsafe.

The new school is almost completed and will be ready for occupancy the latter part of this month. A dedication program is being arranged by C. C. Gibson, supervising principal of Baldwin Township schools.

Youth, Accused of Robbing Aunt, Held

Police today were preparing to seek the return to Pittsburgh of Harold Parkinson, 19, arrested yesterday when he stepped from a train in New York. He was charged with taking $125 from the home of his aunt, Mrs. B. Tondolo, 110 Stockton avenue, with whom he had made his home during the last three weeks. He was held under $1,000 by a magistrate in New York.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Thanksgiving Day to Be Busy One for Society Folk of Pittsburgh

HERE we are all the way round the year to Thanksgiving week! And a thoroughly satisfactory week it's going to be with many members of the school set reopening their families, and with dances galore for the debutante set, and all sorts of entertainments for their elders. Thanksgiving Day itself with its debut dinner-dances and buffet breakfasts will be the most "social" day of the entire week.

Just [illegible] entertaining [illegible] and Mrs. W. [illegible] Bingham of New York are guests of Mrs. John W. [illegible] Ridley Park. [illegible] did not [illegible] at one [illegible] chelors and [illegible] sion of Co[illegible] Our own Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Children Cheer Policeman Saving Santa in River

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—While thousands of children shrieked in terror Saturday evening a mounted policeman spurred his horse into the swollen Susquehanna River and rescued Santa Claus from what seemed certain to be a watery grave. The shrieks of terror turned to screams of delight as the children realized that Christmas had been saved from being a total loss.

It all happened at Kirby Park. It had been advertised that Santa Claus was making a special airplane trip here to visit a local store. As a result children from all over the valley traveled to the park to welcome the Spirit of Christmas. Promptly at 4:30 the airplane appeared from the north and circled the park. Then Santa Claus was seen to climb out on a wing and leap into space. But as his parachute unfolded it was caught by the wind and carried south and instead of landing on the lawns Santa struck the Susquehanna with a mighty splash and disappeared, but mounted Officer Joe Jones was on the job. Spurring his horse into the stream just as Santa, sputtering and diluted, reappeared on the surface he tossed him his tie strap and towed him ashore.

In a dressing room at the band shell, counter irritants were administered and Santa Claus, after giving a shivering exhibition instead of a speech, was hurried away to don dry clothes.

Old Church Destroyed

TOWANDA, Pa., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The First Baptist Church, of Canton, erected in 1861, was destroyed by fire. The blaze is believed by firemen to have started in the basement of the church.

Girl's Life Saved By Mother's Ride

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Madolene Page-Wood probably owed her life today to the promptness and coolness with which her mother acted following a serious accident yesterday. The mother, daughter and a son, Gerald, Jr., were riding horseback. Miss Page-Wood was thrown, suffering a possible skull fracture. Mrs. Page-Wood and her son lifted the unconscious girl to the back of the mother's horse. Mrs. Page-Wood rode two miles to a traveled road where a motorist sped the young woman to a hospital.

Club Woman Offers Prize For Photographs of Christmas Trees

IN ORDER to create more interest in the planting of evergreens in home grounds, school yards and public parks, and to obtain pictures of growing Christmas trees with which to illustrate her lecture on "Living Christmas Trees and Their Inspiring Purpose" for use in women's clubs, Mrs. Alma Margaret Higgins, of Butte, Mont., chairman of the General Federation's garden committee, is offering a prize of $5 each for five photographs of living trees.

The conditions are that the pictures shall be of growing evergreens, illuminated if possible, and that a full description of their location and dimensions shall accompany the photographs, also that the date of planting and the name of the planter be given. Colored lantern slides will be made of the prize wining pictures and these will be added to the set of slides of living Christmas trees and forest scenes now available for State Federation meetings.

One prize will be awarded for the most beautiful community tree and one for the most beautiful planted since June 1924 when the General Federation adopted a resolution indorsing the movement to plant Christmas trees. Class 3 is for the finest evergreen planted spring or fall of this year; class 4 is open to Boy or Girl Scouts or Camp Fire Girls and only admits trees planted this year. Class 5 entries are home Christmas trees growing in a garden or on a lawn.

NOT a pair of silk stockings to be seen in Russia and rayon is unknown in the country, Harvey Gaul told the Woman's City Club at its Saturday luncheon. Russia is a young people's country, he went on, and women have exactly the same privileges, do the same work and receive the same pay as men. America, Mr. Gaul said, is a mere child in the matter of advertising as compared with Russia, for there is propaganda for everything you can see and the traveler is scarcely five feet beyond the border before the sociological is thrust down his throat.

Russian schools, which have been given the people in place of the church, are modeled after the best in America and the country is especially proud of its kindergartens. Mr. Gaul spoke in characteristically entertaining fashion of the many phases of Russian life. Of the marriage program he said: "It is designed wholly for the woman." He spoke of the easy Soviet divorce as "a very logical and pleasant procedure."

THE LATEST MODE IN SPORT CLOTHES

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Skating on thin ice—not always a winter pastime, by the way—is going to be made much more pleasant, if not less dangerous, with the aid of some delightful winter sports clothes, just shown here. The popularity of the winter season at St. Moritz and the Engadine, those lovely Swiss resorts, is on the increase, and the ice carnivals and other events have become gala gatherings, noted for the wonderful natural settings for exhibitions of skill in sports, and the happy presence of lovely women who owe so much of their beauty to superb health, and abundant natural vitality. And this year, more than ever, fashion is to do her share in adding charm to these colorful scenes.

WE SHOW today the very smartest of these new fashions, items that will be the choice of many women who visit Lake Placid and Quebec, as well as Switzerland, for these models were ordered here by some women before sailing for home. The jumper is dark brown; it is sleeveless and over it is worn a matching cardigan jacket, and the jaunty triangular scarf. The stripes on the jacket and scarf, and the chevrons on the sleeves and jumper supply color to this wooly winter costume, for they splash the brown with bronze, shading to deep orange. Would it need the ice to lure you to wear the little cap, which is the contribution of Agnes to the world of sport? It is of brown and yellow wool, crocheted by hand, and it may be tied beneath the chin, thereby holding firmly to the head, as well as protecting the ears from frost-bite. Then, too, it may be tied to the nape of the neck with equally successful results.

THE smart little black felt hat also sketched is from Agnes. It is a hat that can be worn with a great variety of clothes, and so is suitable for many different occasions. It is simply trimmed with a small bow at each side, one of white feathers—although it had nothing to fear—and the other of black felt. The brim, narrow in front, wide at the sides, is very deep in back, lying flat on the neck.

THE purse, which is from Jean Patou, is of black antelope with a top and clasp of tortoise-shell. Geometrical initials in gold are placed in the center of one side. The shape of this bag is both distinctive and new.

Women Who Work Without Actual Need, Assailed

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Women who work to get money to spend, and not because they are obliged to support themselves, are guilty of social and economic wrongdoing in the opinion of J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal and Minister of Employment.

"It is not only uneconomic and unfair," he said in a speech before the House of Commons, "but against the nation's interests for women to work for what they call 'pin money' and deprive other people of legitimate work.

"No legislation can cure it. It is a question of moral responsibility. The number of women engaged in industry today doing work that men did prior to the war is substantial—women that do not need to be employed."

Thomas also denounced men, who, while receiving pensions at public expense, engaged in work which deprived other people of their living. He declared the action was morally wrong.

HOME SUIT WON BY MRS. SCAIFE

Mrs. Mary Magee Scaife, divorced Pittsburgh society woman, today won her fight in the State Supreme Court to transfer a mansion at 1055 Morewood avenue, without the signature of her former husband to the deed.

The Supreme Court, in an opinion handed down in Philadelphia, sustained Judge James H. Gray, of the Allegheny County Court of Common Pleas, who held that Mrs. Scaife could give a marketable title to the property, valued at $135,000.

DEED REFUSED

Mrs. Scaife had leased the residence to Mary C. McKee, Isabella C. Chalfant and Eleanor Chalfant, with the privilege of purchase before July 1, 1931.

They chose to buy the property, but refused a deed proffered by Mrs. Scaife on the ground that it did not bear the signature of her divorced husband, James Verner Scaife.

Scaife also intervened, contending that for his former wife to dispose of the mansion would deprive him of "his freehold interest as a tenant by courtesy," although he had no direct interest in the property.

OTHER DECISIONS

Judge Gray flayed Scaife as one "who had outraged his wife and society" and should forfeit any advantageous claim through the marriage relation.

The Supreme Court, in another decision, reversed the local courts which restrained the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from closing and using property valued at $500,000 near the approach to the Pennsylvania Station.

The Aldine Realty Company, the plaintiff, contended it had a claim to property in old Eighth street and Olga way, vacated by Council in 1852.

Dressmakers Sue Lady Heath's Husband

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Two new actions against Sir James Heath, multi-millionaire industrialist and colliery magnate, for debts alleged to have been incurred by his wife, Lady Mary Heath, famous British aviatrix, were begun here today.

The dressmaking firms of Christabel & Russell, Ltd., sued jointly for $1,200, said to be due for outfits furnished Lady Heath for her visit to the United States.

Sir James recently won an action for $45 brought against him on the same grounds by a London typewriter concern. The millionaire refused to pay, declaring his wife's "unbounded extravagance" and year's absence from home had forced him to declare himself not responsible for her debts.

Druggist on Trial For Sale of Dope

William Whitman, part owner of the Soho Pharmacy, 2200 Fifth avenue, was placed on trial in the United States District Court before Judge R. M. ## Serious Illness Overtakes Pat's Father After Planning Trip

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Patricia Dawn (pat, young, demi-brunette, sees her little brother, Dickie, fail to rise after a dive in the lake. Pat brings up the apparently lifeless body. All hope seems gone when suddenly an airplane sweeps down out of the sky. Pat's father arrives with Guy Elliott, a tall, handsome youth as pilot. Quick action follows and Dickie recovers. Later Elliott kisses and takes Pat for an air ride. Happy days follow, with Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce with the seductive lure of shadowy eyes. She is the widow of young William Bryce, whose father owns the airplane factory where Guy works. While trying out her new plane Barbara has an accident but is saved. In the excitement Guy forgets an appointment with Pat. Later, while airplaning with Guy, Pat has a glimpse of Barbara in another plane. Pat marvels at Barbara's beauty and wonders if Guy is moved by it. Later Guy receives a visit from Barbara and her young son, upon whom Mr. Bryce squanders a fortune. Tom Burns, a workman, frets about the unfairness of wealth. His invalid son is dying for want of necessities. When Bryce refuses a loan, Burns leaves swearing revenge. The next night, in the factory, Guy hears a stealthy footstep. It is Burns, who has robbed the safe. He is captured by the watchman and arrested. Bryce refuses to intercede for Burns and he is put in prison. In Pat's home preparations are being made for her to enter college. Hearing much gossip about the youth of today, Mrs. Dawn prays that Pat will remain the sweet girl she is. Pat is happy when her dad buys her a new automobile. Bryce delays business, but Guy determines to make good. Pat is terror-stricken when she sees a plane fall. She is relieved when she sees Guy and learns it was not his plane. On the twenty-first wedding anniversary of Pat's parents happiness prevails in their home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVII.

PAT stopped her car and slowly took out her key. "What a great boy I am," she thought, with a half-sheepish grin. Above, she could hear her father's mocking delight. But he did say he'd be home at one o'clock. And he had looked perfect rotten in the morning—done up—the way he was two years ago before he got that terrible flue attack.

She went to the [illegible] opened the door and stopped short. Richard was sitting at his desk—Richard Gowin, his fists against his cheeks.

She was half across the room before he [illegible] Richard's head [illegible] saw Pat [illegible]

"What [illegible] to interrupt [illegible]?"

"Sociability. I was shopping and dropped in. Thought you might like an elegant lady chauffeur to take you home. You've surely finished with your work by now."

She kept looking at her father's flushed face and [illegible] eyes. She touched his hands. They were very cold.

He grinned [illegible] that.

"But you don't feel right, do you?"

"Fine. Just [illegible] and a steam and a [illegible] I've done the best piece of work I've done in months. Brain [illegible] seemed to glow. I've got keyed up so that you take [illegible] three times your average output? So you'll be pleased to drive me home."

He went over to the closet, took down [illegible] Then he stood with his hands clutched to the washstand. He saw that Pat watched him and that she had a strained anxious look.

He very carefully adjusted his hat.

"No. I will not."

"Dad—please. You're shaking."

"Pat, you're mad. Were you burying me [illegible] And that's what landed you in here."

But he let her [illegible] him. And when they [illegible] the car he slumped [illegible] pulled the big coat about him.

"Pat, I know [illegible] happened. You went to a [illegible] lecture and they [illegible] a lurid picture of the ills that come from neglected colds."

Pat grinned. "You can't make me mad, old thing. I'm feeling chipper. And I [illegible] working too hard. And you've gotten thin and you look awfully tired. You need a vacation."

Richard [illegible] "I'll tell you a secret, Pat. When you came in I was thinking of a vacation—a royal vacation. Listen—I'm going up to Sacramento on Saturday [illegible] those parties [illegible] General department [illegible] I'll make a big penny at that, and there [illegible] another job [illegible] animals for an automobile [illegible] I'm going to try and [illegible]

"I can [illegible] Then it's off on the [illegible] up for your mother and [illegible] you let us go, Pat. [illegible] wanting a trip on the [illegible] I was a boy—a very [illegible] I want to get on a [illegible] be far out in the water. And I [illegible] to stand at the [illegible] mountains. Pat, and look [illegible] them. I'd like to wander [illegible] the desert's immortal [illegible] I want to do these [illegible] I am—before it gets too late."

Pat glanced [illegible] father. He had his head [illegible] on the cushions. His [illegible] had the look and whiteness [illegible] death.

"You sound like a poet, Dad. Have you [illegible] for things like this for twenty [illegible] years?"

"But we can [illegible] them now, Pat."

"With all [illegible] [illegible] left at home, I'll do a [illegible] piece."

He stood on the [illegible] steps and waved to her.

In the middle of the week Richard phoned. Pat, sitting in the living room, heard her mother's voice. It grew more and more eager until it was just bubbling with excitement.

"Richard, are you jesting? Honolulu? Or the canal? You want me to be ready to leave when you come? In a week?"

Pat grabbed the phone from her mother's hand. She [illegible] cried. "Dear [illegible] bowled her over. She thinks you're fanciful, I guess. But you're not, are you? Did you land that other job?"

After a moment she handed the receiver back to her mother. She said with lighted joy, "He's O. K. and he's serious. You're going!"

Laura came back to the living room. She was pink and her eyes were shining.

She and Pat planned the darning, beautiful adventure. They were talking so on Saturday.

A machine drove up. Then Richard got out.

They saw him through the French doors of the living room. Home so soon? They didn't expect him for another week. He walked slowly across the patio. He leaned on the arm of the taxi driver.

Richard saw them at the French doors; saw their bewildered looks. He straightened abruptly and pretending to motion the chauffeur on he hurried to the steps.

"Just dropped in for the week-end," he called, taking hold of the rail and smiling up at them. "Get lonely, girls?"

He stood for that moment supporting himself against the rail, the sunlight falling on his flushed, upturned face.

Then they were greeting him, they were taking his coat, his cane, talking in soft, excited anxiety. So unexpected he'd come. And so tired that way he walked across the patio.

Richard slumped in a chair by the fireside. He grinned and pushed a hand over his forehead.

"Tired, yes. Light the fire, Pat. We start the new job Tuesday. I've three days grace [illegible] he had a hot, dusky color and he breathed rapidly as though he'd been running. Now his eyes came anxiously to rest on Laura's.

"Good to be home! wanted to be here."

He was tired. That was all. Worked hard. And it was bitter up there. Got this shivering cold.

He put shaking hands out to the [illegible] blazing logs and sank low in the chair.

That hour with her father sitting before the crackling fire, his comely head resting against a pillow—not trying to bluff now, but taking the hot milk they brought him, letting them minister to him, coming like a little boy to the comfort of their presence—the hour etching itself on Pat's heart in sweet immortal pain.

It was a lull—a peace and beauty before the terror of the days that followed.

Late that evening Pat stood at the door with the doctor. He had seen her father; had himself moved Richard's bed to the porch. Give him plenty of air—follow all these directions to the dot. The nurse would come later.

Richard had pneumonia.

Pat leaned against the door. Perfume exhaled from all the flower-beds came dreamily up from the moonlit garden. She closed her eyes, aware of a terrible reluctance—a fear to go back upstairs—to return to her father's room.

On the threshold where they could see Richard's bed, Laura met her. Her mother had a strange, quiet look. She seemed taller and very white.

She took Pat's hand. It was like a command the way she held it.

"You saved Dickie, Pat. You are going to help me save your father."

Richard lay on his side, holding to it with both his hands. The flush on his cheeks was very dark now, and his mouth was drawn, almost livid. He breathed harshly, the breath ending in groans. But the sandy curls went back so boyishly from his forehead.

He took a long, rasping breath and opened his eyes. They darted about anxiously. "Lo—Lo!"

He made a valiant effort to smile, but the look he turned on Pat was full of apprehension. It was almost a terrified glance. "Pain, Pat," he murmured—"awful pain here."

She put her hand on his. He seemed glad; seemed to want her there and holding to him. She said softly, but terribly overwrought when she heard those loud, noisy breaths of his: "I know, Dad . . . but mother's coming up stairs now and she'll put a plaster on and you'll be better soon—in a very little while."

As that laden night drew to a close, Pat felt that she moved in a nightmare.

And the whole world was filled with the loud agony of her father's breathing.

"He's not better," she whispered to her mother.

"It may be seven or nine days to the crisis. Then he will be better."

"Not nine days of this!"

Again Laura took her hands and again she said with that strange look of quiet—unearthly calm and quiet, "It will not seem long when we have him at peace again."

That Twin-Sister Look Not Always Genuine, Fay King Observes

By FAY KING

A MAN often says of some girl and her mother: "They are more like sisters, always together." They may act so in the presence of some eligible man they wish to impress with their devotion. But elsewhere—he'd be surprised.

One of them is sure to be a bully.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

'Tiger Trap' Is Prepared for the Kennellos

I TURNED a puzzled face to Lillian as she said that we were "sewed in for the winter."

"I don't understand," I said, and she clapped me on the shoulder with a mercurial rise of spirits which I interpreted as a release from the four-hour tension which our trip from the farmhouse had given her.

"I mean, dear child," she said, "that now we're safely landed at the hotel, our trips away from it will be few and far between until this plot against Prince Georges has been frustrated. We have most comfortable rooms, there a glorious roof on the top of the hotel which will provide us with plenty of fresh air and room for exercise and everything we need can be ordered by telephone."

"You mean," I stammered, "that we can't leave the hotel at all?"

She laughed at my bewildered face and shot a quick glance toward the door of the room which Princess Olina and Mary were to share and to which Lillian had ushered them before taking me to her own room. Dicky and Prince Georges were in our suite.

"You can," she said, "with discretion, making sure that no one mistakes you for Mary or Princess Olina. And of course the Dicky-bird and old Phil Veritzen will prowl in and out to their offices. There'll be no particular string upon Noel either, although the more everybody stays inside the hotel But Georges, Mary and Olina must not stir from the hotel the better Harry will like it, until this mess is cleared up."

I shivered at something in her tone which told me that she had good reason for the seemingly fantastic precautions.

"You haven't any idea how long," I said.

"It all depends upon how readily those Kenellos chaps fall into the trap Harry is going to set for them," she said. "If we can catch one or two of them so that we can get the proper line upon that kinsman of Prince Georges' the danger will be over. Georges has a pretty shrewd idea of the man who's engineering the thing. If we only can lure him into the trap and Georges can confront him, he will have the proof he wants against his cousin. The only trouble is that the old king of Trees and the other invalid chap, his brother, may exit this life any day. Then the publicity will start and the hunt for Georges. He will have to announce his whereabouts, and he will be so guarded that the Kenellos fellows will have to lie low. But they will bide their time as long as that fiendish cousin of Georges is at their head, and our poor young friend will always be in danger of a sudden and violent death. If we can scotch the snake now, however, Georges can contemplate as peaceful a life as the average king which the Lord knows is uneasy enough. Therefore the precautions, and thus endeth the first lesson, except—what's on your mind?"

"That announcement dinner for tomorrow night," I said. "Naturally I'd like to have it something a little special, and if I can't get out of the hotel to see to the flowers and decorations."

"I'd rather you wouldn't go away this first day or two," she said emphatically. "But you'll find the hotel very resourceful and what's the matter with the Dicky-bird? His taste is impeccable as you know, and he loves planning for a function of any kind. Yes, I know," with a swift look at my downcast face. "You'd much rather do it yourself under the present circumstances. But I must put the kibosh on your going away for a day or two until we get all our arrangements perfected here. However, I can relieve you of one task. I can put it up to the Dicky-bird, so you won't have to break the first ice. Will that help?"

"Immeasurably," I told her with swift relief, for I infinitely dreaded making any appeal to Dicky for aid in even so impersonal a thing to us as the betrothal announcement dinner.

"That's that, then," she said. "The very first chance I get when we three are together, I'll tackle him on it."

The chance did not come, however, until after luncheon, for Harry and Dicky were mysteriously busy in a suite directly below ours which opened, as did all those of that floor, upon a long balcony. When they came to a belated luncheon served in the suite, they were quietly jubilant.

"It's made to order," Mr. Underwood said, but but made no other comment. When luncheon was over, he took Prince Georges and Noel down to the rooms which were to be the "tiger trap," and Dicky relaxed into a big arm chair while Lillian told him of my dilemma, making it hers as well, and asked for—rather—demanded—his aid.

"I've got a better scheme still," he said nonchalantly. "Old Ede's a wiz at that sort of thing. I'll send her over and she'll help you plan things."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, November 26

A PARTICULARLY lively and eventful day is the presage read from the stellar activities. A sudden change is possible, radical and disruptive in nature, but ultimately bringing success and high adventure. With extreme precaution as to fraud, deception and underhand methods all should go per.

Those whose birthday it is have a wonderful and eventful year to look to. Radical change, high adventure, new arrangements and environment should bring splendid opportunity for prosperity, but subtlety, craft and fraud must be reckoned with.

A child born on this day may be brilliant, ingenious and successful, possibly by conspicuous public position, favor and good fortune.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Agreeably Registering Enthusiasm

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct to answer a letter as soon as it is received? ANXIOUS.

YES, it is correct. It registers an appealing enthusiasm for an interest in the writer—if you wish to do that. In this busy world it is not often that one has the time to do this, but it is exceedingly polite, and would make a letter writer happy.

Buying Bride's Trousseau

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to be married. Some of my friends say that the bridegroom must buy the bride's trousseau, and others say that the mother must buy it. I think that the bridegroom should. Am I right?

Is it all right to have the bride's ring of white gold and the bridegroom's ring of yellow gold? BETTY.

YOU are terribly wrong, dear friend. To allow the bridegroom to buy the bride's trousseau would be a most serious social error on the part of the bride. Tradition has always decreed that the bridegroom's financial obligations begin with the wedding journey and he must not be allowed to supply any of the trousseau of the bride.

Usually now the bride's ring is of platinum and sometimes of white gold, and not, as formerly, of yellow gold. But if the bridegroom wears a ring, it is of yellow gold.

Christmas Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct to enclose the tissue with your personal Christmas cards?

2. How should a widow have her name on the cards, "Mrs." or otherwise? Margaret.

IT is not correct to enclose the tissue with your Christmas cards. By the time the cards are sent out the tissue has fulfilled its function of protecting the engraving, and it is no longer necessary. And the tissue gives the card an unfinished look that is not desirable.

2. The visiting cards or Christmas cards of a widow should have her name as she used it when her husband was living. For formal Christmas cards she uses the name, "Mrs. Theodore Van Buren."

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A SMART DRESS STYLE FOR THE GROWING GIRL.

Bordered tweed in brown and tan tones was the material chosen for this stylish design. One could have jersey, crepe de chine, wool crepe or checked suiting. The new plaids are also good for this model. The dress has a simple straight waist, short, to indicate the raised waistline, and skirt portions plaited all around, joined to the waist. The center plait extends in tab effect over the front of the waist. The fitted sleeve is finished with a small round cuff. The collar is high and rolled.

This pattern is cut in four sizes: Eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. To make the dress for an 8-year size will require 2⅝ yards of 39-inch material. For collar, belt and cuffs of contrasting material ⅜ yard 39 inches wide is required, cut crosswise. To make the dress of bordered material for an 8-year size will require 2½ yards 54 inches wide and cut crosswise.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Common Fault Today 'Eating With Eyes'

YOU may know "Ty" Cobb as a baseball player. I know him as a philosopher, a thinker. The other day we were talking together about how and what to eat. There is so much time to be filled on shipboard that an interesting companion is a godsend. "Ty" is one such. We talked about everything, but this particular conversation was confined to the appealing subject of food.

DR COPELAND

"The trouble with us," said Mr. Cobb, "is that we eat with our eyes. We sit down at the table and look over the attractive things displayed there. Then we decide we will have a little of this and quite a lot of that. Whatever pleases the eye soon gets into the stomach. Instead of taking what is good for us and what our stomachs need, we take what appeals to our sight. We eat with our eyes."

"Ty" has made a great record as a professional ball player. He is noted for clean living, clean sportsmanship, clean work.

In this sport, as in all others requiring perfect poise of body and mind, habits of living are all important. There cannot be balance of muscle and certainty of correct nerve response, unless the health and vigor are perfect.

On this account, it is always profitable to inquire what successful athletes do to keep fit. We may not be able to imitate them and it is not essential that we should in all things. But from their lives we may gather much of everyday value.

I was interested to hear that in 22 years Cobb had not eaten 150 mid-day meals. Two meals a day are his limit. And at that the evening meal may consist of nothing else than several juicy apples.

The fact is, the average man eats too much. I am always telling you that. But unless we keep at it the public won't appreciate how much better it is for health to be temperate in eating.

These terrible, health-destroying fads of "reducing" represent the other extreme, the dangerous extreme. The body must have certain quantities of food. Without the essential supply there is sure to be trouble.

But overeating is worse, if anything can be worse. If you would be supple in muscle, alert in mind, you must be abstemious in your eating habits. Certainly you cannot take everything that appeals to the eye. When we eat for the body's sake we will live longer and enjoy life the more.

Answers to Health Queries

J. E. R. Q.—What should a woman weigh who is 21 years old and 5 feet 2½ inches tall?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 120 pounds.

M. D. Q.—What are among the outstanding symptoms of tuberculosis?

2. Will a cold in the chest become serious if one goes in swimming?

A.—Fever, loss of weight, hectic color in the cheeks, sweating at night and coughing. A thorough examination of the chest will help to make a definite diagnosis. Your doctor will advise you.

2. It may, depending upon the seriousness and extent of the trouble. Under these circumstances it would be best to stay out of the water until such time as the chest cold has cleared up.

V. A. B. Q.—What causes varicose veins in the hand and arm, and what can be done for such a condition?

A.—Undue strain, due to exertion of one kind or another, usually causes this condition. Bandaging during the daytime might help to clear up the trouble. Avoid using the arm as much as possible meanwhile.

F. P. M. Q.—What do you advise for falling hair and where should I go for treatment?

A.—Keeping the scalp in a good healthy condition by careful shampooing and rising and the use of a good hair tonic should bring about satisfactory results.

W. H. T. Q.—What should a boy weigh who is 15 years old and 5 feet 8 inches tall?

2. How can I gain weight?

A.—For his age and height he should weight about 137 pounds.

2. Proper dieting and deep breathing is the secret. You should eat nourishing foods and have plenty of sleep and rest.

* * *

MRS. H. R. S. Q.—What do you advise for an oily skin?

A.—I would suggest that you apply hot and cold water compresses to the face alternately for 15 minutes, night and morning.

$44,000,000 for New Telephone Construction in 1930

A YEAR AGO we estimated that in 1930 we would spend $34,000,000 for new telephone construction in Pennsylvania.

We have revised that figure — upward.

Our present plans call for an expenditure of $44,000,000 next year — an increase of $10,000,000.

The year 1930 will see the greatest telephone construction program in the history of the telephone business in this state.

Along with the increase for 1930, we are planning on similar increases for the following years.

From 1930 to 1934, inclusive, we will spend in Pennsylvania a total of $215,000,000 in new construction. This does not include the construction of "through lines" by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Nearly $50,000,000 greater than our estimates of a year ago.

These figures are ample evidence of our faith in our state and its prosperity.

Telephone service must do more than keep pace with business. It must be ready in advance to meet the needs of industrial and social life.

The fact that in 1930 we are spending $44,000,000 and in the next five years a total of $215,000,000 for new buildings, new central office equipment, new local telephone lines, new toll lines and the countless other mechanisms required for a growing telephone service is based on our best judgment of what the future holds for our Commonwealth.

"The most service and the best" is our aim. This tremendous program is evidence of a growing communication system. Growth means more telephones in service—more places which you can reach from your telephone. It means an increasing value of your service.

Never was the telephone service better than it is today.

This program is evidence that tomorrow's telephone service must be of even higher quality—in speed, accuracy and efficiency!

INDIANS BEATEN BY OWN BLUNDERS

ADMITTING that the Haskell Indians had what looked to be outside the better team in the game at Forbes Field last Saturday, only saved Duquesne by the wide margin of 13 first downs to five, and ought to have won by a 6-to-0 score if they had played common-sense football, the fact remains that the Dukes have received all too little credit for their 7-to-6 triumph at the last ditch, when Sammy Pratt ran for a touchdown on Gazzy Benedict's forward pass from behind the Red and Blue's 46-yard line and Buff Donnelli's unerring toe supplies the extra point needed for victory.

Sammy Pratt

Even though it was a last desperate stab in the face of seemingly inevitable defeat, those last few minutes of play were just as much a part of the game as all of the previous time during which the Indians had done by far the greatest amount of ground-gaining, and Elmer Layden's courageous fighters were fully entitled to everything that they could get out of them.

IT takes more than mere luck to get away with such a play as the Dukes resorted to so successfully to save the day. It takes stout hearts, clear heads, wide-open eyes, steady hands and fast-moving feet. Many a team would have lost heart and fighting spirit in a similar situation. Though it was a tough break for Haskell to lose a game that at last seemingly sewed up, it is all the more to the credit of the Braves that they kept on battling until success crowned their efforts.

They were up against the most formidable opponent they had ever met, it was the hardest game they ever played, and surely, in the light of what they accomplished by their fighting finish, they are entitled to a whole lot more than being called merely lucky. Victory was none too great a reward for the manner in which they rose to the occasion and took advantage of their last remaining chance.

MULE HAAS' home-run smash in the ninth inning of the last world series baseball game, which opened the way for the Athletics to turn defeat into victory and to win the game and the series after they had been outplayed and held scoreless from the start, could just as well be called a lucky break as the well-executed forward pass that won for the Dukes.

And the Dukes have a record behind them that shows such a Frank Merriwell finish to be more than a smile of fortune in their case. For they did the same thing at the last minute to beat W. & J. 12-to-6 last year; they did it to tie with West Virginia, 7-to-7 this season; they did it to beat Loyola, 7 to 6, and they did it to defeat Catholic University, 19 to 13. All of which would appear to indicate that the never-say-die spirit of the school was no inconsiderable factor in the latest success on Saturday.

Buff Donnelli

ANOTHER thing to be taken into the reckoning as to whether a team deserves to win or not is the matter of football mistakes or errors. These errors are part of the game. The team making them must often pay for them in the simple justice of things, and the side that profits by its opponents' misplays must be given credit for having the ability to take advantage of them and turn them to good account. So with the Dukes and the Indians. The visitors lost their own game by making a couple of plays that were costly mistakes.

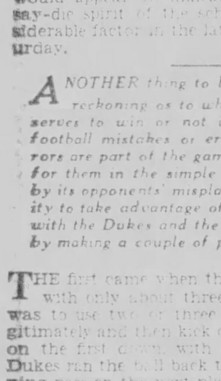
THE first came when they had the ball near the middle of the field with only about three minutes to play. All that they had to do was to use two or three running or line plays to consume time legitimately and then kick out of danger. But they tried a forward pass on the first down, with the result that it was intercepted and the Dukes ran the ball back to the spot from which they made their winning pass on the next play.

And on the Dukes' pass itself, another blunder was committed by a Haskell player that was costly. Tod Wilson, a visiting back reached the ball at the same time as Pratt or a fraction of a second earlier. Instead of merely batting the ball to the ground, or failing in that, tackling the Duquesne receiver after the latter had caught it, Wilson tried to catch the leather himself, with the result that Pratt caught it right out of his hands and dashed the remaining 15 yards for a score. Besides the Indian center was guilty of a bad pass that cost the visitors the extra point that would have given them a tie. Duquesne made good on its own chance for that point.

SO let's give the Dukes credit for the fight they showed in pulling the game out of the fire in its dying moments—as well as in stopping the Indians from making two more touchdowns when they were within the shadow of the Red and Blue goal line—and for being able to take advantage of Haskell's mistakes.

The local boys in keeping their record clean for the season and stretching to 12 the string of games in which they have not been defeated since they bowed to Geneva on October 27, last year, beat a real football team. Haskell, even with the sensational Louis Weller out until the last few minutes, showed one of the best elevens seen here this year. The Indians have a whale of a line, and a backfield that works reverses, triple passes, fake bucks and everything else in masterful fashion. Walter Johnson, a 185-pound Piute, is as classy a fullback as can be found roaming anywhere. He passes, kicks, tears holes in the line, knifes his way through narrow openings and in all respects shapes up as a real star.



Walter Johnson

SPEAKING of last-minute winning plays, Penn State will come here to play Pitt next Thursday afternoon with the record of having made a remarkable one. Cooper French, brother of Walter, formerly of West Point and now of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Frank Diedrich, the main cogs in the Lions' attack, pulled a trick in the Lafayette game that appears to be without a parallel in college football and that is still the talk of Penn State students and alumni, though the contest was played four weeks ago last Saturday.

WITH time for one final quarter almost up, and Lafayette leading 3 to 0, Woodfin, the Lafayette fullback, sent a high punt from his goal line to the State 40-yard line. French caught the ball, but seeing four Lafayette tacklers about to down him, wheeled and tossed a short lateral pass to Diedrich, who was standing near the sideline. Diedrich headed straight up the field and then cut across toward the center to get behind the interference, which had quickly formed.

The entire State team appeared to sense that this would be the final play of the game and began to take out the rest of the Lafayette men like clockwork. Diedrich finally crossed the goal line standing up, with three Lion interferers around him and no Lafayette man within 15 yards. The touchdown gave State a 6-to-3 victory. Several observers reported that the timekeeper signaled the expiration of time while Woodfin's punt was in the air. At any rate time was up before Diedrich crossed the line. The field had to be cleared of spectators before the teams could line up for the try for placement goal kick after touchdown.

HARVARD'S victory over Yale, in which the Crimson succeeded in stopping Al Booth and also in blocking two of his drop kicks in attempts at field goals, wasn't the only upset on Saturday. Oregon State pulled another by beating Detroit.

It was Detroit's first defeat since it lost to Notre Dame in October

DRURY TO HAVE X-RAY TAKEN OF WRIST

By CARL W. SHATTO

Manager Frank Frederickson and his Pirate teamen today are well on their way to Montreal, for a battle with Les Canadiens there tomorrow. The local puckmen left on their first and shortest road trip of the season, carrying with them a heavy cargo of mental injuries sustained in the 5-3 beating they absorbed at the hands of the New York Rangers here Saturday night.

Herb Drury

Herb Drury, veteran high-speed center, was not on the Pirate brig when it set sail for the Dominion. Herb sustained a severe sprain to his right wrist when he crashed into the end boards in the third period of the duel with the Rangers, and was forced to quit the game while the milling was at its height. Yesterday the injured member was badly swollen and Manager Frederickson decided to leave Herb at home.

FEARS BONE IS BROKEN

Drury is to have his injury X-rayed today. He fears that a small bone is his wrist is broken.

Other members of the Pirate squad came through the tilt with the Rangers in good condition, and are primed to tangle with the Flying Frenchmen. Jerry Lowrey, donning skates for the first time in four days Saturday, found that his ankle sprain was well on the mend, and he will be prepared to take up Drury's duties at center in the Montreal engagement. Bud Jarvis, who looks better in every game and who tallied one of the Pirates' three goals against the Rangers, will cavort at Lowrey's customary position—left wing.

Although outscored, the Bucs were neither outskated nor outclassed by the speedy Rangers, and they feel confident that they will be able to give Johat, Morenz, Burke & Co., a real battle. Scoring three goals against the New Yorkers' superb defense is something of a feat. The World Champion Bruins had to play overtime to get three tallies against the Rangers last week, and three other clubs have failed to reach that figure when opposed to Les Patrick's men this season.

TWO' GIFT GOALS

With his offense clicking well (the Bucs have counted 15 goals in their first three games) Manager Frederickson is free to concentrate on the Pirate defense, and it is the opinion of fans who witnessed the Ranger fray that he should aim at this department's mental attitude rather than its mechanical performance. Two of the Ranger goals were due entirely to errors of omission rather than commission, and Saturday's fray probably would have ended in a deadlock had the defense been "on its toes."

The Buc defense was guilty of its first error of omission in the second period when Murdock scrimmaged with a Pirate forward along the boards back of the Pittsburgh cage. Murdock was the only Ranger in Pirate territory, and the Buc defense men, thinking that he had lost possession of the puck, turned and skated back to their positions. Murdock, however, still had the disc, and he swooped in ontop of Goaler Miller for a tally that never would have been registered had the Buc defenders continued to watch him.

MILLER SURPRISED

A second goal tallied by the Rangers a few minutes later was a gift wrapped up in Miller's "mistaken opinion."

In stopping a Ranger shot Goalie Joe dropped the puck at the goal mouth. A Pirate forward skated past, reached for the puck—and missed it. Miller thought that his mate had the disc, and paid little attention to Keeling when he skated idly up center ice. Other Pirates saw the disc at Miller's feet and thought that he would clear before Keeling arrived. Miller didn't move, Keeling pushed the puck some six inches

TOMORROW—ONE-QUARTER EQUALS THREE-EIGHTHS

ZIVIC FACES TEST IN GO TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

It's a case of make or break for Jack Zivic in the main bout at Motor Square Garden tonight. He meets Tiger Joe Randall, hard-hitting Negro welterweight, of Elizabeth. Time was when fellows like the Tiger were a dime a dozen for Zivic, but that was when he was in his prime, fighting the best in the land. Now he's 26, with only four bouts under his belt in the last year or so. He has to win tonight or give the Tiger a good fight to get back on top and have a chance of staying there.

Jack Zivic.

The bout possesses two qualities that appeal to the fans. One is that it is a local match, with each man having his followers, and the other that both are good sockers. Jack's best bet is a heavy left hook; the Tiger knocks 'em out with a little trick shift, followed by a looping right to the jaw. Both will be winging for a knockout.

Jackie Rodgers, local Negro bantamweight, with knockouts to his credit over Carl Cavelli and Pete Mazzeo in his last two starts, meets Davy Adelman, of Philadelphia, in the eight-round semi-final. Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, is in with Sammy Paris, of the Hill, in the second bout and Tiny O'Neil, Steubenville behemoth, and Ken Harley, Negro heavyweight, of Wilmerding, both victims of George Panka, toss the works against each other in the opener.

GIZZY AT WASHINGTON

A. A. MOGULS OPEN CONFAB AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—With a controversy brewing over the number of games to be played, club owners of the American Association will hold their annual meeting here today to adopt a schedule for the 1930 season. President Thomas J. Hickey said club owners were divided on the schedule issue, with a deadlock possible.

Hickey will present two schedules for consideration, one for 154 games and the other for 168. The association has played through a 168-game schedule for the last 10 years.

The 1930 season will open April 15, regardless of the schedule adopted. The season will finish September 21, if the shorter season is agreed upon, and September 28 will be the closing date if it is decided to play 168 games.

Chocolate Ill, Fight Tonight Called Off

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—(AP.)—The Kid Chocolate-Eddie O'Dowd fight, scheduled for tonight at the St. Nicholas Arena was indefinitely postponed last night when the Cuban featherweight was reported ill.

YALE'S FENCE RETURNED

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The segment of Yale's famous college campus fence, which was taken from the Pach Studio here a week ago Saturday and which turned up at Harvard Lampoon dinner in Cambridge Friday night, was delivered at the studio today by the express company to which it was turned over early Saturday in Boston by a group of Harvard and Yale men. Express charges of $8.35 had been prepaid by the consignor, who gave his name as Eric Gustafson.

Capt. (Firpo) Greene, of the Yale football team, probably will be the first to be photographed against the fence, as he had delayed having his picture taken until the fence was recovered. The first photographs made with the fence were in 1879, when the late Walter Camp, captain that year, had his picture and that of his famous team made with the fence in the background.

The Yale football squad will have its dinner and hold an election of captain tomorrow night. After that it is expected the 1929 pictures will be made.

POP WARNER'S TEAM GETS BIG BOOST

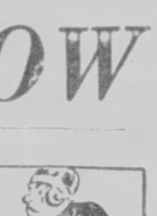
By JESS CARVER.

The top run of the intercollegiate football ladder today is reserved for the spiked footsies of Pappy Warner, the 62-year-old kid coach of Stanford and bed-ridden Knute Rockne, the Irishified Swede of Notre Dame. By the convincing triumphs scored by their devens Saturday, these two have been boosted to the very top of the heap.



Knute Rockne

There was a sneaking suspicion on the part of some that Pap would bring his Stanford Cardinals to just the right peak for the game with California all last week, or ever since Pap's team was beaten by U. S. C. Pap has a habit, one he acquired while here at Pitt, of slipping and sliding all over the football area until time for a big game, and then, pulling his team together and smacking down a 10-to-1 favorite.

PURPLE PURPLED

Rockne, suffering with a particularly dangerous and painful leg infection, sent his swashbuckling Irish Ramblers into Evanston to meet the hopeful challenge of Northwestern. What the Irish did to the Purple was plenty. The Northwestern gridiron is still smoking from the fire of Notre Dame's attack.

I'll bet there wasn't a ball game in the country like the one the Dukes and Haskell put on here at Forbes Field. Duquesne must be given credit for sticking in there and fighting back at a tough and rugged foe, although they were outplayed at almost every turn. One forward pass, just one, and the Dukes had a ball game that had been given up for lost by all except the most rabid Hill rooters.

INDIANS' LINE FINE

Haskell presented one of the best drilled elevens that has preformed here this fall. The line was a dandy, a hard charging, alert and vicious tackling wall. The backs, led by a substitute fullback, Wally Johnson, worked well, handling the ball on the reverse and triple pass plays surely and quickly.

Tod Wilson made a game attempt to intercept the pass that Pratt caught and converted into a touchdown. If Tod had tried to bat it down or waited and nailed Pratt instead of trying to intercept it, I do not believe the Dukes would have scored.

Having come right out in the open, like the big, brave guy I am, and said that the Dukes were outplayed and that Haskell deserved to win the ball game, I expect to receive bag after bag full of letters. Extra help has been put on, so fire away.

TITANS VICTORS

Westminster came back nobly after losing to the Dukes here and kicked old Geneva about right merrily at Beaver Falls. According to the scrambled figures of the Tri-State Conference, the United Presbyterians are now certain of a tie for the title.

St. Vincents was flogged by Allegheny; St. Francis held Dick Harlow's unbeaten Western Maryland eleven to a 7-0 score; Doyle-Elkins routed Canisius 26-0 and Navy tripped West Virginia Wesleyan 30-6 in Arnold Horween (nee Horwitz) is receiving the congratulations of Harvard supporters today, following the victory of the Crimson over the Ell. Matt Stevens is receiving mail from disgruntled Yale alumni, telling him how to play his fancies. Such is football.

DETROIT TRIPPED

Detroit University's victory string came to an end when Oregon State kicked the Titans over at Detroit. Fordham trampled on Bucknell, a right noble feat and Tem-

It was a Harvard prank.

PITT TURNS DOWN POST-SEASON GAME IN EAST

ACTION TAKEN AT SPECIAL MEETING

The Athletic Council of the University of Pittsburgh today declined with thanks the invitation of the New York Milk Fund Committee for a post-season game to be played in New York December 7 between the unbeaten Pitt eleven and Fordham, New York University or Colgate.

The action was taken at a special meeting of the council, called this morning for the expressed purpose of acting on the bid. In a statement issued after the meeting, the council declared that the strain and time involved in playing a post-season game other than one during the Christmas holidays would react unfavorably on the studies of the team members and that the only extra contest that would be favorably regarded by the University would be one to be played during the holiday period.

Dean Friesell, of the University of Pittsburgh Dental School, is chairman of the Athletic Council. Other members include C. L. Woolridge, W. Don Harrison, Dr. William McEllroy, J. Steele Gow, C. W. Ridinger and Charles Wettach.

FLOOR SEASON ON TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

The basketball season in the Greater Pittsburgh district gets under way tonight when the West Penn League, the leading amateur circuit in this section, inaugurates its 1929-1930 campaign with two well-matched contests on the schedule.

Two members of last year's Institutional League have the honor of participating in the opening battles, the Young Men's Hebrew Association, winner of the Institutional League and A. A. U. title in 1928, opposing the South Side Falcons at Falcon Hall, while Kingsley House invades the confines of the North Side Moose to meet the Ray Schneiders.

Both games bring together smooth-working floor machines and fans should be treated to some excellent passing tonight. Last year the Y. M. H. A. ranked as the outstanding amateur quintet in the district and is picked to make a determined bid for the West Penn laurels. In meeting the Falcons the Oaklanders are opposing one of the crack teams of the loop.

The Ray Schneiders, having drafted some of the stars who helped the Knickerbockers win the title last winter, are on edge for Kingsley House. The North Siders are favorites to cop tonight's game, but they are certain to be extended to the limit.

Tomorrow night the Falcons play their second league game of the week, meeting the revamped Knickerbockers at Forresters Hall, Lawrenceville. The Knickers are composed mainly of boys from the Strip district this winter.

ADAMS SOUGHT BY CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The Globe-Democrat said yesterday that Earl (Sparky) Adams, Pittsburgh infielder, may play second base for the Cardinals next year. Sam Breadon, Redbirds' president, refused to comment on the report that the Cardinals were angling for Adams, saying that it would be poor business judgment to reveal any players the Cardinals might be seeking from other National League teams.

The office of the Pittsburgh Pirates today admitted that a deal is on for the sale of Sparky Adams, but denied any disposal of the player had yet been made.

Inter-City Boxing Tourney Tonight

Clark Hinkle, Bucknell's great fullback, is one of the outstanding stars of the eastern gridirons this fall. He ranks among the topnotch scorers and has been a mighty factor in the success of the Bisons. However, he has no mean line to clear the way for him, as this picture of the Bucknell-Fordham game in New York last Saturday shows. Fordham won, 14-0.

CANADIENS TOP YANKS BY 3 TO 2

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Montreal's speedy Canadiens fought an uphill battle last night to defeat the downtrodden but still strong New York Americans, 3 to 2, in an overtime National Hockey League game. It was New York's third straight defeat.

The Americans, strengthened by the return of Billy Burch, holdout center, made a great fight of it and managed to keep in the running until late in the extra period. Wildore LaRochelle scored the final goal. The lineup:

BLACKHAWKS WIN, 4-0

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The Chicago Blackhawks solved Detroit's defense in the first and third periods last night to swamp the lowly Cougars, 4 to 0, in a rough National Hockey League contest before 6,000 spectators at the Coliseum.

Vic Ripley, Duke Dutkowski and Johnny Gottzelig did the scoring in the third stanza. Miller tallied the first score, unassisted, near the end of the initial period.

Eight penalties hampered the Cougars, w' have yet to win a league game. The lineup:

ZIVIC MEETS RANDALL

Promoter Francis Flynn, of the Moose Temple, had a tough time making the Hans Roberts-Tom Malco bout for his windup next Friday night. Malco, who will be making his debut as a main-bouter, with a long list of consecutive wins behind him, held out for 146 pounds, and Johnny Deutsch, manager of Roberts, insisted that he make 144. When Malco finally convinced Deutsch, on Saturday, that he scaled 150 pounds at that time and would have trouble making the weight, each agreed to give a pound, and the 145-pound compromise was hit upon.

Pete Zivic, local featherweight, protests the report from St. Louis that Pee Wee Kaiser defeated him in their bout there last week. He says it was a no-decision battle, and the St. Louis newspapers and fans disagreed on the winner, making it, in effect, a draw. He has a bout in prospect for Chicago next Friday night.

FORTUNE EVANS LEAVES

Fortune Evans, the Negro middleweight, who knocked out Frank Monroe at Motor Square Garden last Monday night and announced that he intended to stay around here and clean up the field, has returned to Chicago.

MANY HOLDOUTS IN PROSPECT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Frost never has been known to harm a crop of baseball holdouts; by this token a bumper harvest of big contract seekers is predicted for early December.

Dazzy Vance

Babe Ruth's three-year document with the Yankees has expired; Dazzy Vance has gone into seclusion to think up new arguments to flag a reduction in pay on top of a poor season; Rogers Hornsby doubtless does not consider anything less than 40 grand, while Frank O'Doul and Chuck Klein should be devising ways and means as to how to proceed in Philadelphia.

Inasmuch as Ruth makes more money per year than Judge Landis and just about as much as President Hoover, there is at least nation-wide interest in the Bambino's salary development.

A PRINCELY SUM

Babe has just fulfilled his long-time document calling for $70,000 per season. It is hardly likely that he will be offered another contract of the same duration; yet, provided he signs for only one season, he is likely to demand more than the President gets for a similar period.

Ruth cons tently could ask for $100,000 for one season in view of past performances and the fact that his employers would be out from under all obligations at the end of a year. In all events this case will be watched with a lively interest.

Ol' Dazmarine, after forcing the muddled up Brooklyn directors into a $25,000 paper last spring, proceeded to have one of his worst years. The colorful pitcher is said to have stressed past performance in getting the desired amount, but his favorite prescription will hardly fit the bill for next season. Vance, however, is nothing if not resourceful; he is apt to get just about as much as he received last year.

Messrs. Wrigley and McCarthy are believed to be on the trail of the big pitcher. They are in a position to offer a tempting sum to the Flatbush owners, as the Cubs made enough profit last season to float a loan.

A COUPLE O' QUAKERS

Hornsby doesn't seem to have much trouble in reaching financial agreements from year to year, but many others, especially O'Doul and Klein, are likely to find it hard to get what they think they are worth after their astonishing successes.

The Philly stars may learn it will take more than a Philadelphia lawyer to talk William Baker out of stipends commensurate to their skill and value. O'Doul, the leading batter of the league, established a new record for hits in the senior circuit, while Klein smeared the league's home-run record.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, including Owner Barney Dreyfuss, who has recovered from a siege of sickness, will be guests at the Amen Corner dinner scheduled tonight at the home of the organization in the William Penn Hotel.

Growth Removed From Hornsby's Left Heel

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Rogers Hornsby, second baseman for the Chicago Cubs, will spend the next week in St. Johns Hospital here following an operation for the removal of a bone growth from his left heel. The operation was performed by Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician, for the Cardinals and Browns.

Amateur Billiard Stars Meet Today

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—M. C. Wallgren, of Everett, Wash., defending champion, and R. V. Fessenden, of Madison, Wis., today were paired off for the first of their three 300-point block challenge round matches for the amateur 18.2 balkline billiard championship.

Wallgren, if successful against Fessenden, will meet Alex Emslie, of Milwaukee, in the next challenge round match.

South Hills Caddies To Be Dined Tonight

Two hundred and fifty caddies will be guests of the South Hills Country Club in the club house, Brownsville and Clairton roads, tonight. They will be entertained with a boxing bout, buffet supper and other ent..tainment. Prizes will be awarded to the ones holding highest credits for the season.

TO PLAY WEDNESDAY

The next competition in the city club handball doubles tournament is to be played Wednesday night when the Downtown Y meets the Keystone A. C. on the K. A. C. courts. The same night the Y. M. H. A. meets the P. A. A. team at the P. A. A.

Long's Sport Comment

1927. Following that reverse Gus Dorais' team won 19 straight games, including a victory over Carnegie Tech here in 1927. Next it was held to a tie by Marquette three weeks ago last Saturday, and then it beat West Virginia and Michigan State—22 games in a row without a defeat, prior to last Saturday's fall. And in its preceding two games, Oregon State had been beaten by Washington State and Oregon without scoring, and it also lost to Southern California and Stanford this year.

Tim Moynihan

STANFORD'S 21-to-6 victory over California was no upset to those who know Pop Warner. It is in big games, in which the chances appear to be all against him that Warner always shines, and those familiar with his ability to bring his team to the peak for any game that he desires particularly to win were not surprised at the result, which left the California championship and the Tournament of Roses thing in a considerable muddle, inasmuch as Southern California had previously beaten Stanford and California had defeated Southern California, not to mention St. Mary's, which not only is undefeated but has not even been scored on. Notre Dame's victory over Northwestern was in line with expectations. It was a costly triumph for the Irish, in view of the fact that Tim Moynihan, star 190-pound center, was lost for the Army game through the breaking of a small bone in his right ankle. At that, Knute Rockne always bobs up with a capable substitute, so the dope still is that Notre Dame will complete an undefeated season by downing the Army next Saturday, leaving forever unanswered the moot question as to whether the Irish or Pitt can boast the greater team for the year.

No local [illegible] ever been able to circle [illegible] as Levey did. With about five minutes remaining, Stanley Berkman punted the length of the field from behind his own goal line. The Majestics ran a couple of plays and then Levey, after carrying the ball to the 42-yard line, [illegible] Dummer and Brown [illegible] scrimmage and blocked the kick. Brown was knocked out on the play but Dummer grabbed the ball and ran for a touchdown.

As a result the great crowd was stunned by the turn of events, and it was impossible to get the field cleared for the extra point to be kicked.

So with [illegible] minutes to go the game finished. Both teams [illegible] played for a majority of the game. West View [illegible] proved the nemesis of the [illegible] aggregation.

LEVEY BRILLIANT

Levey was brilliant but just as Stan Berkman said, he gets wonderful interference. This boy Dwyer only carried the ball once, but certainly did do his stuff running interference for the other ball carriers.

Karcis played a whale of a game on the Majestic line as did Scanlon and Nixon. Berkman gave the best exhibition of punting seen on local sandlots this fall. It was the educated toe of the former Thiel luminary that kept West View out of trouble.

Roddy Cole was the only consistent ground-gainer for the Parkers, his plunging showing to advantage against the Majestic line. But getting nowhere through Andy Cutler, Wilde, Nixon and Karcis is one tough job. Alex Fox, former Pitt star, also played a whale of a game.

The Olympics bowed to the Awnings when the Tube City aggregation failed to stop the Ohio aerial attack. Haines and Lamme scored touchdowns for the Buckeyes, while Kaletz plowed through the line for the only Olympic score.

The game at the Quarry Stadium found Monessen outplaying the Firemen. Buzz Edwards plunged the ball over in the third period for the only touchdown of the game. The Firemen never threatened. The lineups:

PATRICK LAUDS BUCS

When the Pirates were as active mentally as they were physically they played the New Yorkers to a standstill, and Les Patrick, veteran pilot of the invaders, was the first to admit that the Ranger win was due entirely to the "breaks." In discussing the prospects of the Pirates after the fight, Patrick, who has won more world titles than any other manager in the sport, said that the Bucs' passing and team play was as good as any he had seen this season. In congratulating Manager Frederickson on his successful fight to give Pittsburgh pro hockey the foundation of teamwork it long has needed, Patrick said that this greater co-operation was bound to bear fruit, and that no one would be making a grave error in conceding the Bucs a play-off berth."

HARVARD STAR WINS FIGHT FOR LIFE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 25.—(INS.)—Fighting a game uphill battle, Victor M. Harding, star end of the Harvard varsity football squad, who was severely injured in the Harvard-Yale game, today was on the road to recovery.

Physicians at Stillman Infirmary said that Harding's condition had improved greatly during the night and his name removed from the danger list.

Harding, who comes from Hubbard Woods, Ill., and is a junior at Harvard, received a blow in the fourth quarter of the game, just two plays after he had been sent in, that shattered his spleen and ended his gridiron career.

And while Harvard was ringing to the cheers of the Crimson victory over Eli, Harding underwent a blood transfusion operation at Stillman Infirmary just in time to save his life.

Outside the operating room were his mother, Mrs. Victor M. Harding, and his sister, Mary, who had seen him play in the stadium. Ironically, it was the first college game in which his mother had seen her son play and the game in which he was winning his letter "H." His father was prevented by business from attending the game. Himself a famous Harvard quarterback in the '80s, the elder Harding was said to be ready to leave Chicago at a moment's notice if the condition of his son became worse.

Particular attention has been paid to cover the new changes in the rules. A better understanding of what is going on during a contest will be gained by following this series.)*

PLAY NO. 1.

In a game between Purdue and Northwestern, the referee calls a foul on Walter, of Northwestern, for holding Murphy, and, at the same time, the umpire calls one on Reil, of Northwestern, for blocking Murphy. The whistles were simultaneous.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

Both fouls are penalized as personal fouls, neither taking precedence over the other.

Superabundance of Cheap Money Will Stimulate.

—By B. C. FORBES—

MONEY is going abegging in New York.

This fact carries much encouragement to industry, business and securities. Not only was call money available at the end of the week at as low as 3 per cent, contrasted with 10 per cent only a few weeks ago, but time loans are being made at 5 per cent against 9 per cent recently. Current rates are very much lower than a year ago.

Brokers' loans, cut $585,000,000 this week, now stand $3,217,000,000 below last month's peak and at $3,585,000,000, are smaller than at any time since December, 1927.

A great many corporations and wealthy individuals who sent money to Wall street to reap the abnormally high rates available there will now seek other outlets for their surplus capital.

Boards of directors who hesitated to make extensive capital expenditures or launch new enterprises when alluring returns on their funds were procurable in Wall street without the slightest risk, will now withdraw them—many have done so already—and put them to work at home with a drop of one-half, or 50 per cent, in the return obtainable in Wall street, will not only stimulate the application of surpluses to legitimate business purposes, but will encourage corporations and entrepreneurs to launch new enterprises.

Moreover, it will greatly facilitate the raising of money by public authorities to carry out construction and other projects.

Remember, 'tis "money makes the mare go."

THIS plethora of cheap money is, of course, a major consideration in analyzing security market prospects. Just as excessively dear money became a chief factor in finally checking the grossly overdone advance in stocks, so cheap money cannot fail to prove a factor in stimulating a recovery from the grossly-overdone decline in many securities.

Tight money almost always played a prime factor in past panics. But no previous panic was immediately followed by such a superabundance of loanable money as is available this time.

Nor was this stock-market panic accompanied by overexpansion and inflation in the business world. With few exceptions, basic industries have been conducted on reasonably conservative lines, and the general price level has been thoroughly sound.

Briefly, the only thing that went crazy was the stock market. It having been brought most painfully to its senses, no other flagrant inflation calls for attention.

FOR these and other reasons, it is not improbable that the effects on the deflation in Wall Street may be relatively mild and temporary elsewhere, and that the recovery in good stocks to rational levels will be faster than after other panics.

ANOTHER consideration. Never before in a time of financial trouble was there such spontaneous, comprehensive and whole-hearted co-operation between men of large affairs and the government. Never before was there an American president so well equipped to bring about such co-operation. President Hoover is a past master in handling conferences and a past master in meeting emergencies.

While it were easy to exaggerate the practical value of last week's various impressive gatherings at Washington, the indisputable fact is that both industry and the administration have today a fuller realization than at any time in the past of the vital importance of doing everything possible to maintain confidence and prosperity.

Our business leaders of today have a keener consciousness than had business leaders of the past of their social responsibil-

Can you imagine the predecessors of the employers who met in Washington last week readily pledging themselves not to attempt to reduce wages on the heels of a destructive panic? Cutting wages was the first thing thought of under similar conditions in the past.

THUS far industry and business, all testimony agrees, have not been violently affected by the collapse in Wall street. True, there are rumors aplenty of this, that and the next "luxury business" having received cancellations. Even these reports probably are much exaggerated. In other lines of trade the effect appears to have been quite moderate.

Should security markets experience no fresh spasms of nervousness, and the gains already made be maintained, there is no reason why our national prosperity should be sacrificed.

TO repeat what was said here during the upheaval if we keep our heads we should prove able to keep our prosperity—at least most of it. While it would be foolish to expect too much, there is no reason for expecting the worst.

Stock Market Recovers 25% of Decline From Year's High.

THE scope of the recovery movement since the unprecedented break culminated on November 13, is perhaps not generally realized. At the low levels reached on that date the market as measured by the index of 90 stocks compiled jointly by the Evening Post and the Standard Statistics Company, Inc., had dropped more than 113 points, or from the high of 253.5 reached on September 7, last to a low of 140.3. In the six days of recovery which was interrupted yesterday by the inflow of week-end realizing, the market as measured by the index had recovered approximately 31 index points, or roughly somewhat more than 25 per cent of its decline from the year's high to the November 13 low. Thus it becomes apparent that the rebound from the low levels has been very substantial for so short a space of time.

Industry and trade are running behind this time last year but the weekly trade journals find conditions generally satisfactory considering the severity of the process just completed of leveling off from previous speculative excesses. Dun's reports the necessary adjustments preceding without marked disorganization, calling attention particularly to "the comparatively small volume of cancellations and requests for deferment of shipments on orders previously placed." Absence of any pronounced unsettlement ascribed to the "conservatism which had governed commercial operations during the era of notable advancement, in the lack of competitive bidding for goods and the concomitant of rapidly rising prices."

THE volume of trading in the week ended fell to the smallest since the Stock Exchange adopted its shortened sessions after having been swamped under the rush to sell, which accompanied the break in the market a fortnight ago. In the 15 trading hours last week a total of 14,318,600 shares changed hands. This was just about half of the turnover recorded in the preceding week, and roughly one-third of the unprecedented total piled up in the week ended November 2, last, when with 43,613,000 shares having been dealt in from the opening on Monday of that week to the closing on Thursday, the Stock Exchange decided to recess from actual trading on Friday and Saturday to give members much needed extra time to adjust themselves.

Considerable talk is now heard regarding the floating supply of stocks. There is no doubt that during the break in the market the amount of stock available in Wall Street was increased substantially because in many instances there was selling of investment holdings from strong boxes. It was this persistent supply which was a big factor in establishing such low levels for many stocks.

ODD-LOT purchases for cash have been taking up some of this floating supply in recent sessions and reducing the amount of stock in Wall street. However, this has not become a big factor as yet. Investors in odd lots have been most conservative in their buying. They do not take stocks during sharp rallies, but rather on a scale on reactions. When the market is moving ahead, the demand for odd lot diminishes.

Leading market observers contend that there will be many periods of irregularity with rallies and reactions following each other rapidly. They have not changed their attitude and still advise clients to take advantage of upturns to reduce long commitments. Stop orders also are favored for the protection of accounts. The fact that stops were reached during yesterday's market would seem to indicate that this recommendation is being followed by some outsiders.

Huge Hog Receipts Cause Market Drop

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Packing house receipts of hogs today by direct shipments were the largest in the history of the Chicago Union Stock Yards. Forty thousand hogs of all descriptions were unloaded in the packers' pens without going through the general market.

Total receipts of hogs were the largest for the year with 70,000 crowding the pens and alleys. This was not the largest number of hogs received in any one day by several thousand, but was several thousand greater than any other single day's run in 1929. Last year the largest number received was just slightly under 90,000.

As a result of the huge run today, the market declined from 10 to 20 cents with little buying.

California Crude Oil Output Higher

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—California daily crude oil production for week ended November 23 was 697,500 barrels, against 673,500 barrels for week previous, up 24,000 barrels.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—Production of gasoline in California during the month of October amounted to 8,584,975 barrels. This compares with 7,868,908 barrels produced in September and 5,900,225 barrels in October, 1928, according to the United States Bureau of Mines. Stocks of gasoline show an increase of 1,129,298 barrels during October and at the end of the month amounted to 14,062,474 barrels.

Bond Call Forced By Market Decline

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The recent decline in stock prices has resulted in enforced payment by Second Incorporated Investors, Inc., of the issue of $5,000,000 6% collateral trust 10-year gold bonds, which became callable when the value of the collateral thereunder became less than 130 per cent of the principal amount of bonds outstanding. G. Putnam, president, said that when assets of second preferred and common shares are stabilized company will be completely reorganized.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market Rallies — Local Market Narrow

STOCKS RALLY FROM EARLY DECLINE

Trading Dull With Ticker About on Time as 5-Hour Sessions Are Resumed

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—Stock prices showed a distinctly reactionary tendency today as five-hour sessions were resumed. Prices of many leading stocks broke 2 to nearly 12 points during the morning, but brisk recoveries took place in many cases when it became apparent that the decline was not causing any extensive liquidation of either investment or speculative holdings. Trading was relatively dull, with the ticker keeping fairly well abreast of the market.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4½ per cent, but the rate was again shaded in the outside market. An easy undertone developed in other monetary markets. Business news generally was favorable. Wall street was pleased at the response to President Hoover's efforts to stimulate business, and to reports that pre-holiday trade in the New York department stores was in large volume.

PROFITS TAKEN

Early selling was believed to represent profit taking by traders who had accumulated stocks in the early stages of last week's advance and showed a disposition to take their profits before the beginning of the four-day holiday this week. Some experimental short selling to test the character of the bids in the market also was in evidence, but with the stock exchange still demanding daily statements of short positions from its members, such selling was rather cautious in character.

Copper shares were liquidated rather freely on reports that some independent producers were offering the red metal below the official price of 18 cents a pound Anaconda Copper dropped 4 points, American Smelting 3. Kennecott 2½ and several others a point or more.

RALLY AFTER DECLINE

General Electric dropped 11 points and snapped back 7½ before it met a fresh flood of offerings. Air Reduction dropped 7½ points. U. S. Industrial Alcohol 8½, Standard Gas and Electric 8, A. M. Byers 7 and Johns Manville 6 but all rebounded 4 points or more on the lifting of selling pressure, only to encounter renewed selling in mid-afternoon. Detroit Edison fell back 11¼. National Cash Register, Westinghouse Electric, Simmons Company, American and Foreign Power and American Packing and Foundry all sold down 5 points or more.

International Match preferred rallied 3¼ points on the announcement of an increased dividend. Peoples Gas and Louisville and Nashville also recorded good gains.

I. C. C. Ruled Against In Station Building

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission was declared by the Supreme Court today to be without authority to order the construction of union passenger stations.

Chief Justice Taft, in delivering the opinion said Congress had not specifically given the Commission such authority and that it could not be imputed.

The controversy reached the courts when the Interstate Commerce Commission declined to order the construction of a union passenger station in the plaza area in Los Angeles, Cal.

California Oil Tax For Roads Upheld

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The right of the state of California to impose a tax upon production, refining or distribution of fuel oil for motor vehicles for the purpose of providing a fund for construction and improvements of public highways was upheld by United States Supreme Court.

Steel Castings Orders Gained In October

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Manufacturers of steel castings, according to compilations of new orders booked during October and reported to the Commerce Department, have in immediate prospect one of the busiest periods experienced by the industry. The total of October orders for commercial steel castings of all descriptions amounted to 135,400 tons, and represented a total equal to 93 per cent of plant capacity for one month. Similar orders booked in September amounted to but 59 per cent of plant capacity, and in October, 1928, the bookings were equivalent to but 54 per cent of monthly capacity.

In the last three or four years, steel castings orders have approached the October total only in a single month, April of this year, when they amounted to 99 per cent of plant capacity.

KROGER BOUGHT ON BREAK

CINCINNATI, Nov. 25.—"I was a heavy buyer of Kroger Grocery and Baking stock in the recent stock market decline because I had perfect faith in the excellent management of the company and in the wonderful prospects of the organization," B. H. Kroger, chairman of Kroger Grocery, stated.

"Regardless of the trend of general business in the coming months, the company will show an improvement. All prospects point to sales this year approximating the estimate the Wall Street Journal recently carried of $300,000,000 profits are quite satisfactory.

"Should the market decline again I would make further purchases of the stock. The intrinsic worth of the company's equities, in my opinion, make them worth while from an investment standpoint."

Peters Trust Co. Liquidation Ordered

OMAHA, Nov. 25.—Liquidation of assets of the Peters Trust Company, one of the largest in Nebraska, was ordered today by the District Court, on petition of the State Department of Trade and Commerce, and at the request of the company.

Receivership will be handled by Clarence G. Bliss, state banking secretary.

"Action taken today," said Paul Martin, attorney for the company, "marks termination of the situation which developed as a result of the general agricultural deflation of 1920."

Aviator Awarded Order of the Crown

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP.)—The Curb Market sagged under quiet selling pressure during the early hours of trading today, but the liquidation was readily absorbed and the market again turned upward by early afternoon. Trading continued in moderate volume, with the ticker keeping close to the market.

The market returned to full five-hour trading sessions today for the first time in about three weeks. The fact that it will be closed for four days beginning Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, however, tended to encourage profit-taking on last week's gains, and to discourage further buying.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Columbia Pictures to Earn $9.25 a Share

BY GEORGE B. SNYDER

OFFICIALS of the Columbia Pictures Corporation, largest independent in the motion picture industry, expect the present fiscal year to show profits of nearly $1,000,000. This would be equivalent to $9.25 a share on the 100,000 shares of common stock after deducting preferred dividends.

In the year ended June 30, 1929, net profit after all charges was $551,822 or $4.77 a share. This more than doubled profits of the preceding fiscal year of $249,931 or $1.75 a share.

The estimated gain is based on results already shown and the production schedule which the company has under way. In the quarter ended September 30, the first of the fiscal year, net profit was $227,948 or $2.08 a share. Such earnings for this period are exceptionally promising since this quarter normally is marked by a deficit. In the corresponding period of 1928 the loss amounted to $22,441.

Seasonal Factor

THE seasonal factor in the company's earnings is attributable to the practice of the industry of bringing out a large number of feature pictures in July, the beginning of the sales season. Depreciation at a high rate starts immediately on these releases although their maximum revenue is not received until later in the year.

This year the improvement was due to the fact that a large number of older releases were still drawing heavy receipts. This more than offset the bookkeeping losses on the initial months of the new productions.

Profits for the September quarter, according to all precedent, will be less than in the remaining periods of the year so that the company should not have any difficulty in matching the estimate made for the year's profits.

Wide Distribution

THE position of Columbia in the industry is unique. It owns no theaters. This tends to increase its goodwill among independent exhibitors who would rather give their business to an independent with a good product than to one of the leaders in the amusement field who is an actual or a prospective competitor in the operation of theaters. There are about 20,000 motion picture houses in the country of which 15,000 are independently owned. It is true, of course, that the average size of the independent houses is smaller.

While the bigger organizations have gone into the operation of chains of theaters to fortify their distribution, they have frequently been forced to absorb operating losses due to the enormous overhead of large theaters.

Sells Large Theaters

THE improved quality of Columbia productions during the past few years has also made it possible to sell many of its pictures for exhibition in the houses of the larger producing organizations. The fact that Columbia does not own competing theaters makes them willing to use its productions. The difficulties of securing suitable stories and talent make it impossible to turn out pictures like Fords. The biggest producers can make only about 40 feature pictures a year. This does not take care of the requirements of their own theaters so that Columbia has a good market with producer controlled houses as well as with independent exhibitors.

Foreign Business

FOREIGN sales have been increasing. The company has been meeting the difficulty of supplying non-English speaking countries by making silent versions of its talkie productions. These silent pictures also have a sale in small houses in this country which have not been wired. All of the original versions of the 26 feature pictures being made this year will be 100 per cent talking.

By an arrangement with the Victor Talking Machine Company Columbia is making short pictures featuring artists prominent in the musical world.

USE OF SMOKE SCREEN GROWS

WASHINGTON—(INS.)—The use of smoke screens in the army for the protection of ground troops as well as other arms is growing in importance in the calculations of the chemical warfare service, according to the annual report of Maj. Gen. H. L. Gilchrist, chief of the chemical warfare service, made public today.

"The increasing realization by all branches of the protection afforded by smoke to military operations," Gen. Gilchrist said, "has been of much interest in training for the utilization of this chemical agent.

"Flesh and blood cannot advance against machine guns in the proportion in which they are now included in modern armies without the protection afforded by armor, smoke or great masses of artillery.

"Artillery and armor are very expensive, and to the extent to which their use can be reduced to permit advance, smoke is very economical. Smoke is about the only possible protection, other than the speed of a mechanical force itself, against semi-automatic weapons. Accentuation of smoke training has been one of the major aims of the Chemical Warfare Service during the past year."

Gen. Gilchrist called attention to the fact that almost as many naval officers as those of the army have graduated from the chemical warfare school during the last fiscal year.

During the last year 21,667 gas masks were manufactured for the army and 30,000 for the navy and preliminary work on 27,000 for the latter was begun together with plans for work on 12,000 face pieces for 1930.

Former D. A. R. Head Enters Business

WASHINGTON—(AP.)—Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, former president general of the D. A. R., has accepted the vice presidency of a life insurance company.

She also will be associate editor of a journal of national opinion.

Mrs. Brosseau, as both national treasurer and president general of the D. A. R., handled millions of dollars. Under her direction, $1,000,000 was raised for the completion of Constitution Hall, the fine new building to be dedicated soon.

DOMINION OFFER MADE INDIA

LONDON.—(INS.)—India within a very short period, will be placed on the same Dominion footing as Canada and Australia. This is the decision of the Labor government in Britain, and it is likely to take effect before the New Year.

This change will come as the climax to the drastic changes in British policy towards Egypt, Iraq and Russia. It will be the natural corollary of Labor policies for the past 15 years, but it will be based in the present instance, on the report of Sir John Simon's commission which is expected early in December.

For some months Lord Irwin, viceroy of India, has been in communication with the most important Indian political leaders, in order to see how many would be willing to co-operate in the settlement of the future Constitution of India. A "round table" conference, to examine the best methods of proceedure to bring about the change, is likely to be the next step.

It is believed that Premier Ramsay MacDonald will send personal invitations to the chief Indian leaders—with all of whom he is personally acquainted—to take part in these deliberations, and it seems most likely that national leaders like r.M Gandhi and Pundit Motilal Nehru would gladly accept Mr. MacDonald's offer.

An invitation will also be sent to the Chamber of Princes to send a delegation so that all parties will be amply represented.

Russian Defense Planes End Flight

SEBASTOPOL, Crimea.—(AP.)—Using lakes and rivers for overnight stops the Baltic flet of military hydroairplanes of the Soviet defense force has completed a flight to the Black Sea. The machines covered the 1,200 miles in three easy stages. It was the first demonstration of the possibility of transferring sea planes from one Russian coast to another.

New York's Gas Pumps Accurate

ALBANY.—(INS.)—Eighty-two per cent of the gasoline pumps in New York State are accurate, according to an inspection just completed by the Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Walter Winchell
On Broadway

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.

If I Were King

IF I were King, I would throttle the swift talker who got me to consent to serve on the Board of Governors for the planned Pleasure Island Beach Club at Long Beach, N. Y., just because Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Bugs Baer, Mark Hellinger and others were so ballyhoo. The enterprise, it appears, is being worked along the lines of another "racket" to which I am opposed. And I hope others won't invest in the damb thing because our names are being prostituted.

Editors who fall for such obviously spurious press agent stories like the one about the chorus girl who appeared as a "chorus boy" would be forced to eat steaks without Worcestershire Sauce.

FOR FAT FATTENING FOOD

GIRLS who are sedulous and thrifty are confidential with you when they confess they would have to cook their steaks with nuts in them.

Producers of musical shows who still have the nerve to use that radio bit in which the voice answers a listener-in's query would be forced to sell out to Vincent Astor at an optional matinee.

Chicks who tell you they only want two minutes of your time (when you are in business) and then warm an office chair for 15 would have to crack their own ice at highball parties.

I would give a parade in honor of Harry Reichenbach, the great press agent, for so cleverly putting his client, Margaret Shotwell, the Town Hall pianist, on the nation's first pages with that counterfeit $1,000,000 Wall Street loss. Reichenbach, in case you didn't know, tried to give the story to three different N. Y. reporters as an "exclusive" and, failing, got her mother in Omaha to tell it to a representative for a famous news service.

MIGHTY THE FALL

THE chump succumbed and New York editors seeing the "story" come over "the wire" fell harder than a gal who is promised a Ziegfeld job. And Bernarr Macfadden and others wrote long editorials about her courage.

Friends who turned out false would have to put in eight hours daily learning how to put on a typewriter ribbon.

Night club waiters who stand directly in front of you just when Ruth Etting starts to sing those grand torch tunes would be made to fly over New York in rented planes that have been "okayed."

Authors of "Broadway" novels would be reminded that when you buy a cross-word puzzle book you at least get a pencil with it.

Guys like Frank Fay and John Barrymore, who feature those over-sized attached collars would be forced to ride in taxicabs in which the lights don't work when you want to read.

THEY DESERVE MORE

I WOULD proclaim a holiday for theater managers like Tom Weatherly and Gilbert Miller, who make late-comers stand up in the rear of the house until the first scene is over.

Songwriters who never blush when they lift famous melodies would have to attend literary teas and parties.

Desperate contemporaries who burgle the other fellow's stuff for suburban papers, and, when confronted, have the cheek to assert that they aren't doing anything of the sort, would have to pay their checks in night clubs instead of taking it out "in trade" via a free ad in their colms.

People who disgraced me with a defense when I was being panned, would be made to sit through a play by William A. Grew.

Ah-ahs that grap you by the arm or ask you something (when you are trying to chat with others) and get peeved, because you ask them to wait a moment, would have to wear vests without buttons.

Favor-askers would be drowned in cold coffee.

OH, "STOO CRUEL"

Those collegiates who contribute to their university humor magazines and offer anything no matter how old it is, would be forced to think up something new and comical at least once a year, providing they aren't allowed within 1,000 miles of a pair of shears and paste.

Unimportant press agents who put on dress suits and top hats at third-rate premieres would be made to look at themselves in a mirror.

Sensitive people whose feelings are easily offended would have to eat ice cream without a spoon.

People who tell you stale jokes and prolong the telling of them would have to have their teeth extracted without gas or novocaine.

BACK TO SCHOOL, NAT!

I WOULD make Nat N. Dorfman, press agent for Eddie Cantor, write down one million times: One of my duties to my clients is not to widen the breach between actors and newspapermen but to cement Good Will between them.

Men you write about who demand a retraction on things that you know they know are true would have to sleep in nightgowns.

Women who write to columnists asking for Rudy Vallee's address and private 'phone number would be punished by getting it.

And people who borrow money, promising to pay it back "next week," but don't, would not only never get the chance to borrow it again, but wouldn't be allowed to see a show in which the supremely gorgeous Evelyn Laye appeared!

If I Were King!

Jury Named to Try Conspiracy Charges

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 25.—With a jury of nine men and three women selected, the trial of J. W. Nixon and Harry Cupler of Titusville, charged with conspiracy in the failure of the Oil City brokerage firm of Cadigan, Nixon and Co., in January 1926, was ready to get under way this morning. Testimony is expected to be a repetition of that offered at a former trial when the jury disagreed. Nixon is now serving a term of one year in Venango County jail following conviction on an embezzlement charge in the brokerage case.

Robbers Take Safe, Frightened Away

SHARON, Pa., Nov. 25.—After removing a wall safe from its place in the Pennzoil gas station, just over the Ohio line, robbers were frightened away before they had an opportunity to open it, a short time before police, called by Mrs. Fred Ferguson, who lives nearby, arrived. The safe contained several hundred dollars.

Salvation Army's Drive is Approved

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 25.—Franklin's Community Chest granted permission to the Salvation Army to conduct a city-wide campaign for $10,000 for erection of a new army hall. The new building will be erected on Buffalo street on a lot purchased several years ago.

Sunday Football Put Under Ban In Greene

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 25.—Sunday football in Greene County was stopped yesterday by police authorities acting on orders from District Attorney O. R. Hughes. During the past few weeks Sunday contests had become popular, but their abolishment follows protests from residents near the fields on which the games were played.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate" by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

By Tuthill

THAT'S A VERY GOOD IDEA, VERY GOOD. LET'S ALL GO.
AHEM, WELL I DON'T FEEL A BIT LIKE GOING OUT. AND I HAVE A SLIGHT HEADACHE. WHY DON'T YOU AND FLORENCE GO?
OH INDEED NOT, JOSEPHINE. YOU MUST COME WITH US. PLEASE.
ABSOLUTELY! THERE'S A VERY GOOD SHOW. YOU ALWAYS ENJOY—
NO I WOULDN'T THINK OF IT. I'D ONLY SPOIL THE EVENING FOR BOTH OF YOU. I'LL STAY HOME.
WHY JOSEPHINE YOU KNOW YOU JUST LOVE MOVIES. YOU JUST MUST COME WITH US.
YES WE'LL WAIT FOR YOU. IT WON'T TAKE LONG TO GET READY AND—
NO I WONT GO. WHY INSIST UPON IT? THE WHOLE THING IS SETTLED. YOU AND FLORENCE GO, PLEASE.
HA! THERE THEY GO. THEY KNEW THAT THE MORE THEY INSISTED ON ME COMING WITH THEM THE MORE DETERMINED I'D BE TO STAY HERE. SUCH NERVE! AND THE WAY SHE GRABBED HIS ARM — ALL IN FUN, OF COURSE — WHEN THEY WALKED OUT OF HERE. SUCH A GIDDY THING! HE'S JUST AS SILLY AS SHE IS. WORSE! WELL WHY WORRY ABOUT TRIFLES?

City Must Avoid Error In Terminal Traffic Plan

Council has before it two reports of a special committee appointed to study and recommend a scheme of traffic control to be carried into effect with the vast projected Pennsylvania Railroad improvements involving Penn and Liberty avenues and Grant street. Each report provides for a traffic circle, one, known as "Plan Z," estimated to cost $1,621,000, and the other, "Plan T," to cost $666,000.

In making choice between the two plans lies the possibility of making the GREATEST CIVIC MISTAKE possible, considering the present state of traffic, combined with the problems CERTAIN to be created if the proposed improvement and street changes are carried through as now planned.

To understand the situation a little review is necessary. The Pennsylvania Railroad asked the city to close Liberty avenue for a distance, in order to provide adequate space for its projected passenger terminal, suggesting that it would widen Spring way, paralleling Penn and Liberty avenues. A formal agreement to this end was made, after which a suggestion came from the city that Spring way also be closed, with the railroad undertaking to widen Penn avenue to 120 feet for a stipulated distance, as compensation. All subsequent arrangements have been made with that idea in view, plans being for the terminal to face the widened Penn avenue.

It was realized that throwing all traffic of Grant street, Liberty and Penn avenues into the latter street would create immense difficulties, hence the appointment of the committee to study the situation and present a solution. "Plan Z" and "Plan T" are the results. "Plan Z" is that of the majority of the committee. "Plan T" is the minority plan, that recommended only by the representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who was a member of the committee. All others favored the vastly more desirable and MORE EFFICIENT "Plan Z."

The difference between them is that "Plan T" provides merely for a straight intersection at street grade, while "Plan Z" provides for separation of traffic lanes by depressing some of them below grade at three approaches, that is, at each approach in Penn avenue and the combined Liberty avenue and Grant street approach.

Obviously "Plan Z" is so superior to "Plan T" that there is no comparison from a practical standpoint. The only reason the Pennsylvania Railroad has for favoring the makeshift is the difference in cost. The company has indicated in a statement to Council that it would not object to "Plan Z" if the city assumed the difference in cost, as compared with what the railroad was willing to pay toward the construction of Plan T."

To those who have watched the traffic problem develop in Pittsburgh, the penny-wise policy of the railroad company will appear very foolish. It has developed plans to spend millions in improvements and now, to save a small sum, is willing to have what is expected to be a significant monument to transportation and a great public institution obstructed in its intended uses by what certainly will be nothing but a mess if the city is foolish enough to abide by the railroad company's small attitude.

In fact, the matter is of sufficient importance to warrant the city going ahead with "Plan Z" even without the railroad's co-operation, but it should not do so without exhausting every persuasion to bring the railroad officials to see that it will serve best its own interests and that of its patrons by spending a few extra dollars and doing its big job right. Certainly the city has been most friendly in its dealings with the railroad company in this matter. It is right that it should be, since an improved terminal is greatly to be desired. But the city has a limit in stretching the line of fairness. It already has gone beyond what it could be expected to do in agreeing to close streets, which will bring about the traffic congestion the remedy for which the railroad now dodges.

The railroad improvement is not the only one to be carried out in that vicinity. Already there are plans for other great buildings, and it would be a shame if access to the new station and to them were made more difficult than need be.

Pittsburgh wants to see all these improvements. And it also wishes to see that the city and the railroad do not, for a matter of a few dollars, make permanent what would be a foolish mistake. "Plan Z" can be carried out now. If "Plan T" is adopted it later will be found to be woefully inadequate and beyond remedy unless at a cost that would be many times the multiple of what the expense now would be. And a remedy might not be possible at any cost.

Let's Get This Straight

A Prohibition Agent and His Wife.

A prohibition agent applied in Supreme Court, Brooklyn, for an order revoking $400 counsel fee and $35 a week alimony. His reason, he stated, was the fact that he was suspended from prohibition enforcement duty.

His wife, in answering affidavits, asserted that even though suspended, her former husband might be a good sport, and pay, because—

1. He has a town house in Manhattan.
2. Two houses in Staten Island.
3. Fat bank accounts in the names of friends.
4. Secret caches of cash.
5. Two motor cars.
6. A motorboat.

Such goings-on might tend to dishearten noble experimenters, so it should be recorded that the prohibition enforcer denied his wife's assumptions, and declared that she was misinformed. Incidentally, this man was recently acquitted of the disturbing charge of accompanying rum trucks as a protector.

Near Nonesuch Island

They Find a Nonesuch Fish.

Mr. Beebe brings back a strange fish, found off Nonesuch Island, in very deep water.

Smooth skinned, with white spots, this fish, when put in water in a dark room, illuminates itself. The white spots light up like ship port lights.

To explain this would puzzle the evolutionists. Darwin admitted that it was hard to explain the beginning of the eye in animals.

On the other hand, it seems improbable that this strange fish could have needed those port lights when it was originally created in the Garden of Eden, according to the fundamentalists.

The fish might, however, have amused little Cain and Abel, except that they had no dark room in which to experiment with it. In any case, the Garden of Eden was interestingly populated, if the fundamentalists are right. Think of more than 4,000,000 different kinds of insects alone, already counted. And think of the bigger animals.

The freshmen retaliate by kicking the sophomores in the trousers until their bell-bottomed pants ring out the old year.

MILLIKAN AND THE MILKMAN

By Herbert Kaufman

PROF. HARLOW SHAPLEY, who surveys futures and fundamentals from Harvard's astronomical laboratory, discovers, after squinting through the most powerful telescopes and microscopes at present command, that we are still crawling among "the foothills of knowledge."

He tosses imagination, among other tidbits for digestion, the fact that the material system (of which the pinpoint where we dwell in such a piddling part) measures "more than a thousand million trillion miles across."

In light of which observation, it would appear that man will be indefinitely occupied with research, practice correction and the investigation of substance and environment.

Students of yesterday must step aside for experts on tomorrow.

Live problems can't be solved with dead theories. One thought that hasn't PREVIOUSLY occurred to anybody else, is more important than a library full of trite knowledge.

CONSEQUENTLY, Dr. Millikan's value to society is equal to that of the average million individuals who never contribute a lasting thought or a permanent principle to progress.

Millikan is now assured that radioactivity largely emanates from four sources, to wit: helium, oxygen, silicon and iron, and upon that premise, inventors will eventually contrive apparatus to control rays and resultant forces which may soon require the junking of all present wireless and power systems.

The rank and file of the Adamsons aren't technically trained or sympathetically inclined to super-achievement.

But only fatuous self-satisfaction and downright laziness account for the empty roles that majorities play in affairs.

FOR instance, is any balance sheet indebted to YOUR ingenuity for a dividend increasing notion?

Are you the author of a single idea to reduce costs or leaks or lacks?

Probably not. You prefer to brood instead over the injustice and inappreciation which continue to relegate you to the background of action.

Lacking the spark-plugs of initiative and enterprise, folk who DO possess them, are masters of your time and energy.

You may know as much as the man who bosses you, but you don't SHOW as much.

You may be "better educated," but unless reflection has distilled some MOTOR ESSENCE from your college fueling, you won't work without a driving belt.

WHEREVER a HIGHBROW is taking orders from a ROUGHNECK, it's because he has neither the guts nor the gumption to give orders to himself.

No individual is worth more than his OUTPUT. Your place is fixed and your wage is based on production.

In the long run, a man gets no more out of this world than he takes out of himself. The jobs we hold, continue to fit until we GROW out of them.

There's no room for development in a standardized situation for which every contingency has been anticipated by set rule and regulation.

Disprove the validity of the RULE or successfully challenge the soundness of the regulation, and you immediately become a candidate for promotion or distinction.

The difference between a MILLIKAN and a MILKMAN is that one uses his faculties and the other lets them drowse.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

ELEANOR THOMPSON is a very unhappy woman. You might say, she's inveterantly unhappy.

Everyone says—"What a shame a fine woman like Eleanor should have had such a terrible time. Ever since she was a girl . . . You know just how her father failed, just as she was entering college, and she had to take any job she could get. Then her brother Jim was drowned . . She 'n' Jim had just idolized each other Then she had that long sickness after she married Steve . . . then the baby died . . . and she almost went insane from grief. And to cap it all, Steve ran away with that Turner woman. What an awful life she's had, poor thing! Oh, of course, she has a fine position now and a lovely home . . . but it has come too late. You can't expect her to be happy after going through all that."

That's what people say about Eleanor, and Eleanor agrees with them. She often speaks about it and wonders, wistfully, if she'll ever be really happy before she dies.

PROBABLY SHE WON'T . . . BUT THAT ISN'T BECAUSE FATE HAS IT IN FOR ELEANOR . . . IT'S BECAUSE ELEANOR, HERSELF, IS NOT WILLING TO BE HAPPY.

How mad Eleanor would be if you told her that! But it's true.

Eleanor had had a run of bad luck . . . such a run of bad luck that her mind has actually gotten "set" against good luck. For years she was in a blind panic of grief and fear You've seen animals in that condition . . . frightened animals, backed into a corner. Life backed Eleanor into a corner. AFTER A WHILE SHE GREW USED TO THAT CORNER . . . ACTUALLY PREFERRED IT! Depression was a refuge at first . . . gradually it became a DISTINCTION It set her apart and made her important to be unhappy all the time. Unhappiness became a habit, a stubborn habit . . . a lazy, conceited habit.

Eleanor would indignantly deny all this. She would protest that she really wants to be happy . . . but she fools herself, as most of us do. Eleanor CAN be happy if she wants to be. The only thing that's holding her is . . . Eleanor. Of course she has had hard luck in the past . . . but so have many other people. That sad past couldn't blast Eleanor's present if she were willing to shake it off. But she isn't. She has found it easier and more interesting to be unhappy than happy . . she has made an addiction of grief. SHE ISN'T WILLING TO BE HAPPY.

Did you ever stop to think of the exact meaning of the word "willing?" It means much more than "being ready to accept." It means that you WILL to accept . . that you DELIBERATELY DETERMINE TO ACCEPT.

We can all have happiness if we're WILLING . . . and WILL to have it.

But we must first come out of our corners. We must relinquish those tragedy roles by which we, unconsciously perhaps, acquire importance. WE MUST PUT AWAY THE LAZY, COWARDLY, CONCEITED HABIT OF GRIEF.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

BEFORE we have done with the Science of Life, we hope to illuminate the activities of this gentleman up to their very highest level, to ask how far his comings and goings, his loves and hostilities, his laughter and tears are spontaneous and how far they are as determinate as the swallowing action of his oesophagus when it is set going by a bolus of food.

But here we simply want to consider behavior so obvious and primitive, running away from a mad dog, or looking for drink when thirsty, that it seems almost below Mr. Everyman's dignity to cuss him. Such behavior as we are going to study here may be studied equally well in the case of his minor cousin, the mouse.

H. G. Wells

We have already seen that little creature hunger-driven, entering its life about the house while Mr. Everyman sleeps. Its sensitive nose quivers perpetually, and samples and appreciates the surrounding air. Meanwhile, its eyes and ears are alert for the least intimation of cat, dog or other enemy.

It moves about in swift eager runs or sits up to listen. The warning squeak of a kindred mouse will instantly send it flying to cover.

It is the smallest of common mammals, a poor fighter, and its strategy is hiding. Whenever it can, it travels in the dark behind the wainscot or under the floor, feeling its way through the obscurity with its extraordinarily sensitive whiskers. By making it captive we can spy upon its shy existence. It balances between fear and hunger and hunger and fear.

Yet also there is something else in its life that can at times prevail over either of these forces. It responds to something we may call it an obligation to the species; strange storms of desire impel it to do strange and damaging things so that the race may continue.

Here then we have three imperatives that govern the life of the mouse and to which its conduct must conform. It must fill its belly, it must save its skin, and it must breed; and the penalty for failure is death, either of the sinner or of his stock.

So with any wild animal that we choose to name, and so, perhaps to a lesser degree, with ourselves. All normally are under these three imperatives.

This is why the brotherhood of viscera—heart, stomach, kidneys, lungs—need other helpers; muscles to move them about, eyes, ears and so forth to observe their surroundings, a nervous system to govern the community and hold it together.

A living body is a co-operative alliance between a system of chest and belly viscera on the one hand and a system of behavior organs on the other.

The former provide the latter with a stream of clean, nourishing blood—that is their essential duty in the partnership—while the latter protect and guard the former and keep the stomach filled.

We have studied the former group; we will turn now to the organization of watchful sense-organs and telephone nerves, by which the community is guarded and held together.

THE CONTROLLING SYSTEM

EVERYONE has a general idea what the brain and spinal cord are like and how they are situated in skull and backbone.

From them come nerves, spreading and branching out from the brain and passing through bony apertures in the cranium not only to the face and head generally, but sending branches down even to the neck and heart; and also from the spinal cord, in pairs, one pair between every vertebra and its neighbor, to the limbs and body.

We have already compared the nervous system to a telephone system—from which it differs in the fact that its fibres are one-way fibres that either take impulses outwardly (motor fibres) or sensations inwardly (sensory fibres).

There are, in addition to this main system (general nervous system), subordinate centers and systems in more or less complete communication with it. They perform tasks of co-ordination of a lesser scope, with whose details it is unnecessary to burden the main system. The solar plexus, a network of cells and fibres concerned with abdominal activities, is chief among these inferior centers.

Now the structure of the brain and most of its relationship to the spinal cord, we shall find it better to defer to a later part of the work. Upon it center some of the most fascinating, illuminating and controversial questions concerning life in general and human life in particular that is possible to raise.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up betimes and gay over a letter from Percy Crosby, creator of "Skippy," who sent me two ingenious monograms of my initials. And out in a flutter for three shirts to have them bedecked.

Then to see Justine Hall, who has been back to my section of Ohio and tells of seeing many of the boys and girls with whom we used to play—one in especial being a grandmother. So back to my labors bowed by the weight of years.

In the evening to an Armenian cafe and had lamb roasted with tomatoes on a spike and a drink that had the odor of absinthe which I did not like.

One of those fidgety and electric newspaper executives with the explosive quality of T. N. T. buys four extra pair of pants with each business suit and wears them out before the coat begins to shine. That's squirming about!

Until they caught me at it, I was once a city editor under one of those trip hammer executives who would, for reasons that elude me, suddenly leap out of his chair at intervals and bellow like a charging bull. He chewed tobacco and puffed heavy cigars simultaneously and sent out for raw meat sandwiches for lunch. Cub reporters would run a temperature when he glanced in their direction. He had me so thoroughly cowed I finally quit to save what little was left of what was not very much self-respect to start.

Few newspaper shops these days, however, have this type of editorial ogre. The most successful managing editor rules by cheers instead of brays. He is the energetic coach urging his men on. And he gets results.

Not long ago I saw a telegram from the publisher of an important paper to an expert reporter which quickened my pulse. The reporter had on his own initiative executed a journalist coup that covered not only his paper but himself with glory. The telegram read:

"Consider your salary doubled and if you don't stay away from the office for a month's loaf with the new increase you are fired."

The modern reporter who has never looked sad for a year or so in hope of getting a grudging $2 a week pay boost cannot appreciate the vast changes that have come to journalism in recent years. The stage still portrays the reporter as the seedy and slouching cynic with flashes of brilliance and lapses of debauchery. He no more exists today than the stage sea captain who with hearty garumphs is constantly "shivering my timbers" and "avast-ing ye lubbers!"

The top crest of the theatrical season was reached one recent night when 11 productions opened for metropolitan favor on the same evening. In such emergencies, critics select the play they think most likely to click and they usually know in advance.

The Rialto has had four of what it calls "laugh shows" this season. On the opening night they proved so melodramatically mawkish that the audience remained for an evening of hooting. The idea was first fostered by the "After Dark" experiment in Hoboken and resulted in many terrible Broadway flops remaining for several weeks.

From San Francisco: "People who are trying to laugh off the 18-day diet should come out here and see how it is becoming more popular than ever."

All is Diet on the Western Front!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

PERHAPS you have advanced more rapidly than the person whom you chose as a life partner many years ago. He or she has not had opportunities to progress as far as you.

In the home and out of it the difference is beginning to be noticed. It is most humiliating to you whether husband or wife.

If this has happened in your life you ought to be the one to shield the other from anything that is embarrassing or might hurt.

In your onward progress did you ever give your mate as many chances to move forward as you have taken?

Isn't it true that from the first you have assumed to have the greater brain capacity? And that there has been a selfish desire to excel him or her.

Instead of being helpful you have acted superior.

But even if you have tried to make your life partner keep up with you in knowledge and development and have been unsuccessful, you should hide the fact.
